SENATORS FIND MAN WHO GAVE SHEARER HELP

F. P. Palen, Investigators Learn, Favored Naval Propaganda in 1926.

WITNESS TESTIFIES "JAZZ" WON $25,000

Newport News Shipbuilder Says He Vetoed Plan to "Talk" Big Fleet.

FRIEND OF PRESIDENT BROUGHT INTO INQUIRY

Geneva Observer's Letter Is Termed "Shocking" by Committeeman.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Senate subcommittee investigating naval lobbyists yesterday got definitely on the trail of a shipbuilder who knew William B. Shearer, the big naval propagandist, prior to the time he was employed to go to the Geneva conference to represent three shipbuilding firms.

It was quite a step forward, too, because all of the witnesses who have so far appeared before the committee have admitted only vague knowledge of him and have expressed regret that they had this. They have all asserted that his employment even as an observer, as they insist was the scope of his work, not a conference wrecker as Shearer contends, was most unfortunate. They say very frankly they wish they had never met such a man.

"It was a damn fool decision in the light of what has occurred," lamented S. W. Wakeman, president of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, and Wakeman on the stand did not appear to be a well man, although whether it is that he is downright sick over the shipbuilders' predicament is not known. Wakeman represented the Bethlehem in the celebrated New York conference at which it was agreed to send Shearer to Geneva and pay him $25,000.

Palen Praised Shearer.

He was "jazzed" into it, he said.

But the man who apparently knew Shearer well before this meeting and who had thought well of his work for many years is Frederick P. Palen, vice president of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., in charge of its New York office.

The president of this firm, Homer L. Ferguson, introduced a letter written to him by Palen back in 1926 in which Shearer wanted to take over the New York Commercial for the shipbuilders, to make speeches throughout the country for them, to interest American Legion posts and generally get the country in a "national defense" and "merchant marine" mood.

Palen was enthusiastic about the proposition. He wrote Ferguson that he, of course, knew of Shearer's ability in this direction. "He is probably the most forceful speaker and enthusiast in the country in this work," wrote Palen to his chief.

But despite Palen's enthusiasm, Ferguson, according to a letter in reply, vetoed the proposition, in a very brief and business-like way. Ferguson did not "see any hope for favorable shipping legislation at this time," he wrote.

Propaganda Is Admitted.

The merchant marine propaganda has been freely admitted by the shipbuilders with the explanation, of course, that it was in line with the Government's policy of building up the merchant marine. And expenditures to Shearer in this connection have been admitted, but the witnesses so far have insisted that they did not know Shearer well enough for his work in this regard, his "enthusiasm" for national defense, to have entered into his employment to go to Geneva.

Ferguson said about all he had ever heard of him was through the newspapers; that he was the man who tried to prevent through court order the sinking of the battleship Mississippi.

Palen's statement in his letter to Ferguson that the latter, of course, knew of Shearer's work, was "presumptious," Ferguson said.

A close personal friend of President Hoover was brought into the inquiry when Ferguson testified that Henry M. Robinson, of Los Angeles, is chairman of the Newport firm's board of directors—has been since 1928. This was subsequent to Shearer's employment, of course.

Robinson was frequently mentioned for a place in Hoover's Cabinet, but he could not get away from his business interests. It is now fairly generally believed that he is slated to be Secretary of Treasury Mellon's successor when the latter retires.

Ferguson brought in Robinson's name in assuring the committee that none of the owners or directors of the Newport News firm would approve such employment as Shearer had had.

Palen did not tell him of Shearer's Geneva employment until late in

SENATE PAVES WAY FOR TARIFF BATTLE

Eight Minor Amendments Adopted, Two Rejected at Early Session.

OPIUM PENALTY FIXED

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday disposed of ten committee amendments to the tariff bill and cleared the way for early consideration of the major controversial sections relating to the tariff commission, the power of the President to change duties, and new valuation methods.

Eight minor amendments were adopted. By rejecting two, the Senate restored House provisions designed to strengthen the antismuggling laws relating to smoking opium by making the owner, as well as the master of the vessel, liable to a fine of $25 an ounce for all such opium found unmanifested on ships.

Under the restored provisions, the penalty also would constitute a lien upon a vessel, notwithstanding the law providing for exemption of common carriers in such cases unless it is shown that the owner or master has knowledge of opium being on board.

The finance committee proposed elimination of the House amendment, but was turned down in both instances without a record vote.

A roll call vote on the same section was interpreted by many senators as relating to opium provisions showed 54 against the committee amendment to strike out the House language and 23 for. Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, argued that the Senate was not aware of what patricular amendment was up and asked a reconsideration. This was granted and the more rigid opium provisions of the House were placed back in the bill without a record vote.

The roll call vote showed 24 Republicans and 30 Democrats for the House amendments and 20 Republicans and 3 Democrats opposed.

Senators Blease, South Carolina; Heflin, Alabama, and George, Georgia,

NEW REFORMATORY BUILDING IS PLANNED

Structure to Hold Federal Prisoners From District Now Elsewhere.

HIGH WALL TO BE BUILT

Plans are rapidly nearing completion to erect a special building with a high concrete wall at the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., to house all Federal prisoners from the District now confined at Atlanta and Fort Leavenworth, it was revealed yesterday by the committee on penal institutions of the Board of Public Welfare.

By such expansion of the Lorton institution, congestion at the Federal penitentiaries would be relieved, it was held by the Department of Justice, which suggested the idea recently to the Board of Public Welfare. The board turned the matter over to its penal institutions body for study.

The committee is understood as being strongly in favor of the plan, and the possibility is that a special meeting of the Board of Public Welfare may be called, antedating the regular session scheduled for early next month, to study the proposal.

About 200 prisoners would be cared for in the proposed structure at Lorton, with armed guards patroling the walls at all times, although other prisoners would still be subject to the present "open" system. It is proposed that the work of erecting the new buildings and walls be done by prisoners now confined at Lorton, resulting in a saving in labor costs to the District.

Under the present system, all Federal prisoners from the District believed to be desperate are sent to Atlanta or Fort Leavenworth. Only those with short sentences or who are first offenders are kept at Lorton, which is not protected by a wall at present, and where less rigid guard is maintained than is necessary with more desperate prisoners. Some 30 prisoners now in the Dis-

MacDonald Will Be Guest Of Hoover for Three Days

Stimson and Officials of Embassy to Meet Premier at Union Station on Leader's Arrival Next Month to Discuss Naval Reduction Plans.

(Associated Press.)

Ramsay MacDonald will spend several of his six days in Washington early next month as the guest of President Hoover, with whom he is to confer regarding the Anglo-American naval negotiations.

Arriving at New York on the Berengaria on October 4, the British premier will come directly to Washington by rail. He will be escorted to the British Embassy and later in the afternoon will pay a call of courtesy at the White House.

During this call the President personally will extend an invitation for the premier to be his guest. MacDonald is expected to begin his sojourn at the Executive Mansion the next day, remaining for perhaps three days and then returning to the British Embassy to be the guest of Ambassador Howard until his departure for New York and Canada on October 10.

This much of the itinerary of the premier became known yesterday, but the full program for his entertainment still was in course of preparation at the British Embassy last night.

An Assistant Secretary of State, Probably William R. Castle, will greet MacDonald upon the arrival of the Berengaria at Quarantine and will escort him to Washington.

Secretary Stimson will greet the distinguished visitor at Union Station, together with other administration officials of the British Embassy. After the ceremony there and the call on the President, the premier will be a

DRASTIC LAWS ARE URGED ON BUCKET SHOPS

Rover Writes Capper for Aid in Passing Blue Sky Legislation Here.

SENATOR'S PENDING MEASURE INDORSED

District Attorney Thinks Penalties Should Be More Severe.

LEGISLATOR TO ACT ON HIS SUGGESTIONS

Padlock for Gambling Dives Will Be Included in Projected Bills.

Drastic legislation aimed at bucketshop operators, gamblers and loan sharks was asked of Congress in a letter sent to Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District committee, yesterday by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

Rover again indorsed the pending Capper bill to drive out bucketshop dealers and fly-by-night stock venders. This bill would create a commission which would license all dealers in stocks and securities and would empower the United States attorney to stop the sale of stocks and securities believed to be fraudulent.

He suggested, however, that the penalties in the bill be made more severe. He would increase the maximum penalty from a fine of $5,000 or two years in jail or both to a fine of $10,000 and five years in jail, or both.

Asks Bucketshop Amendment.

Rover also recommended that the existing bucketshop act be amended so as to increase the penalty. At present a first offense calls for a fine of not more than $1,000 or a jail sentence of not more than one year. Rover would make the penalty for the first offense a $10,000 fine or five years in jail, or both.

These recommendations come as a result of the crusade waged against bucketshop operators by The Washington Post, in which it was pointed out that these pseudo dealers were "taking" Washingtonians for more than a million dollars a year.

In his letter yesterday, Rover asked that Congress enact a law that would enable him to padlock gambling establishments just as he now is able to padlock speak-easies.

Suggests Loan Shark Action.

With regard to loan sharks, he said he could best handle them if Congress would pass a law under which he could have them indicted for conspiracy. At present, he said, it is difficult to pin anything on them as individuals.

In a statement issued after receipt of Rover's letter, Chairman Capper promised to take early action on his recommendations.

His statement follows:

"The recommendations of District Attorney Rover to strengthen the law against bucket-shop gambling—which is not a gamble at all, but a 'sure thing' for the operators—have my hearty approval. I shall immediately ask the corporation counsel, Mr. Bride, to prepare bills, after he has conferred with the district attorney, and these will be introduced in the Senate for action at the earliest possible date.

Favors Heavy Penalties.

"There is no doubt that heavy penalties ought to be imposed in the first instance, instead of waiting for a second offense to occur, in cases involving the swindling of investors by bucket-shop operators, fraudulent promoters, and others of that kind.

"I also agree with Mr. Rover as to the need for a so-called blue-sky law to regulate the issuance and sale of securities in the District, and insure the honesty and integrity of the men and companies engaged in the business of selling stocks, bonds, mortgage notes and the like. I already have introduced a bill for such regulation, and shall ask the District Commissioners to make a report on it as soon as practicable, so that hearings may be held and action taken by the District committee without undue delay.

"The suggestion of Mr. Rover that places used for gambling purposes should be padlocked also appeals to me as reasonable and proper, and I shall ask Mr. Rover and Mr. Bride to prepare bills for early consideration by our committee.

Cites Property Owners.

"The owners of property should exercise vigilance not to let such property become gambling resorts in the hands of tenants; and the best way to insure such vigilance is by the enactment of a padlock law. This will enable the law-enforcement officials to close premises that are used for illegal purposes, just as is now done under the prohibition law and red-light statute.

"As to the suggestions with regard to gambling in the District, and particularly on horse races, I am inclined Young Wife Was Overcome by Gas Accidentally, Witness Asserts.

Riddled with attacks by those who believe it was murder and those who deem it suicide, the McPherson case, involving the death by strangulation of Mrs. Virginia McPherson, will be taken before the District grand jury today.

At least 40 witnesses have been subpensed to testify. A great many of these witnesses are residents in the Park Lane Apartments, where Mrs. McPherson was found strangel to death in her apartment on the second floor. Policeman Robert J. Allen, of the Third Precinct, who is now fighting with his back to the wall on the side of the murder theory, claims that at least twelve of the witnesses will support him.

The hearing is due to start at 10 o'clock this morning, according to United States Attorney William E. Collins, who will have charge. Collins said that he hopes to have the hearing complete by tonight, and a transcript of the proceedings in the hands of Inspector William S. Shelby by tomorrow morning.

Doors Conceal Scenes.

Until then, the future scenes in the mystery drama will be enacted behind closed doors. Inspector Shelby and the homicide squad, with Lieut. Edward S. Kelly at the helm, will be guided to their next move by whatever develops before the grand jury. If strong enough evidence pointing to murder is found, Inspector Shelby will get the detective force into action. If the suicide verdict still holds firm, the case will go into the records of police court history.

Policeman Allen, following his suspension yesterday, announced last night that his case is getting stronger. But in the eyes of the Detective Department, Allen's case is tottering on two flimsy props.

One of these supports is the claim of Allen that he saw a man emerge from the McPherson apartment window on the night that Mrs. McPherson is believed to have died. The other is the report that McPherson was cruel to his wife on several occasions and that Mrs. McPherson's father, A. A. Hurley, of Chester, S. C., solicited police protection for his daughter two months before she died.

Hurley Corroborates Report.

This latter report was substantiated last night by Hurley, in a telephone message from his home, and by Lieut. Warren O. Embrey, night chief of detectives. Embrey admitted last night that he had received such a message. Mrs. McPherson, according to Hurley, said her husband had beaten her and that her life was in danger.

Miss Eleanor Sheppard, a nurse and friend of Mrs. McPherson, told The Post last night that Mrs. McPherson had once told her that her husband struck her at a dance at Gallinger Hospital. Miss Sheppard is the last known person to have talked to Mrs. McPherson. Miss Shepard spoke to Mrs. McPherson on the telephone. Mrs. McPherson said at the time that she was ill and did not feel like talking, according to Miss Sheppard.

Another piece of evidence on which Allen is expected to project his side of the case is the report that a man and woman were heard to quarrel on

HOWELL TO ANSWER HOOVER ON LIQUOR

Nebraska Senator to State Views Today; Officials Riled by Charges.

BLEASE REFUSES DATA

The question of prohibition enforcement in Washington, or the lack of it, is scheduled to flare up in the Senate again today.

In the meantime, local and Federal authorities are smarting under a charge made yesterday by Senator Cole Blease (Democrat), of South Carolina, that four "narcotic joints" are operating within a stone's throw of the Capitol.

Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), of Nebraska, who said Saturday that Washington could be dried up if President Hoover insisted upon it, will take the Senate floor again today and defend that declaration.

Senator Howell maintains that if prohibition can be enforced in any city in the country Washington is that city.

Commenting on the statement issued by President Hoover, a statement in which the executive declared that Senator Howell had "seriously impugned" the good faith and integrity of the local authorities, the Nebraskan said yesterday that impugning anybody's motives or good faith was the farthest thing from his thoughts on Saturday.

Prohibition Commissioner Doran yesterday took issue with Senator Howell. He said that prohibition agents and the local police were doing as good work here as is being done in any city of the country.

"The Police Department," Doran declared, "is cooperating energetically with our forces and any investigation into the work of those two organizations will show that they are doing excellent work. The enforcement conditions here are as good as any place in the country."

In the speech he plans to make today, Howell will not attempt to cite any specific case of law violation for the reason that he does not have any. However, he said yesterday, he will support his contentions with statements that he thinks will satisfy the country generally.

"If there is a will to enforce prohibition it can be enforced," he said. "And I have reached the conclusion that the will to do it is lacking. While my remarks here last week were casual, I have been giving serious thought to this matter for six years—in fact, ever since I came here. The idea that I have has crystalized.

"Compared with other cities, the National Capital has no underworld. Here the prohibition officers have an open field for their work. The President has absolute power in the District of Columbia. He can cut off the

WOMAN AND 22 MEN SAVED IN SHIPWRECK

Coast Guard Rescues Crew of Foundered Vessel in Breeches Buoy.

GERHARD BREAKS IN TWO

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Twenty men and one woman were saved from certain death in the sea off Kill Devil Hills, N. C., early today when they were snatched from the deck of the Swedish steamer Carl Gerhard which stranded about 300 yards off-shore. The vessel broke in two but a few minutes after the rescue was completed.

All of those on the doomed ship were brought safely to shore in the breeches buoy and the rescue was said to be one of the most thrilling the North Carolina coast has ever furnished.

The Gerhard, according to information received over the Government seacoast wires, had been partly disabled before she struck the beach. She had been battling a northeast gale since last Friday. Her steering gear had gone bad and the vessel was in bad shape when she was sighted off Kill Devil Hill this morning by the patrolmen of the coast guard.

Warnings in the shape of rockets were fired by the men on the beach to apprise the Gerhard of the nearness of the shoals at that point of the coast. But the warnings proved of no avail.

The ship was driven nearer and nearer the beach. She was hurled upon the shoals on the crest of a

Marine, Washington Born, Becomes British Baronet

Enlisted Men Stationed in China Get Sensation When They Discover One of Mates Is Recipient of Title Created in 1629.

Shanghai, China, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The enlisted men of the Fourth Regiment of United States Marines, stationed in Shanghai, received a sensation recently when they woke up one morning to discover that one of their mates, a sergeant, was heir to one of the oldest titles of Great Britain.

Overnight, Sergt. Fulque Agnew officially became Sir Fulque Agnew, baronet, in the eyes of the world, and a few days after the news became public, the young man donned civilian clothes and left China to join his mother in Italy.

The life story of this young man, who by the way is just 29, reads like a tale from the pages of Richard Harding Davis or Jack London. Of an adventurous turn of mind, he has been a rover, a soldier, "leatherneck" and even a cowpuncher.

By birth, Sir Fulque is an American. He made his bow to the world at Washington, D. C., in 1900, where his father, Maj. C. H. Agnew, formerly of the Seventh Hussars, was on duty at the British embassy. At the age of two he was taken to England by his parents. He was educated at Harrow and during the World War enlisted in the British army, serving in both France and Egypt. He was commissioned and after the war served with his regiment, the Royal Rifles, in Mesopotamia, where he saw plenty of action in the Arab uprising of 1920.

When his regiment returned to England from the Arab trouble, Sir the night Mrs. McPherson died. Police have perforated this evidence so severely that it is expected to be brushed aside by the grand jury.

Spat Was Next Door.

The participants in the quarrel, it has been established by the homicide squad, were a married couple who live in the Lombardi Apartments next to the Park Lane. This has been further established by Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heavrin, who live in an apartment almost beneath the one occupied by Mrs. McPherson.

Mrs. Heavrin told a Post reporter last night that she and her husband returned home late that night and that they stayed up chatting until about 4 o'clock. They heard the quarrel between the couple and traced it to the apartment house next door.

Mrs. Heavrin said that nothing else suspicious came to her attention during the night. Mr. and Mrs. Heavrin are two witnesses who will appear before the grand jury today.

A point in favor of Allen will be the testimony by Mrs. V. C. Blackwelder, of Greensboro, N. C., sister of Mrs. McPherson, that Mrs. McPherson did not try to commit suicide in June by inhaling gas, as police had reported, but that she was asidentally asphyxiated. Mrs. Blackwelder said that she was in the same house at the time and can prove her contention.

Allen was suspended from the police force after an interview in the office of Inspector William S. Shelby yesterday. Shelby said that Allen was suspended because he tried to arrest Robert McPherson, husband of the dead woman, yesterday morning and because "he withheld evidence in the case."

Personal Animus Claimed.

Allen claims that he was suspended because he made the detective department angry and because he did not reveal what he knew about the case when it first developed.

Inspector Shelby announced last night that the Police Department has ceased its investigation of the case and will not make another move until the grand jury has delved into every angle of the affair.

"Then we will do what the grand jury recommends," Shelby said. "If the evidence garnered by the grand jury tends to show that the case is a murder we will go after it with every resource available. And Allen will be made a detective sergeant. If not, the case will go into history and Allen's goose will be cooked. As I view the case now, I am more positive than ever before that it is suicide."

Shelby's most telling move of the day came when he presented evidence to show that neither Mrs. McPherson nor her husband visited a roadhouse in Maryland on the night Mrs. McPherson died. Allen had produced evidence that Mrs. McPherson had been at the roadhouse, situated at Ardmore, on the night she died and that her husband was at the roadhouse later in the night.

Shelby produced evidence yesterday that tended to prove this claim of Allen's to be false. A woman who slightly resembled Mrs. McPherson was brought to the Police Department and admitted that she was at the roadhouse in the company of two taxicab drivers. Victor Gauthy, operator of the roadhouse, had identified Mrs. McPherson in a picture as having been at the roadhouse. Gauthy retracted this yesterday after identifying the other woman. The identity of this woman is withheld.

Allen explained last night that he was not trying to destroy Mrs. McPherson's character.

Victim of Jealousy, Belief.

"I believe she was a good, pure woman," Allen said, "and I think she was the victim of jealousy; that the hands of jealousy choked the life from her young body."

"I see in another newspaper," Allen went on, "that my partner, Patrolman L. I. Botts, of the Third Precinct, denies supporting my claim that I saw a man emerge from the McPherson apartment on the night that she died. This is untrue. Botts did not see the man, but he was with me when I saw him, and he is ready to support my charges.

"After seeing the man jump from the window onto the roof, I ran to the spot in an effort to find him. Botts can corroborate that. I did not attach any further significance to this event until the McPherson case took on startling developments.

"I am ready to prove that Mrs. McPherson was murdered and I will present my evidence before the grand jury and the Police Trial Board. I would like to have an attorney assigned to me in the grand jury hearing to interrogate my witnesses. Otherwise, I am afraid I won't be successful.

Allen's suspension followed revival of interest in the case by the Police Department yesterday. This followed Allen's revelation that he had a witness who saw a man emerge from the McPherson apartment. On being questioned by Inspector Shelby Allen admitted that he was the witness.

Shelby, upon hearing this, damned Allen as a traitor for witholding the evidence and for refusing to cooperate with the Police Department in throwing further light on the case. Shelby then brought about Allen's suspension.

"Shelby says he will make me a detective sergeant if I can prove that Mrs. McPherson was murdered," Allen observed last night. "Well, tell Shelby he may as well put that badge on his desk and have it ready. I'll get it."

The grand jury has set Friday as the date for the hearing of the new evidence in the McPherson case. Coroner Ramsay J. Nevitt said yesterday that if the murder theory is augmented that another inquest can be conducted.

Coroner Nevitt would not express himself definitely on the two theories in the case. He did say, however, that never in his experience as a coroner had he encounteded a suicide exactly like the McPherson case, granting it is a suicide.

"There have been a number of cases of self-strangulation," Dr. Nevitt observed, "but they have never been perpetrated by women, and never in exactly the same manner that Mrs. McPherson met her death."

All the elements of tragedy, thrills, mystery and humor were injected into the developments of the case yesterday. Detective headquarters at the District Building was the center for the curious, detectives and newspaper men. At least a dozen newspaper reporters were in the office of Inspector Shelby when he played his own trump card in producing witnesses to prove that neither Mrs. McPherson nor her husband were at the roadhouse at Ardmore, Md.

Inspector Is Triumphant.

When this was established, a look of triumph crossed the inspector's face. "I guess that pulls down the stack of cards built by our friend Allen," he said.

Allen's encounters with McPherson during the day were packed with tensity. First, Allen went to the Washington Loan & Trust Co., where McPherson is employed, and demanded that he come to headquarters. McPherson refused to do so without instructions from higher authorities. Allen then threatened to arrest him. This was the act that sped the policeman's suspension. McPherson eventually went voluntarily to headquarters.

At headquarters, Allen and McPherson neared a clash. Allen is quoted as having accused McPherson of beating his wife and driving her to desperation. McPherson is quoted as having retorted that he "would choke those words down the policeman's throat." A fist was raised, and detectives intervened.

Allen started off the day with a misfortune. He was driving down town in the interest of his private investigation of the case, he said, when he collided with a truck at Ninth and F street northwest. The policeman on duty at the intersection said that Allen drove past a red light.

Prior to the time of this mishap, police headquarters were trying to find Allen. The collision at Ninth and F simplified this search, it was pointed out.

WOMAN AMONG INJURED

One man was killed and four men and a woman were injured, two critically, late yesterday afternoon when the light truck in which they were riding left the Norbeck pike near the Manor Club and crashed into a tree, overturning several times. The driver of the car disappeared after the accident and Montgomery County police are searching for him.

Forrest Goodin, 45 years old, of Kensington, Md., was killed outright when he was thrown from the light truck in which he was riding.

Howard Hopkins, colored, address unknown, was taken to the Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring in a dying condition in the ambulance of Pumphrey's Undertaking establishment of Rockville.

Wilfred Simpson, colored, 19 years old, of Kensington, Md., received internal injuries and was removed to Freedmen's Hospital, where his condition was reported as critical.

The three others were William Hopkins, colored, 26 years old, who suffered fractures of the ribs; Eliza Pratt, colored, who suffered a sprained ankle and bruises, and Earl Budd, colored, who was cut on the head. All are residents of Kensington.

Treated by Doctor at Scene.

The latter two were treated by Dr. James Graham Marston, of Baltimore, Md., who was passing. Dr. Marston pronounced Goodin dead and said that Hopkins apparenly was suffering from a fractured skull with possible internal injuries and that his condition was critical.

Headquarters Detective Roy Bodmer and County Policeman Robert Darby, who investigated the accident, declared that the men apparently had been drinking. This theory was borne out by the testimony of E. Landis Hoover, of Deerwood, Md., who told police that the truck passed him at a rapid rate of speed, with the occupants "whooping and hollering" as they passed.

Driver Loses Control.

The light truck careened from the road after rounding a curve and the driver lost control.

The driver of the truck, said to have been Tanny King, colored, of Norbeck, disappeared from the scene shortly after the accident and police are searching for him. The truck was badly damaged, the steering wheel broken and the front wheels torn from the car.

WAGGONER PLANS INSANITY DEFENSE

WIFE MAINTAINS SILENCE

Denver, Colo., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Insanity will be the defense of C. D. Crump, his attorney, announced today.

The announcement was made coincident with the start of Waggoner's trip back to New York from Cheyenne, Wyo., where he has been held in jail.

"Insanity is his only defense," Crump said. "He will plead not guilty when arraigned in the New York Federal Court, and rely on the evidence during the trial to convince the jury that he was not in his right mind."

Wife Again Stands Mute.

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Belle Waggoner, wife of Charles D. Waggoner, indicted president of the Bank of Telluride, Colo., refused to answer questions when called today for the second time before the Federal grand jury investigating the manipulations by which her husband defrauded six New York banks out of nearly $500,000.

She was not asked to give a reason for refusing to testify, and was allowed to leave the room. Mrs. Waggoner had been called before the grand jury last Friday but was not questioned at that time when she refused to waive immunity.

J. C. Anderson, a director of the Telluride Bank, and Mrs. Clarence E. Todd, of Olathe, Kans., a sister of Waggoner, were other witnesses called today.

Debts Liquidated, Claim.

Anderson, who received some $25,000 of the money that Waggoner fraudulently obtained here, told the investigators that the money was used to liquidate some of Waggoner's indebtedness. The money was sent to Anderson by the First National Bank of Pueblo, Colo., where Waggoner deposited a $225,000 certified check he obtained in New York through fake telegrams sent from Denver in bankers' code.

Emmanuel G. Klein, assistant United States attorney, said Mrs. Waggoner's refusal to talk was accepted without question, as "no woman is obliged to testify concerning her husband's affairs."

Charles Delos Waggoner, jr., son of the indicted bank president, was called before the grand jury after the other witnesses had departed. It was his third appearance before that body.

Paderewski Undergoes Operation.

Lausanne, Switzerland, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Ignace Paderewski, famous Polish pianist, is resting well today after a hurried operation for appendicitis. It was necessary to have the operation performed yesterday.

Old Velocipede Rider Pays Visit to Hoover

Astride a high-wheel velocipede of a type that was all the rage in in the "gay nineties," William Pierce, 29 years old, good-will messanger of Akron, Ohio, pedaled up to the White House yesterday and visited President Hoover.

The President seemed much interested in Pierce's velocipede and stated that he had ridden one like it himself when he was a boy. Pierce presented the President with an old canceled check of $20 written by President William McKinley to his sister, Anna, and cashed December 12, 1885.

After his visit at the White House, Pierce pedaled up to the Capitol, where he met Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio. He also called at the office of Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth, but found that Longworth was out of the city.

Pierce is making a good-will tour from New York to Los Angeles.

LEAGUE FIGHTS SHY OF BANK PROPOSAL

Close Relationship With Reparations Institution Will Be Avoided.

Geneva, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The League of Nations will not seek, for the present, to establish a close relationship between itself and the international reparations bank provided by the Young plan.

This became clear today when a resolution envisaging the establishment of an intimate connection between the two was withdrawn from consideration in the assembly's committee that deals with economic questions, but its authors, Norway and Denmark, in withdrawing are believed to have gained part of their purpose.

Their move was interpreted in some quarters as a signal by the countries not concerned directly with reparations payments that they will not be greatly pleased if the proposed bank seeks to assume too dominant a function in the economic life of Europe.

Reparations Nations Oppose.

The solid opposition of the countries receiving reparations discouraged further agitation of the proposal.

Speaking for France, Great Britain, Belgium, Italy and Japan, Louis Loucheur, French cabinet minister, declared that adoption of the Norwegian idea would be dangerous to the chances for organizing the bank. It was suggested by some observers that M. Loucheur might also be representing influential sentiment in the United States.

He said the situation of the bank already was complicated, and the effort of the league to take a hand in the organization and operation might be disastrous. Previously, he had warned his hearers that such a move might alienate the cooperation of "a great country not represented here," which was taken to mean the United States.

Experts to Get Minutes.

But the minutes of the committee's discussion on the subject of the bank will be communicated to the financial experts who will meet to organize the institution.

Advocates of a close connection between the league and the bank were eager that this be done, and M. Loucheur solved the delicate problem of procedure by promising to convey the minutes to the French experts.

Torn between the desire to get home and a determination to give proper consideration to important questions, the various delegations to the assembly made good progress today in the hope of being able to adjourn Wednesday night.

Haste Is Protested.

Vigorous protests against unseemly haste were made in the disarmament committee by Lord Cecil, of England, and Sir George Foster, of Canada.

As a result final debate in the assembly on the position of the preparatory disarmament commission's work was postponed until tomorrow. The British views on taking up the question of limitation of land forces and materials may be aired further when the disarmament committee's report is presented tomorrow.

The assembly in two plenary sessions today approved a number of committee reports and fixed the next assembly meeting date for September 10, 1930.

TORCH KILLER CALLS BURNING 'KINDNESS'

Did Not Want Girl's Mother to Know of Death, Peacox Asserts.

ATE WHILE BODY BLAZED

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—District Attorney Frank H. Coyne revealed today that when Earle P. Peacox formally confessed the slaying of his wife he asserted that he burned he rbody as an act of kindness to her mother.

The stenographic report of the confession was read in full at the trial of Peacox here. It relates the defendant's version of the slaying and reiterates his contention that the killing was not wilful murder but entirely the outcome of a "family row."

"After I hid her body in the woods," it read, "I didn't know what to do. I still loved that girl. I got in my car and drove away, going for breakfast to the home of her mother.

"During the next week I thought a lot of her lying out there. It got on my mind. I got some kerosene and went back there and threw it over her body and lighted it.

Wanted Mother Not to Know.

"I did this so that she would not be found and so that her mother would never know to what a disgraceful end her daughter had come."

After doing this he again went to his mother-in-law's house and was served breakfast by her, saying nothing of the body that lay burning in the woods a few miles away.

Peacox's story of the killing has been told many times before the court reading of the formal confession. It is briefly that he took her to his apartment on the first anniversary in an effort to effect a reconciliation; that she called the place a "dump" and that in an ensuing argument he struck her with the butt of his pistol and then seized her by the throat to prevent her screaming.

Peacox to Take Stand.

The defendant himself will go on the stand tomorrow to tell the story again in his own voice, to admit that his actions caused her death, but to deny that he ever meant to kill her. The reason he will give for his rough treatment was forecast in the confession read today.

"I had been my wife's slave," it read. "Several times she struck me but I had never previously hit her back. Then I decided that if I ever got her back after our last separation I would exert a stronger will over her, if necessary resort to physical force."

She slapped him, he said, on that anniversary night and in accordance with his plan of being the masterful husband, he slapped her in return, and when she swung a metal book-end at him he struck her with his pistol and then punched her in the face when she screamed. Still she screamed and then he seized her by the throat, placing one hand over her mouth.

Mother-in-Law Questioned.

Before the State rested its case today, the mother of the slain girl, for whom Peacox says he burned his wife's body, was cross-examined about her knowledge of her daughter's extramarital relations and several previous witnesses were recalled for additional cross-examination.

Defense witnesses today included several men who testified to the good reputation Peacox bore among his friends and business associates. An uncle of the defendant, John Peacock, who retains the original spelling of the family name, testified that two members of the family had been confined in institutions for the mentally unbalanced.

Lindburgh Lands In Dutch Guiana

2,595-Mile Journey Ends and New Air Mail Line Is Inaugurated.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived at Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, at 4:20 o'clock this afternoon, adding to his feats the accomplishment of a new air-mail line, bringing the northeastern coast of South America closer to the United States by fourteen days than heretofore.

The new extension of the air mail took the flying colonel from San Juan, Porto Rico, its former southerly terminus in the West Indies, over the leeward and windward group and down the South American coast for a total of 1,920 air miles. The arrival at Paramaribo completed a 2,595-mile journey since Lindbergh took off here last Friday morning for San Juan to inaugurate the mail.

Lindbergh today flew from Port of Spain, Trinidad, stopping at Georgetown, British Guiana, on a regular scheduled air-mail halt. Leaving Port of Spain at 7:18 this morning the colonel took the giant amphibian plane across the narrow strait to the South American coast, skirting the Orinoco River delta and thence into Georgetown at 11:30 o'clock.

CHANG HEADS NEW CHINESE REBELLION

Rebel General Said to Aim at Ousting Nationalist Government.

CHIANG IS MOBILIZING

Shanghai, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Reuter's News Agency tonight reported that Gen. Chang Fah Kwei, having refused last week to obey an order to move his "ironsides" division from Ichang to Shantung, had crossed the Yangtse and was marching toward Kwangsi intending to join other disaffected troops there. It was stated that Chang, with two Kwangsi leaders and the governors of Kansu and Shansi provinces, aims to oust the Nanking government headed by Chiang Kai Shek and place the left wing of the Kuomintang party in power.

President Chiang, who also is commander in chief of the Nationalist armies, was rushing troops with artillery and airplanes under orders to disarm the "ironsides" and also to take measures to insure the safety of Canton. That commercial center was in a panic from reports that insurgents were converging on it.

Nanking was startled yesterday to learn that the governor of Anhwei, the province directly to the west, had been placed under guard but had escaped. President Chiang today brought in a trusted division to garrison the capital.

The government has clamped down a vigorous censorship. Japanese news agencies reported that hostilities occurred between Ichang and Hankow, but the government said these reports were "propaganda designed to hurt the Nationalist government and its rulers."

American and British circles authoritatively denied Chinese press dispatches stating that the British and American consuls at Ichang as the result of "disorders" had been ordered by Nationalists to evacuate to Hankow.

London, Sept. 24 (Tuesday) (A.P.). The Shanghai correspondent of the Mail reported that a steamer taking Nationalist troops up the Yangtse from Hankow to replace the "ironsides" division at Ichang was vigorously shelled. The troops suffered 30 casualities and the vessel returned to Hankow.

Tokyo, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Japanese dispatches from Mukden, Manchuria, tonight reported a serious conflict between Chinese police and Japanese Railway guards of the South Manchuria Railway at Tiehling, 40 miles north of Mukden. Three Japanese guards were wounded.

A battalion of Japanese troops was rushed to the Chinese police station and disarmed all the policemen. Those said to be responsible for the clash were arrested.

Weather Delays Land of Soviets

Fliers Remain on Attue Island Bound by Rain and Fog.

Seattle, Wash., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Unfavorable weather was believed by Navy radio officials today to have forced the Russian plane, Land of the Soviets, to remain on Attu Island instead of hopping for Dutch Harbor, Unalaska, as planned.

A radio message received here today from Capt. Cochran, commander of the Coast Guard Bering Sea fleet, said the plane was to leave Attu, most westward of the Aleutian Islands, at 5:30 a. m. on the next leg of its flight from Moscow to New York. Lack of word on the take-off led to the belief that rain and fog had delayed the start.

The Russians arrived at Attu Saturday from Petropavlovsk, Kamchatka, Siberia, after crossing Bering Strait. The scheduled flight of 752 miles from Attu to Dutch Harbor yesterday was postponed until today because of the weather. Conditions were unchanged today.

Chicago Dry Chief Plans City Drive

Yellowley, Back From Trip to Capital, Says Doran Ordered Cleanup.

Chicago, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—E. C. Yellowley, Chicago prohibition administrator, returned from Washington today with the information that James M. Doran, chief of prohibition enforcement, has ordered an immediate dry cleanup here.

Yellowley announced he would call a conference of city, county and State authorities in a few days to perfect plans for a joint drive.

In Washington Yellowley conferred with Commissioner Doran, George E. Q. Johnson, U. S. District Attorney for this district, and Alexander Jamie, chief of special agents assigned to this district.

Attorney Johnson said plans were made at the Washington conference that would result in "more effectively reaching the sources out of which come the income that goes into the treasury of gangland."

Politician Is Beaten As Women Pull Hair

New Orleans, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Capt. William A. Blaso, political leader and president of the Blaso Towboat Co., today complained to the district attorney that George and Herbert Klinder had beaten and attempted to kill him and his son after an argument in a roadhouse where the women companions of the men engaged in a hair-pulling contest.

SENATE GROUP FINDS MAN WHO KNEW SHEARER BEFORE 1927

1927, after the conference was over. It was about this time that Shearer was getting aggressive with the shipbuilders as a result of the failure of the conference.

"Shocking" Letter Described.

What was described by Senator Allen, of Kansas, as a "shocking" letter was written by Shearer to Wakeman in January of 1928. In this letter Shearer took credit for wrecking the conference and told Wakeman that as a result of his activities before the Sixty-ninth Congress eight cruisers had been authorized and as a result of his activities at Geneva there was at the present time before Congress a 71-cruiser bill.

"As stated by you and agreed by your group," Shearer wrote Wakeman, "I am to receive at the rate of $25,000 a year as a reward, a bonus, for money earned as the results of the naval preparedness campaign, which benefits and in reality saves the shipbuilding industry. The fixing of the time limit on the naval building program to five years to lay down and eight years to complete, establishes the period of our understanding to the length of the naval program of eight years at $25,000 a year, or an aggregate of $200,000 due me from the result of my endeavors in the interests of the shipbuilding industry.

"The amount of $200,000 to be divided by and between the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Co., 25 Broadway, New York City; the Newport News Shipbuilding Co., 233 Broadway, New York City, and the Brown-Boveri Shipbuilding Co., Camden, N. J."

First Step in Case, Claim.

It is the shipbuilders' contention that this was Shearer's first step in the building up of his case against them for $350,000 which was filed recently in New York.

Wakeman, in replying to this letter, simply said that Shearer's Geneva employment had been disapproved by his superiors and that his services were terminated.

Senator Allen could not understand why Wakeman had not challenged Shearer's statements. Wakeman replied that his answer had been dictated by counsel.

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, returned to his effort to learn why the shipbuilders had agreed to pay Shearer $8,000 each to go to Geneva as an observer and then had not read his reports. Wakeman said he read five out of twelve. His explanation was that the first reports were so "disgusting" that he concluded he had made a bad investment, but still clung to the belief that when Shearer returned he might be able to "get something of a definite nature out of him."

All Against Limitation.

Senator Robinson observed that the fact was inescapable that the reports which Shearer did make "are violent and subversive arguments against the limitation of naval armaments."

There was one entitled or so labeled in the files of the Bethlehem corporation: 'Marine Follies—Glorifying the dance of death inspired by fanatics who worship self-inflicted torture."

"Why didn't you do something to stop him?" Robinson asked.

"We should have done something," Wakeman replied. "I had in my mind that when he came back I might get something from him."

He suggested to Senator Allen that it was absurd to think that one man could wreck a conference or that the shipbuilders had so thought.

Hiring Also Called Absurd.

"None of this was so absurd," Allen said, "as the employment of this man at $25,000 for the purpose you say he was employed."

"I'll agree to that," replied Wakeman.

Ferguson's appearance came at the afternoon session and was not concluded. He told the committee very frankly that his firm was vitally interested in naval limitations conferences and cited his experience at the Washington conference in justification. Two battle cruisers and one battleship for which his firm had contracts were scrapped by that conference, he recalled.

In fact, he had suggested to H. E. Huntington, then chairman of the Newport's board, that he would go to Geneva himself if the latter thought it necessary.

Allen Speaks in Apt Terms.

The hearing was featured by the apt terms which Senator Allen introduced. He asked Wakeman if his employment of Shearer to go to Geneva was "languid or poignant."

"I would say it was languid," Wakeman said.

Already there is talk of launching another investigation to go into the $142,000 shipbuilders' expenditure in connection with the Jones-White merchant marine act. Senator Borah is understood to be prepared to offer a resolution to this end. The present subcommittee would probably never get to it.

The investigation has developed so far that two of the three shipbuilding companies which employed Shearer did not pay him by check. The Bethlehem Corporation paid him from its "petty cash" box, and according to Ferguson, the Newport News firm paid him from its "merchant marine promotion fund." The payments do not appear on the books of either company.

PANTAGES MURDER TRIAL NEARS CLOSE

Fate of Theater Magnate's Wife to Rest With Jury Today.

DEFENSE IN LAST PLEA

Los Angeles, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Prospects that the case of Mrs. Lois Pantages, charged with second-degree murder in connection with the death of Juro Rokumoto as the result of an automobile collision, would go to the jury tomorrow, became a certainty as court adjourned late today after a four-hour plea by Max Steur, New York, attorney for the defense.

Steuer expects to finish his closing statement tomorrow morning. The courtroom was packed as the New Yorker made his final effort in behalf of the wealthy theater magnate's wife, whom the State accuses of driving her automobile into Rokumoto's car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Steuer's closing address began shortly after court opened. W. I. Gilbert started the defense action with a charge that the prosecution was not "honest and sincere" in its presentation of the case. He appealed to the jury to consider with care the question of a "reasonable doubt" concerning the guilt of Mrs. Pantages.

As his argument progressed his voice rose to a shout. "You are not trying Mrs. Pantages for driving while drunk," he reminded the jury. He told the jury that the defendant was being "persecuted" by the State "because she is a woman of wealth."

Dr. Donald Cass, who operated on Rokumoto, a Japanese, and Harry Lederbrink, another State witness who testified that Mrs. Pantages had used vile language in addressing him shortly before the fatal accident, were the chief victims of Steuer's attack, as he attempted to break down the prosecution evidence.

"Nobody in this case has been more guilty of more gross deception than Dr. Cass," he said. Lederbrink's testimony he called "absurd" and "a garbled mess."

Following the completion of Steuer's arguments tomorrow, James Costello, deputy district attorney, will close the case for the State. Superior Judge Carlos Hardy will then read his instructions to the jury.

New Lithuania Cabinet Is Officially Approved

Berlin, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—An official Lithuanian telegraph agency dispatch from Kovno tonight announced that the cabinet formed by Jonas Tubelis had been submitted to President Smetona and approved. Prof. Augustine Waldemaras was reported to have reiterated his determination to refuse any post, but the foreign portfolio was left open.

For the present Tubelis will take both finance and foreign ministries. All of the old cabinet was retained except M. Valeisces, who was named minister of communications. At the time of the resignation the cabinet led by Waldemaras, three years ago, with the support of the army, had sent parliament home. Observers here predicted a return to parliamentary government in Lithuania.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

"THE Geneva Conference Wreckers, or Death to Those Who Would Get in the Way of Our Next Conference," a drama in three acts, presented by the Senate subcommittee.

Cast: Senators Shortridge, Robinson and Allen, the Shipbuilders and William B. Shearer. Stage effects by Jim Preston.

After three days of rehearsals, it is now quite apparent that this show should not be sent on the road without considerable working over, and probably not even then. The authors of the play, President Hoover and Senator Borah, are not at fault.

Representing as it does, the first time they have ever cooperated on anything, they may well take pride in their handiwork.

• • • •

BUT the technicians have ruined it. There is no doubt of that.

It may be that the story did not lend itself to stage adaptation in the first place. Or it may be in bad technical hands. There is one thing sure and certain, however, and that is if it is not improved it will be able to count its audience on the fingers of one hand.

Senator Shortridge, as the solemn magistrate, has acted well in a very difficult role. So good is he, in fact, that the first day he entered the committee room with his hands speared before him, half the audience involuntarily rose. And it is not that the senator has weakened in his portrayal that the audience has not done this since. It is simply that the play is too long drawn out.

There were big laughs the first day in nearly everything Shortridge did, his persuasive gestures, the sweep and twist of his hands, to say nothing of the sweep and twist of the questions he asked, questions that wended way out through the committee room and back to hit the witness in the face—but these do not get the same response from the audience now.

• • • •

THE play could undoubtedly be shortened considerably to get a quicker climax. For example, instead of having Charles M. Schwab, Eugene G. Grace, S. W. Wakeman, Homer L. Ferguson and C. L. Bardo appear day after day, intoning their admission that they had acted very unwisely in employing Shearer, why couldn't there be just one parade across the stage of a bunch of shipbuilders singing: "Oh, We Are Crazy; Oh, We Are Crezy; Crazy Shipbuilders Is What We Are."

The play is without any music anyhow, and music it could easily use. Now this one sketch of the shipbuilders would take the place of all that has transpired the past three days. Then the comedy parts of Senators Shortridge and Allen would stand out better. As it is now they are lost in the meaningless repetition of shipbuilders' laments.

And Senator Allen deserves more prominence. It is not right that his work should be snowed under as it is. There is a man who is due to make his mark. With just a little of fair weather he'll land on Broadway.

82 SEE FLORENCE TRUMBULL MARRIED TO JOHN COOLIDGE

scores along Main stret and Farmington avenue to catch a glimpse of the wedding party as it was whisked to and from the church.

The former President and Mrs. Coolidge arrived at the church shortly before the ceremony began. They had reached the Trumbull home a few minutes before, coming by motor from Northampton. Their late arrival was explained by Coolidge's desire "not to be around too long before the ceremony."

As Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge alighted from their car in front of the church, the crowd which had gathered at the curb broke through the State troopers' line and swarmed onto the churchyard lawn, cheering lustily.

The troopers, proceeding gently to push back a throng which contained so many women who had brought young children to the scene, found cries of "Shame on you!" as effective a weapon as any, but hardly had got the sward cleared again when Gov. Trumbull arrived with the bride-to-be.

Again the multitude burst its bounds and there were more handclaps and murmurs of applause, but the onlookers retreated good naturedly as Miss Trumbull and her father entered the church to the last peals of wedding bells rung by A. H. Dresser, 85, who has been the sexton of the church since the middle seventies.

The simple Congregational wedding service and a single ring ceremony made John Coolidge and Florence Trumbull husband and wife. The marriage took place at 4 p. m. in the Congregational Church in the presence of only 82 guests, limited to that small number in response to the wishes of the bride and groom.

Two ministers officiated at the nuptials. The wedding vows were read by the Rev. Kenneth Welles, of Albany, N. Y., former pastor of the Congregational Church at Northampton, where former President Coolidge makes his home. The Rev. J. Roy Wilkerson, pastor of the Plainville Congregational Church, read the preliminary service, consisting of the vows of the church and the announcement. As the strains of the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," played on the pipe organ by Prof. William Chammond, of Mount Holyoke College, sounded through the yellow flower-decked church, the bridal party made its appearance and marched slowly down the left aisle.

First came the four bridal attendants, followed by Miss Jean Trumbull, who attended her sister as maid of honor. Then came the bride on the arm of her father.

Bridegroom Enters From Right.

John Coolidge, accompanied by his best man, Stephan Brown, of Northampton, entered the church from the right and awaited the procession at the chancel steps. There he joined his bride and they stepped forward together as the Rev. Mr. Wilkerson read the preliminary wedding service.

A hush stole over the little church as the Rev. Mr. Welles began the actual wedding ceremony which united the bridal pair. "For better, for worse, for richer, for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do you part."

The word "obey" was not used in the ceremony.

John Coolidge then took the engraved platinum wedding ring from his best man and placed it on the finger of his bride, next to the engagement ring with its thirteen diamonds which she has worn for several weeks.

Mount Holyoke Song Used.

Throughout the ceremony the vesper song of Mount Holyoke College, adapted from an old Connecticut air, was played as an obligato. Then came the benediction, which completed the services; and the wedding party began the recessional to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

As the bridal party emerged from the church Mrs. Coolidge smilingly paused to pose for the photographers, and then, saying "That's all!" entered the waiting limousine. John, whose mein was more sober, turned after climbing into the car and smiled genially at the crowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge sr. added to the merriment of the occasion as they came out of the church, and the former President waved his hat and Mrs. Coolidge her handkerchief as they drove away.

400 Guests at Reception.

Their motor cars sped the party briskly along the patroled street to the home of the bride's father on Farmington avenue, where 400 guests awaited them for the wedding reception.

At the reception, the former President, relaxing somewhat from his usual silence, smiled and chatted with members of the Trumbull family and guests. He wore a black cutaway coat and striped trousers, and had a white gardenia in his buttonhole.

Mrs. Coolidge was constantly surrounded by friends and well wishers. Both she and her husband seemed to enjoy the festivity surrounding their son's marriage.

The bride wore at the wedding ceremony and the reception a gown of old ivory satin, designed in the long lines of the princess silhouette. Her veil of old ivory tulle was draped softly over her blonde hair, ornamented with duchess lace, falling in panel effect almost the length of her gown. The lace was lent her for the wedding by Mrs. Coolidge. Her slippers were of ivory satin.

Reception Held on Lawn.

The sunshine which marked the day, in contrast to the weather man's prediction of showers, made it possible to hold the reception on the extensive grounds of the estate as had been planned. A great marquee was erected on the lawn, where the guests were served with the hors d'oeuvres, pastries and ugar-coated roses filled with mousse prepared by a New England caterer.

The son of the former President and his bride received their guests in the sunken garden near the house.

Police Guard Grounds.

Everywhere were lines of blue-coated policemen, augmented by 50 State troopers—half the Connecticut force—called out to direct traffic and insure the privacy of the wedding party against the crowds.

Wedding presents for the bridal pair filled an upper floor of the Trumbull mansion. A mahogany bedroom suite was a gift from the bridegroom's parents, and a dining room suite of similar material and a set of ivory-finished furniture for a dining alcove were presents from the father and mother of the bride.

Mrs. Coolidge Gives Son Check.

Mrs. Coolidge also gave her son a check for $250 paid to her by a magazine for a poem, "The Open Door," inspired by the fifth anniversary of the death of her other boy, Calvin, jr., and asked John to use it "for something in the new home in some way that his brother might have chosen if he were here."

Many pieces of china, in wedgewood and lenox patterns selected to harmonize with the mahogany furniture, were among the presents. There was also a blue and yellow Chinese rug, several Oriental rugs, six silver goblets, many vases, pieces of pewter and articles of antique table silver.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were pictures of the bridal party in silver frames. John Coolidge gave his best man and ushers leather tie cases.

Honeymoon plans have not been revealed. It is known that they contemplate a tour of New England, apparently by motor car, which will embrace a visit at Plymouth, Vt., former President Coolidge's boyhood home, and perhaps a sojourn at the camp in Maine, where the Trumbull family has frequently summered.

B. R. BUCK TO FACE GRAND JURY ACTION

Head of Brokerage Firm Bonded on Charge of Embezzlement.

OTHER CHARGES HINTED

Benjamin R. Buck, head of Buck & Co., local stock brokerage establishment, was ordered held for action of the United States grand jury following a preliminary hearing yesterday before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on a charge of embezzlement growing out of a stock transaction. Bond was fixed at $10,000, the same as that assessed and on which he has been at liberty since his arrest on the evening of September 11.

Efforts of Harry Barger, attorney for Buck, to have the bond reduced to $5,000 met with failure, after Assistant U. S. Attorney William A. Gallagher objected.

In sustaining the prosecutor's objections, Commissioner Turnage said: "Certain information I have causes me to leave the bond where it is. It might save the defendant from having to make an additional bond at an early date."

Hints at Other Charges.

Immediately after the hearing, Gallagher announced that the charge on which Buck was arrested and other charges against him would be presented to the grand jury later this week. Gallagher refused to divulge the names of the complaints in the other charges.

Although the number of persons present at the hearing was so large that Commissioner Turnage was forced to move the hearing from his office in the Pendall building to one of the courtrooms in the District Supreme Court building, only one witness testified. The lone witness was Z. Asbury Gill, of Rehoboth Church, Va., the man who swore out the warrant on which Buck was arrested. The defense offered no testimony.

Gill related his connection with Buck & Co., stating that his transactions dated from last spring until September 7, last, when he placed his last order. He declared that he put up margin for stock transactions and that the company bought and sold on his order. He amplified the statement by saying, "I tried to tell them when to sell, but they did not. That was what was wrong."

Tells About Letter.

In response to questioning by Prosecutor Gallagher, Gill stated that he communicated with the brokerage office by telephone, mail and in person and that he usually talked with a Mr. Williams or a Mr. Drain. He stated that letters received from the company were usually sighed only Buck & Co., but that he received one personal letter from Buck in which he was advised that the broker had private information on a certain stock that would rise and that he could get in on the transaction by forwarding $1,500. Defense Attorney Barger objected to the testimony concerning the letter.

Gill identified balance sheets of Buck & Co., as relating to his account, and declared that on August 16 he went to the company's offices and after receiving the sheets told a young woman employe that he wanted $5,000 in cash and that he would leave the balance at 9 per cent interest. "She promised to pay me 9 per cent on my credit balance of $3,400," Gill testified. He declared that the young woman told him that the money would be sent to him in a few days, as it had to come from New York.

Did Not Receive Money.

The witness testified that he did not receive the money and after waiting four or five days telephoned to the company and that Mr. Williams, to whom he talked, put him off for a couple of days. He declared that he phoned again, was put off, and that he continued to telephone. Finally, he said, he was told there had been some trouble and that Buck and Drain had gone to New York. Williams, Gill said, stated that Drain upon his return would call at his house and make settlement.

Gill testified that Drain did not call and that when he telephoned again was advised that Drain had gone to Lynchburg. A later telephone conversation, Gill testified, revealed that Drain's automobile had broken down and that he had returned from Lynchburg to Washington by train.

"They told me to come up," Gill stated. "But about that time I became uneasy, and I made inquiries through my bank." Efforts of Gill to explain that an article in a Richmond paper had made him uneasy was ruled inadmissible.

Gill testified that he came to Washington on September 11, the date on which he swore to the warrant. Prior to obtaining the warrant, he said, he went to Buck & Co. and Williams referred him to the company's lawyer, Attorney Barger. In answer to questions by Prosecutor Gallagher, Gill declared that he received "no penny" of his money. In answer to further questions he stated that Williams did the actual executive work for Buck & Co., but that he had been advised that Buck was in the business by himself.

Had Lost $2,000.

Gill testified that he sent Buck & Co. a check for $5,000 on July 6 last; a check for $1,500 on July 11 for which Montgomery Ward stock was to be purchased, and a check for an additional $500 on August 5. He testified that prior to July 6 he had lost $2,000 in a stock transaction through the company and that he had been advised that if he would reopen his account he would be given a credit allowance of $17 a share on the stock he purchased.

The witness testified that he put in a straight buy order for American Tobacco Stock, but that although he went to the brokerage office to get his stock he did not obtain it.

Defense Attorney Barger on cross-examination drew from Gill an admission that he had called at the Better Business Bureau of Washington and that while there he had met C. V. Werne, a representative of a Richmond organization. Gill admitted that he acted on advice of officials of the Better Business Bureau, but was not asked what action was taken.

Democrats, and Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, led the opposition to the Senate amendments.

Blaine argued that the House provisions would bring American ship owners to the realization that Americans not orientals, should be employed for crews. Ship owners today insist on employing cheap oriental labor, he said, adding that Chinese were inclined to refuse to divulge any information in cases involving violations of the smuggling laws.

Among the amendments adopted was one exempting owners of vessels from liability in cases involving falsity or lack of manifest or merchandise other than opium. Another is aimed to speed up entry at customs where the original bill of lading is not produced.

When the Senate recessed it was in the midst of an argument over the committee amendments to prohibit the entry of articles made abroad on which American trade-marks or patents are held.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, speaking for the amendments, called attention to the closing down in this country and the opening up in Ireland of a Ford plant to produce tractors, and argued this work should be reserved for American labor in the United States.

It would be unfortunate, he said, if other plants followed the Ford example. Some already were doing so, he added, mentioning the General Motors factory in Germany.

Amendment Is Opposed.

Senators George (Georgia) and Barkley (Kentucky), Democrats, argued that the trade-mark amendment, sponsored by organized labor, would accomplish nothing, since articles could be brought in unmarked and then branded upon entry.

The proposed prohibition, George said, would destroy the longstanding public policy relating to the granting of patents and trade-marks. Under reciprocal agreements, he said, Americans had the same right to produce aboard articles trade-marked or patents here and ship them back as foreigners enjoyed in this country.

Ultimately, he argued, the restriction would result in a "restraint of international commerce, and actual harm to the American consumer, American labor, and the American manufacturer."

Simmons Flies Objection.

The proposed reorganization of the Tariff Commission and the committee plan t oauthorize the commission to convert all ad valorem duties in the bill into rates based on United States instead of foreign values and report to Congress by January 1, 1932, were reached during the day's debate, but Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, objected to their immediate consideration.

He served notice, however, that at the proper time he would move to strike out the flexible clause authorizing the President to change customs duties.

The Senate convened yesterday an hour earlier than usual and unanimous consent for hte lengthier session today was obtained.

guest at a formal supper at the embassy and will spend his first night there.

There will be an official White House dinner for MacDonald, who also will be the honor guest at a dinner by the Secretary of State and a dinner and reception at the British Embassy. A visit to the Senate and other formal functions will cut heavily into the time of the British statesman, but he and the President will have full opportunity to carry on their discussions.

After these have been concluded, it is anticipated that rapid strides will be made in preparing the ways for the gathering of the five principal naval powers at London. There is the possibility that the convening of the parley will be delayed beyond the latter part of January, which was tentatively proposed after the idea of a meeting in December had been abandoned.

huge wave and then the sea, lashed for days by strong northeast winds, overwhelmed her. She began to go to pieces almost immediately.

The coast guardsmen, unable to launch their lifeboats in the wild surf, resorted to the use of the Lyle lifeline, and the breeches buoy which is a part of the life-saving outfit.

When the line, shot with remarkable accuracy from the shore, fell across the deck of the helpless craft, it was seized by eager hands and made fast to the forward mast of the Gerhard. Then the breeches buoy or basket, was shot out to the ship.

Mrs. Ethel Adehard, wife of First Mate Adehard, was first to come ashore in the basket. The life line sagged considerably and several of those who took the ride in the basket were dragged through the sea for several feet.

CROWD AT INQUEST ATTACKS PRISONER

dozen persons and attacked Myer Epstein, 35, confessed driver of the death car. There followed a rush of most of the more than 400 spectators, some bent on wreaking vengeance and other making an effort to separate the two men. Carroll, as he lunged forward, dealt Epstein a blow above the right eye that left its mark. Epstein sprang from his chair next to his counsel and let go, a right-hand blow to Carroll's face.

Instantly a mob began to surge to one end of the city assembly hall, where the inquest was held. Fists went flying and Epstein was shoved into one corner of the hall, striking his head against the wall.

Ten policemen with the aid of two State patrolmen finally subdued the crowd, among whom were many screaming women. Three policemen overpowered Carroll only after a tussle, in which he struck Patrolman Collins and tore a button from his coat.

Earlier in the day reports were circulated about the city that a "gang would get" Epstein, and it was believed by some that Carroll's action was the signal for a general attack.

The trouble occurred just after the jury retired to an anteroom to deliberate. In five minutes the members returned a verdict asserting Carroll came to his death in an automobile crash in which the car was driven by Epstein.

In the meantime James Carroll was locked in police headquarters, where he was held more than an hour before Police Justice Louis M. Hopkins, acting coroner, found State's Attorney A. Theodore Brady, who ordered Carroll's release until tomorrow morning, when, he said, he would consider the case.

After a dozen witnesses had linked Epstein with the tragedy, Epstein signed a dictated confession declaring he drove the car, but that he was drunk and did not remember having struck anything.

Witnesses testified that the machine was traveling in excess of 50 miles an hour when Carroll, who was roller skating on the bridge, was killed.

Epstein later was recommitted to the county jail without bail for action of the grand jury.

to favor any reasonable restriction that will not prevent the printing of legitimate news. Mr. Rover's suggestions will be carefully considered by our committee, and I believe some legislation can be worked out that will be effective to stop the operations of professional gamblers without interfering with the legitimate freedom of the press. On this phase of law enforcement, I shall also ask Mr. Bride to work with Mr. Rover, so specific bills can be introduced and promptly considered by our committee.

Usury on Loans.

"The existing condition mentioned by Mr. Rover with reference to usury in the making of loans, large and small, is one that can and no doubt will be considered by our subcommittee working under authorization of the Brookhart resolution on real estate practices in the District. It should be possible to borrow money at legal rates, either on real estate, personal property, or so-called 'character loans,' and the laws against usury should be strengthened and strictly enforced. In the case of character or unsecured loans, if it is demonstrated that the present law does not allow a sufficient legal rate of interest, I have no doubt Congress will amend the law to allow a fair return. But the extortion now practiced on the people of the District must, and I am confident will be, stopped.

"Mr. Rover has made some very helpful recommendations, which I am confident will bear fruit in the passage of legislation after the pending tariff bill has been disposed of. There should be no difficulty in securing Congressional action to end the operations of bucket-shop operators, security swindlers, professional gamblers, and others of that kind who prey upon honest people in the District of Columbia."

MARINE BECOMES BARONET IN BRITAIN

Fulque found that, lacking an adequate outside income, he could not carry on with his regiment and resigned his commission.

The next epoch of importance in the career of this adventurous youth was a trip to America in a 130-foot yacht. He and five companions, who were with him on the trip, sold the boat after landing on United States soil and set out for Mexico, where they roamed until 1924. Agnew decided to stay in America and went to California.

With his funds running low, he enlisted in the United States Cavalry and was stationed at Monterey. Being fond of horses, he said he thoroughly enjoyed his cavalry days in the U. S. Army.

He was discharged from the Army in 1927, and was about to return to England when the disturbed conditions in China turned the eyes of the world in that direction. He enlisted in the United States Marine Corps. His first assignment was to the headquarters of the 3d Brigade, under the command of Brig. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, with station at Tientsin. While there, Agnew served in the Brigade Intelligence Corps.

When the 3d Brigade was withdrawn from Tientsin, Agnew, who was then a private, was transferred to the 4th Regiment at Shanghai and was kept in the Intelligence Service. Several months ago he was promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Last year, Agnew's uncle, Sir Andrew Agnew, died in England, leaving him heir to the estates of Lochnaw, Scotland, but throughout the time that followed until the young man's discharge recently, there was no hint that a member of the 4th Regiment was holding the title of a baronetcy created in 1629.

There was a reason, however, for the baronet's silence. There were several legal formalities to be completed before he came into his estate and it was not until July of this year that he was able to apply to Marine Corps headquarters at Washington for his discharge. When his application reached Washington, prompt action was taken, and his discharge was received here early in August.

The plans for Sir Fulque as to his future have not taken definite form. He is still fond of the services and the far regions of the earth and his friends among the Leathernecks believe that this fondness will more or less influence the rest of his life.

CURRENT EVENTS IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND

REZONING DECISION IS EXPECTED TODAY

Montgomery County Chiefs to Announce Verdict on Petitions.

ROAD WORK BIDS READY

Decision in the three petitions for rezoning of properties at Halpine probably will be made public today by the Montgomery County Commissioners at their meeting in Rockville. A report on certain legal aspects will be rendered today by Capt. Joseph C. Cissel, counsel to the county commissioners.

The commissioners postponed decision last Tuesday in order to permit Capt. Cissel to study the question of whether it is necessary for the actual owner of a property to apply for rezoning or whether a person or corporation which has obtained an option on the property has the right to make such an application. Only one of the properties was involved in this question but the commissioners decided to withhold decision in all three until today.

Opposition to Change.

A public hearing held at the county building in Bethesda two weeks ago developed determined opposition to the change in zoning from residents along the Rockville Pike, who claimed that this is the first step toward commercialization of one of the finest residential boulevards in the country. Eventually, the entire pike will be an industrial center if the petitions are allowed to become the opening wedge, residents declared.

One petition has been filed by Congressional Airport, Inc., and asks that the 300-foot frontage of the airport be zoned commercial in order that an administration building and gasoline station can be erected nearer the roadway. The present zoning makes it imperative to conduct all commercial activities 300 feet from the roadway and this is regarded a hardship by the aviation company.

A second petition asks for rezoning of property on Viers Mill road to permit construction of a distribution center for gas in tubes to be sold for home consumption in sections where the usual gas lines do not operate. This application was filed by T. H. Lenovitz, who has an option on the propery involved. It is in this case that legal counsel has been asked by the county commissioners.

May Be Airplane Factory.

The third petition is for the rezoning of another parcel formerly occupied by the International Shoe Heel Corporation as a factory site. Frank L. Hewitt, who made the application, declared that he was surprised to find that the property was zoned residential inasmuch as it had been occupied by an industry. It is understood that this property is desired as an airplane factory.

All three applications have been disapproved by the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission and has come before the board of county commissioners acting as a board of zoning appeals.

Bids for construction work on several roads and streets in the Bethesda area will be opened at the meeting of the county commissioners today. These projects are in line with the general road and street improvements being made in that section.

The work on which bids will be submitted includes construction of concrete sidewalks, curb and gutter on Wisconsin avenue and Bradley boulevard to Davidson drive, Chevy Chase; sidewalks, curbs and gutters on Montgomery avenue, from Wisconsin avenue to Cloverdale street, Highland Park; a concrete sidewalk on the west side of Wisconsin avenue from Watkins avenue to Leland street and the grading and construction of a concrete roadway, curb and gutter on Chevy Chase boulevard, a main thoroughfare of Chevy Chase.

Robbery of the Ruppert Nursery at White Oak was reported yesterday to police of the Silver Spring substation. Twenty-five small and two large evergreens were taken, valued at $35.

Second Trial of Man Held as Slayer to Open

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 23.—Judge John W. Fishburne will go to Standardsville tomorrow to preside at the second trial of Albert McDaniel, charged with the murder of Lawrence C. Berry, on October 21 last year. After several continuances the case came up at the July term of the Greene County Circuit Court and resulted in a mistrial.

The shooting occurred following a drinking party in the woods near the McDaniel home. Lawrence Berry, the defense claims, made derogatory remarks concerning McDaniel's family, whereupon McDaniel went to his home, secured a gun and shot down Berry at the scene of the party.

CAR 'LOUD SPEAKER' BANNED IN VIRGINIA

Autoists Are Warned of Use of New Exhaust Cut-Out Devices.

HEAVY FINE IS PENALTY

Richmond, Va., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—A warning against the use of "loud speakers" on automobiles used on Virginia highways has been issued here by James M. Hayes, who has warned both drivers and dealers that the device is not permissible under the motor vehicle laws he is charged with administering.

The "loud speaker" acts somewhat as a glorified cutout, the exhaust going through an enlarged pipe which points downward at the end. The law provides, Mr. Hayes says, that all automobiles in Virginia must be equipped with mufflers in good condition and in constant use. Also, he says, the law stipulates that all pipes carrying engine exhausts on automobiles must be parallel with the ground and straight or slightly turned up at the ends.

The "loud speaker" fails to serve as a muffler and is so constructed that the exhaust is deflected to the ground, thereby causing inconvenience to motorists on both paved highways and dirt roads by stirring up dust and blowing particles of trash into the air.

Mr. Hayes said that State police officers have been asked to apprehend persons using "loud speakers" on automobiles and to confiscate the device. One such device is now on exhibition in the motor vehicle department.

The motor vehicle commissioner also has in his collection a number of 1928 Virginia automobile licenses which have been repainted in 1929 colors in an effort to avoid the purchase of a new license plate. The majority of these tags show rather crude attempts to evade the law, but a number of them were so carefully painted that a close inspection was needed. Automobile owners resorting to such practices are liable to a heavy fine.

VIRGINIA DISCUSSES GAS TAX DIVISION

Richmond Meeting Called for October 9 to Work Out Problem.

NEW BASIS IS SOUGHT

Richmond, Va., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The legislative commission seeking to devise a new method for the distribution to the counties of their share of the gasoline tax will meet in Richmond October 9 to continue its work. No definite action was agreed upon at the meeting held here several days ago and the second meeting of the commission is being watched with interest in every section of Virginia.

The gasoline tax is an item of great importance to the countries. Under the new law, whereby the State no longer taxes real estate, a new basis for distribution of the gasoline tax must be found. Formerly the taxes on real estate, paid to the State by the localities, furnished one of the elements that went to form the basis for gasoline tax distribution.

The question at issue has been discussed with the State Highway Commission.

State Senator Saxon W. Holt, of Newport News, is chairman of the commission, and R. L. Jeffreys, delegate from Mecklenburg, is secretary. Other members are State Senators A. E. Shumate, of Giles, and W. O. Rogers, of Sussex, and Delegates George A. Bowles, of Goochland; George P. Lyon, of Carolina, and E. T. Humphries, of Norfolk County.

The committee will report its findings to the General Assembly meeting this winter.

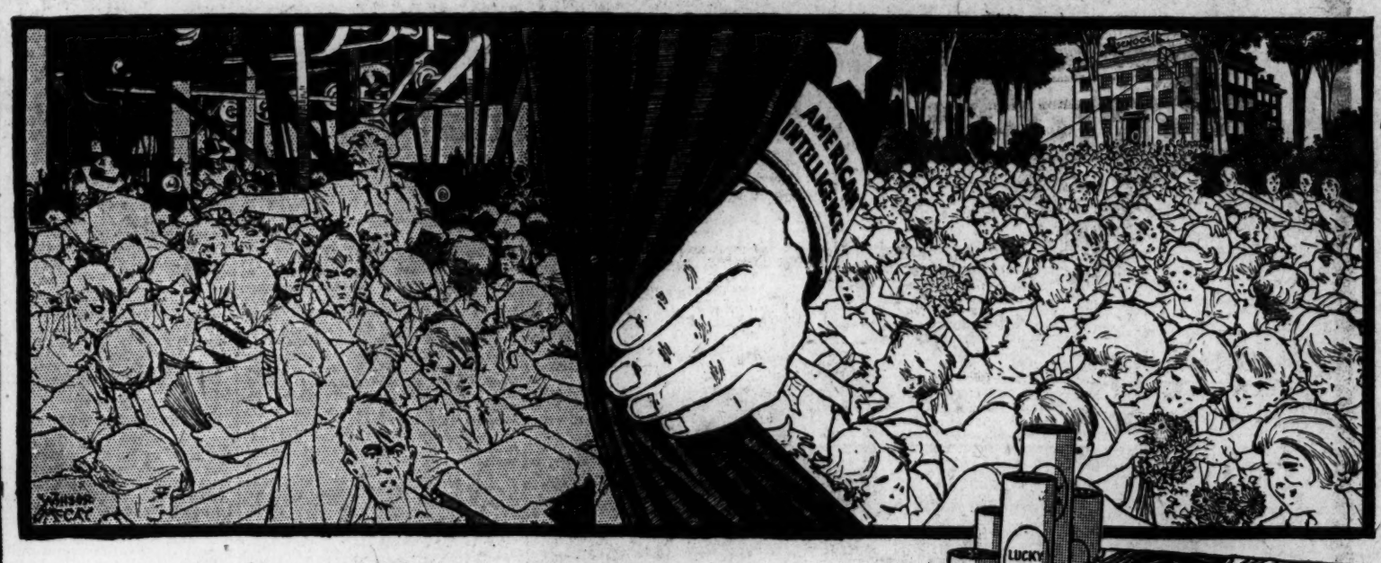
That Brutal Overseer Roasts in Hades!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Wise legislation has halted the ancient prejudice that dictated the exploitation of child labor for selfish gain. Guided by AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE it has routed greed. No longer are little children forced into slavery.



"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

POLLARD FAVORS BETTER SCHOOLS

Candidate Speaks in Orange Courthouse Before Big Audience.

ANSWERS HIS OPPONENT

Special to The Washington Post.

Orange, Va., Sept. 23.—Speaking at the courthouse here today before an audience which crowded the building to capacity, Dr. John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for governor, in an address of little more than an hour, said that if elected he would give his best efforts toward such measures as would benefit the children of the State, on whom he said, depends Virginia's future progress.

Pointing out that Virginia's public schools are a paying institution, Dr. Pollard said the day has come when children can and must be given equal educational advantages. He promised to appoint a board of education regardless of political considerations, on which there will be business men as well as professional men.

"The children of Virginia," he continued, "deserve the best and I rejoice that the day has come when we can and must give them, even in our poorest counties, the very highest type of instruction.

Urges Fund to Aid Children.

He stated that he would advocate that an appropriation be made for the care in individual homes of children deprived of a father's support through death or otherwise, where they might be brought up under their mother's guidance instead of having to be sent to institutions as at present.

Commenting on the platforms of his opponent, the Coalition candidate, Dr. Pollard said that the tax cut of one-half cent on gasoline, which his opponent stands for, based on the present road building program, meant a saving in tax to the car owner of approximately one cent day and would mean a reduction in the present road building plan of $1,000,000 a year, that the substantial reduction in the automobile license tax, also advocated by his opponent, would mean at least another $1,000,000 from the road building program.

Answers Election Law Charge.

Dr. Pollard spoke briefly on Virginia's election laws, which Dr. William M. Brown in all of his addresses has denounced as corrupt, and citing excerpts from a speech delivered by Dr. Pollard sixteen years ago when he was a candidate for attorney general of Virginia. Dr. Pollard said that his opponent, in ignorance or design, failed to mention that the election laws since then have been amended six times. In closing he said only two States in the Union rank above Virginia in industrial growth, that five States have sent commissions to Virginia to study her method of progress and that this growth had been under Democratic administration.

Dr. Pollard was introduced by George L. Browning, former delegate from Orange County, who referred to his record as a public officer and of his work during the World War.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was laughing, chuckling to herself.

"What strikes you so funny?" I asked, as she tried to suppress her mirth.

"Oh," said Luella, evasively, "I was just thinking—"

"No! Not that!"

"Yes," she confessed, "thinking—thinking of next summer."

At the time men were down cellar cleaning the furnace, preparatory to the winter siege. A bellowing blaze leaped in the fireplace.

"And you are thinking of next summer," I chided. "What brought about this stir of the imagination?"

* * * *

"AT last it was out. She had been reading of the first national men's dress reform parade. Next summer it seems, they are going to wear short pants, sleeveless shirts and no socks.

"What's strange about that?"

"Nothing," replied Luella, "only I can't help thinking how funny you'll look in short pants."

There 'twas. She was laughing at a thought of me in short pants. So I told her she should have seen me when I was a boy.

"But you're a boy no longer," she reminded.

"True! And I'm longer than I was when a boy—but listen, my pet! When shorter pants are made I'll wear 'em!"

"You will?" she asked, "and—and no socks?"

"And no socks"

"My!" exclaimed Luella. "I'm dying for next summer to come."

"SO am I. So's your old man. So are all men. Wish it were here now," I shouted, thinking of the coal bin, and the coal bill, and the cold wind. "I hate long pants. I hate long winters. I hate Long Beach, Calif., where this first national men's dress reform parade was held. Heavens! What a title! What a parade! What a world! What a life!"

"What a pity," cried Luella as she rushed to the phone, frantic.

"What're you doing?" I asked.

"Phoning for the doctor," she answered. "You're going out of your head."

"No," I assured her, calming her fears, "Only going out of long pants—but not until next year."

Over the radio came the strains of "The Last Rose of Summer."

* * * *

"PLEASE, please, shut that thing off, Luella," her father pleaded as he stood at the doorway. "Everywhere I go they're playing that tune—'The Last Throes of Summer.' We're in them now," he mused, shivering, sneezing, as he came over to warm himself by the fire.

"Wait till next summer and you get your short pants," taunted Luella.

"Short pants? Short pants?" queried the old man, "What're you talking about short pants for when I need an overcoat?"

To prevent further discussion of a painful subject, I inveigeled Dad into going down cellar with me—to see how the furnace men were progressing.

"Just so they don't shorten the glasses," smiled the old gent, after I'd explained the reform movement, "I think we'll get along all right." He gave a toast:

"Here's to short pants—and merry ones!"

TOUCHING TRIBUTE PAID TO MARSHALL

Jew and Gentile Unite in Honoring Dead Leader as Body Arrives.

MAYOR WALKER AT PIER

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Jew and Gentile paid tribute to Louis Marshall today when the body of the aged leader of American Jewry was brought home from Zurich, Switzerland.

Met at the pier by Mayor Walker, Police Commissioner Whalen and representatives of various Jewish organizations, a squadron of motorcycle police escorted the hearse to the Temple Emanuel, of which Mr. Marshall was president of the congregation.

Only a plain, wooden coffin, draped with an American flag, held the body. Its lid was not opened, but thousands of friends and followers of the late leader and philanthropist filed past his bier. Extra police were called out to direct the large crowd of mourners gathered outside the temple.

Mr. Marshall died September 11. He had gone to Switzerland to attend a conference which resulted in the establishment of the new Jewish Agency for Palestine, through which it is hoped to unite world Jewry, Zionist and non-Zionist, in carrying out the Jewish plan in Palestine.

His son, James Marshall, and a sister, Mrs. Abram Rosenberg, accompanied the body home.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow. There will be no eulogies, only the usual rabbincial service before the body is taken to the cemetery.

JURY CHOSEN TO TRY CRANE FOR MURDER

Former Major League Ball Player Faces Court for Girl's Slaying.

SECOND CHARGE WAITS

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The jury in the first trial of Samuel (Red) Crane, former major league baseball player, was selected late today to hear testimony in one of two murder cases growing out of a love triangle.

Crane has been indicted for the slaying of his erstwhile sweetheart, Miss Della Lyter, and his rival for the woman's affections, John D. Oren, dapper brick salesman. Separate trials were agreed on and the first, concerning the death of Miss Lyter, began at noon today.

President Judge Hargest of the Dauphin County court adjourned the session until tomorrow after the picking of the jury.

The State will contend that Crane entered a Harrisburg saloon on the night of August 3 with intent to kill Miss Lyter and shot her when he found her in a back room with Oren. The defense will claim that Crane, overwhelmed with grief at his losing courtship, went into the saloon drunk, and, seeing the woman there with his rival, shot her in a sudden fit of uncontrollable anger.

Oren was shot by Crane when he jumped up from a table where he was sitting with the woman and attempted to strike Crane with a ukelele which Oren was strumming to entertain the crowd in the room.

Louisville Ready For Legion Session

National Headquarters Go to Kentucky City for Meeting.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—National headquarters of the American Legion and the Legion Auxiliary moved to Louisville tonight and established offices in preparation for the gathering of World War veterans for the legion's eleventh national convention next week.

James F. Barton, national adjutant of the legion, and Mrs. Gwendolyn Wiggins Macdowell, the auxiliary's national secretary, accompanied by their staffs, came in a special car from Indianapolis, the legion's permanent headquarters.

The first delegates to the convention to arrive here came in six hours ahead of the national staff. They were five men from Massachusetts, headed by Dennis H. Haverty, State adjutant. Headquarters was established in a downtown hotel from which to conduct the campaign to take the 1930 meeting to Boston. Haverty said 1,500 more legionnaires will follow from the Bay State. The principal rival of Boston for the convention is Los Angeles, which is expected to send a big delegation.

Children

should be seen and not hurt

Ten thousand strangers on our streets today! Little strangers, filled with their new importance of "going to school for the first time," and strange to the laws of grown-up traffic and machines—yet close—very close—to our hearts.

They scarcely know, yet, that the boulevard is less sheltered than the backyard. They have never learned that there may be menace in a motor car. And for that reason we must protect them, as we would our own. As fellow-motorists, we must appoint ourselves as the guardians of these, Washington's youngest school children.

Nearly 30,000 children are attending classes in Washington this year. Yet, through the thorough safety work carried out by the Board of Education and the Police Department, with the assistance of the American Automobile Association which supplies the material, older pupils are learning the lessons of safety with the same regularity as their other courses.

1600 safety posters and 2400 graded safety lessons are distributed to 165 schools of the District of Columbia month by month by representatives of the A. A. A. Safety Department. In addition, these representatives visit the schools and present graphic demonstrations of traffic hazards and their avoidance.

Under the guidance of the A. A. A., 110 schools have adopted the famous schoolboy patrol system for the protection of students at congested crossings. And, as big brothers to all the school children, thirteen police officers have been appointed by the Superintendent of Police.

Safety, then, has become a living issue with our youth. And now we ask your help. We ask your indulgence for all school children as you drive—but most of all for the tiny strangers who are setting out across our crowded streets to learn their first great lesson in life—personal health and safety.

Though not empowered to regulate street traffic, this young patrol officer does guard the safety of his schoolmates at dangerous and congested crossings with care and conscientiousness. Not a single child was killed in Washington last year while these schoolboy patrolmen wer on duty. You may distinguish him and his patrolmates by his white Sam Browne belt and patrol badge.

Watch for, and observe, his signals. Since little lives are in his care, we ask that you be careful, too.

"The President is the general manager of the District and can do what he wills. Here he does not have to refer prohibition enforcement to a committee or a commission. It is clear to every one who is conversant with conditions that the prohibition laws can be enforced."

The comment of other senators on Howell's speech was based on their attitude toward the prohibition law or their political faith. Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, father of the eighteenth amendment, said enforcement of the dry law was improving all the time. Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, said the administration was "stalling" where prohibition was concerned, and Senator Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, said that President Hoover was in no position to question the statement of Senator Howell until he disclaims any knowledge of the Wickersham letter to Gov. Roosevelt of New York.

Blease Refuses Data.

Senator Blease said last night that he had no intention of giving the authorities any information about the location of four "narcotic joints" within a stone's throw of the Capitol.

Blease said that the narcotic agents already must know of the existence of these places and that it was up to them to raid them.

Blease's remarks about the peddling of narcotics here came during the debate on the tariff bill, and undoubtedly were inspired by the assertion of Senator Howell on Saturday that prohibition enforcement here is lax.

In the course of his talk yesterday, Senator Blease also criticized the grand jury, charging that it had failed to return an indictment in the latest Chinese murder here.

With new allegations that the laws of the United States are not being enforced in the District of Columbia, piling up on the floor of the Senate, District officials would like to hear a few facts.

The first knowledge Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, received of the latest charge, hurled by Senator Cole Blease, of South Carolina, yesterday, that "narcotic joints" are being operated "within two squares of Peace Monument," was when a reporter for The Post sought to learn the police official's reaction to the charge.

Pratt Wants Facts.

Pointing out that it would be necessary first to make a detailed study of the allegations and any other information available before he could be expected to comment at any length, Maj. Pratt dismissed not only the accusations of Senator Blease, but also those made by Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, on Saturday, by expressing an attitude reflecting that shown in the formal statement issued yesterday by President Hoover.

"If Senator Blease or any one else has any facts," he declared, "we would like to hear them so that we will have something to work on."

Maj. Pratt declined, however, to comment upon Blease's assertion that operation of "narcotic joints" in the District "is known to the people whose duty it is to stop them."

Maj. Proctor L. Dougherty, president of the Board of District Commissioners, expressed gratification over President Hoover's declaration that Howell's charges of Saturday "impugned the good faith and capacity" of Commissioner Dougherty, Maj. Pratt, District Attorney Leo A. Rover and Prohibition Agent William Blandford.

Asked whether the Commissioners had prepared any comment on the situation, Maj. Dougherty smiled and declared that "we haven't even discussed the charges."

Maj. Pratt scouted a report published yesterday afternoon to the effect that he, Maj. Dougherty and District Attorney Rover had arranged a conference for the purpose of discussing the senatorial allegations.

"I know of no such conference," he declared. "It's news to me."

WAR MOTHERS SET FOR PARLEY TODAY

Their Convention to Be First in Big, New Auditorium at Louisville.

LEGION MEETING LATER

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Mothers of men who served their country in war, including mothers of many who died on battle fields, tomorrow will open the first convention ever held in this city's new $2,000,000 Memorial Auditorium.

The auditorium was built in memory of soldiers and sailors from Kentucky and was dedicated to them a short time ago. It will be used first by the war mothers and then by the survivors of the war themselves, being the scene of the American Legion national convention next week.

Approximately 2,000 members of the American war mothers spent today in meetings and entertainments, preparatory to opening of the seventh annual convention tomorrow.

Mrs. Thomas Spence, of Milwaukee, national president, in a brief speech at a breakfast given in her honor by the Kentucky Department of the American Legion, expressed disapproval of "radical limitation of armaments."

War mothers, she said, are opposed to war and believe that military preparation is necessary not only to prevent war with other nations, but to safeguard this Nation from international influences which tend to disrupt morals and traditions.

Oakland, Calif., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Sir Gilbert Parker, English novelist, injured in an automobile accident in Carmel Highlands Saturday, is rapidly improving, it was reported at Merritt Hospital today.

THE new Packard Standard Eights offer important engineering advances and greatly enriched fittings and appointments. They are more beautiful, more convenient, more luxurious—than ever before.

These superb cars, outstanding in the fine car field, are now on display at our show rooms. We want you to see them—drive them and then compare them point by point with your ideal of what a truly fine car ought to be.

You will find that they differ from the costlier Packards only in size, power and degree of individuality available in color, upholstery and details of appointment. For the new Standard Eights are Packards through and through—distinguished, smooth and fleet.

Eleven Roomy and Luxurious Models

The new Packard Standard Eight line includes eleven beautiful body types. Prices at the factory range from $2375 for the popular Five-Passenger Sedan to $2775 for the Seven-Passenger Sedan-Limousine with wheelbase of 134½ inches.

All models embody the new Packard refinements and improvements such as inside, adjustable sun visors, adjustable driver's seat and steering gear, newly-perfected shatter-proof glass, dashboard lockers—and the improved powerplant with its four-speed transmission and still further refined Packard straight-eight engine.

Packard Transportation Costs No More

If you want a new Packard Standard Eight there is no reason why you should not have it. Operation and maintenance costs are not greater because first cost is more. Even if first cost is twice as much, final cost is no greater if the better car is driven twice as long.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

The Seven-Dials Mystery

By AGATHA CHRISTIE

THE STORY THUS FAR.

Gerry Wade is found dead in bed at Chimneys, scene of a house party. Seven out of eight alarm clocks placed in his room to awaken him are lined up on a mantel. The guests are told that death resulted from an overdose of sleeping powder. Jimmy Thesiger and Ronny Devereux motor to Gerry's home to tell a sister, Loraine, of Wade's death.

Lady Eileen Brent, known as "Bundle," finds a letter Wade had written to his sister making reference to the "Seven Dials." Bundle feels certain that Gerry was murdered. En route to London a man, mysteriously shot, staggers into the road in front of Eileen's car. It proves to be Devereux, who, dying, whispers: "Seven Dials . . . tell . . . Jimmy Thesiger."

At Jimmy's quarters Bundle finds Loraine. The three of them set out to trail the murderer. From Capt. Battle at Scotland Yard Bundle obtains a list of secret societies. That evening, with Bill Eversleigh, she visits the Seven Dials Club. There they find a doorman who formerly had been footman at Chimneys.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

"Tredwell, when did Alfred leave?"

"It would be about a month ago now, my lady."

"Why did he leave?"

"It was by his own wish, my lady. I believe he has gone to London. I was not dissatisfied with him in any way. I think you will find the new footman, John, very satisfactory. He seems to know his work and to be most anxious to give satisfaction.

Bower or "Bauer."

"Where did he come from?"

"He had excellent references, my lady. He had lived last with Lord Mount Vernon."

"I see," said Bundle thoughtfully.

She was remembering that Lord Mount Vernon was at present on a shooting trip in East Africa.

"What's his last name, Tredwell?"

"Bower, my lady."

Tredwell paused for a minute or two and then, seeing that Bundle had finished, he quietly left the room. Bundle remained lost in thought.

John had opened the door to her on her arrival that day, and she had taken particular notice of him without seeming to do so. Apparently, he was the perfect servant, well trained, with an expressionless face. He had, perhaps, a more soldierly bearing than most footmen and there was something a little odd about the shape of the back of his head.

But these details, as Bundle realized, were hardly relevant to the situation. She sat frowning down at the blotting paper in front of her. She had a pencil in her hand and was idly tracing the name Bower over and over again.

Suddenly an idea struck her and she stopped dead, staring at the word. Then she summoned Tredwell once more.

"Tredwell, how is the name Bower spelt?"

"B-a-u-e-r, my lady."

"That's not an English name."

"I believe he is of Swiss extraction, my lady."

"Oh! That's all Tredwell, thank you."

Swiss extraction? No. German! That martial carriage, that flat back to the head. And he had come to Chimneys a fortnight before Gerry Wade's death.

Bundle rose to her feet. She had done all she could here. Now to get on with things! She went in search of her father.

To See Aunt Marcia.

"I'm off again," she said. "I've got to go and see Aunt Marcia."

"Got to see Marcia?" Lord Caterham's voice was full of astonishment. "Poor child, how did you get let in for that?"

"Just for once," said Bundle, "I happen to be going of my own free will."

Lord Caterham looked at her in amazement. That any one could have a genuine desire to face his redoubtable sister-in-law was quite incomprehensible to him. Marcia, Marchioness of Caterham, the widow of his late brother, Henry, was a very prominent personality. Lord Caterham admitted that she had made Henry an admirable wife and that but for her in all probability he would never have held the office of secretary of state for foreign affairs. On the other hand, he had always looked upon Henry's early death as a merciful release.

It seemed to him that Bundle was foolishly putting her head into the lion's mouth.

"Oh! I say," he said. "You know, I shouldn't do that. You don't know what it may lead to."

"I know what I hope it's going to lead to," said Bundle. "I'm all right, father, don't worry about me."

Lord Caterham sighed and settled himself more comfortably in his chair. He went back to his perusal of the Field. But in a minute or two Bundle suddenly put her head in again.

"Sorry," she said. "But there's one other thing I wanted to ask you. What is Sir Oswald Coote?"

"I told you—a steam roller."

"I don't mean your personal impression of him. How did he make his money—trouser buttons or brass beds or what?

"Oh! I see. He's steel. Steel and iron. He's got the biggest steel works, or whatever you call it, in England. He doesn't, of course, run the show personally now. It's a company or companies. He got me in as a director or something or other. Very good business for me—nothing to do except go down to the city once or twice a year to one of those hotel places—Cannon street or Liverpool street—and sit round a table where they have very nice new blotting paper. Then Coote or some clever Johnny makes a speech simply bristling with figures but fortunately you needn't listen to it—and I can tell you, you often get a jolly good lunch out of it."

Lady Caterham.

Uninterested in Lord Caterham's lunches, Bundle had departed again before he had finished speaking. On the way back to London she tried to piece together things to her satisfaction.

As far as she could see, steel and infant welfare did not go together. One of the two, then, was just padding—presumably the latter. Mrs. Macatta and the Hungarian countess could be ruled out of court. They were camouflage. No, the pivot of the whole thing seemed to be the unattractive Herr Eberhard. He did not seem to be the type of man whom George Lomax would normally invite. Bill had said vaguely that he invented. Then there was the air minister and Sir Oswald Coote, who was steel. Somehow that seemed to hang together.

Since it was useless speculating further, Bundle abandoned the attempt and concentrated on her forthcoming interview with Lady Caterham.

The lady lived in a large gloomy house in one of London's higher-class squares. Inside it smelled of sealing wax, bird seed and slightly decayed flowers. Lady Caterham was a large woman—large in every way. Her proportions were majestic, rather than ample. She had a large beaked nose, wore gold-rimmed pince-nez and her upper lip bore just the faintest suspicion of a mustache.

She was somewhat surprised to see her niece, but accorded her a frigid cheek, which Bundle duly kissed.

"This is quite an unexpected pleasure, Eileen," she observed coldly.

"We've only just got back, Aunt Marcia."

"I know. How is your father? Much as usual?"

Her tone conveyed disparagement. She had a poor opinion of Alastair Edward Brent, ninth Marquis of Caterham. She would have called him, had she known the term, a "poor fish."

"Father is very well. He's down at Chimneys."

"Indeed. You know, Eileen, I never approved of the letting of Chimneys. The place is, in many ways, a historical monument. It should not be cheapened."

"It must have been wonderful in Uncle Henry's day," said Bundle with a slight sigh.

"Henry realized his responsibilities," said Henry's widow.

Her Political View.

"Think of the persons who stayed there," went on Bundle ecstatically. "All the principal statesmen of Europe."

Lady Caterham sighed.

"I can truly say that history has been made there more than once," she observed. "If only your father—"

She shook her head sadly.

"Politics bore father," said Bundle, "and yet they are about the most fascinating study there is, I should say. Especially if one knows about them from the inside."

She made this extravagantly untruthful statement of her feelings without even a blush. Her aunt looked at her with some surprise.

"I am pleased to hear you say so," she said. "I always imagined, Eileen, that you cared for nothing but this modern pursuit of pleasure."

"I used to," said Bundle.

"It is true that you are still very young," said Lady Caterham thoughtfully. "But with your advantages, and if you were to marry suitably, you might be one of the leading political hostesses of the day."

Bundle felt slightly alarmed. For a moment she feared that her aunt might produce a suitable husband straightaway.

"But I feel such a fool," said Bundle. "I mean I know so little."

"That can easily be remedied," said Lady Caterham briskly. "I have any amount of literature I can lend you."

"Thank you, Aunt Marcia," said Bundle, and proceeded hastily to her second line of attack.

"I wondered if you knew Mrs. Macatta, Aunt Marcia?"

"Certainly I know her. A most estimable woman with a brilliant brain. I may say that, as a general rule, I do not hold with women standing for Parliament. They can make their influence felt in a more womanly fashion." She paused, doubtless to recall the womanly way in which she had forced a reluctant husband into the political arena and the marvelous success which had crowned his and her efforts. "But still times change. And the work Mrs. Macatta is doing is of truly national importance, and of the utmost value to all women. It is, I think I may say, true womanly work. You must certainly meet Mrs. Macatta."

Bundle gave a rather dismal sigh.

"She's going to be at a house party at George Lomax' next week. He asked father, who, of course, won't go, but he never thought of asking me. Thinks I'm too much of an idiot, I suppose."

Bundle "Grown Up."

It occurred to Lady Caterham that her niece was really wonderfully improved. Had she, perhaps, had an unfortunate love affair? An unfortunate love affair, in Lady Caterham's opinion, was often highly beneficial to young girls. It made them take life seriously.

"I don't suppose George Lomax realizes for a moment that you have—shall we say, grown up? Eileen, dear," she said, "I must have a few words with him."

"He doesn't like me," said Bundle "I know he won't ask me."

"Nonsense," said Lady Caterham. "I shall make a point of it. I knew George Lomax when he was so high." She indicated a quite impossible height. "He will be only too pleased to do me a favor. And he will be sure to see for himself that it is vitally important that the present-day young girls of our own class should take an intelligent interest in the welfare of their country."

Bundle nearly said, "Hear, hear!" but checked herself.

"I will find you some literature now," said Lady Caterham, rising.

She called in a piercing voice, "Miss Connor."

A very neat secretary with a frightened expression came running. Lady Caterham gave her various directions. Presently Bundle was driving back to Brook street with an armful of the driest-looking literature imaginable.

Her next proceeding was to ring up Jimmy Thesiger. His first words were full of triumph.

MARK HANNA'S DAUGHTER.

Representative Ruth McCormick is now an avowed candidate for the United States Senate. The announcement causes no surprise, as it has been common gossip that she aspired to win the seat once occupied by her late husband, who was defeated by Senator Deneen.

Senator Deneen is in good health and has given no intimation that he wishes to retire. If hard pressed, as he may be, he will doubtless do his best to stay in the Senate. One or two aspirants have appeared in southern Illinois, and Edward J. Brundage, former Attorney General, has been urged to become a candidate. There is a prospect of at least a three-cornered fight, with one of the corners occupied by the shrewd and accomplished daughter of Mark Hanna.

Mrs. McCormick is perhaps the first woman to make a campaign for nomination and election to the Senate. Certainly she is the most prominent woman politician in the country—and it is as a politician, and not as a woman, that she plans and executes her battles. That she would be an ornament to the Senate goes without saying.

Sooner or later a woman will become President of the United States. Men of sense are resigned to the inevitable, and many of them are helping to place women in the seats of the mighty, so that the novelty will be rubbed off and the changed conditions accepted as a matter of course. Pending the time when a woman will preside in Supreme Court and another direct national affairs from the White House, the country will eagerly follow the battle that is about to open in Illinois.

CHANGING FAMILY NAMES.

The German government has given permission to residents of the republic whose family names indicate that they are of other than Teutonic stock to adapt their names to German orthography and pronunciation. There is nothing compulsory about it, but if there are as many as 4,000 residents of the country who desire to Germanize their monikers each year they may do so. This action is taken because of the great number of Poles and Russians now within German territory who find themselves handicapped because the spelling of their names does not conform to the orthographic methods of the country.

It might be well if some such action should be taken on this side of the Atlantic, for there is altogether too much red tape in obtaining the right to change a name which is difficult to pronounce. But if such action is ever taken by Congress or the State Legislatures, care should be taken to avoid any chance of a repetition of the furore which was aroused a few years ago when a gentleman named Kabitsky petitioned for permission to change his name to Cabot. Of course, that name is copyrighted, along with the name Lowell.

The Boston Transcript takes the ground that citizens bearing "foreign" names should have the right to Americanize them if they so desire, and especially if their names happen to be tongue-twisters. "We already have as representatives in Congress," says the Transcript, "Mr. Sirovich, Mr. Duckstein, Mr. LaGuardia, Mr. Romjue and Mr. Auf der Heide. We may yet have a President Niezabytowski or a President Rackauskas, when our Polish and Lithuanian component elements have come well to the front."

Which is all very well as far as it goes, but if we ever have such a name tacked onto a White House occupant, why can we not adopt the plan of the people of Northern Virginia, within a few hours' ride of the National Capital, where there are individuals who spell their names "Enroughty," the local pronunciation of which is "Darby?"

What's in a name, anyhow? Mr. Guggenheim's is a mouthful but he has not asked to have it changed. There are as many Cohens as there are Smiths in the New York City directory, and both clans appear to be satisfied.

PLUMBERS' TRADE RULES.

The Federal Trade Commission announces its approval of seven rules of trade practice which were adopted at a meeting of plumbing and heating interests held in Pittsburgh last May. The meeting is said to have been attended by representatives of 80 per cent of those trades, and the rules adopted are such as give assurance that plumbers and steamfitters will not be guilty of "inducing or attempting to induce a breach of contract between a competitor and his customer." Nor will any party to the agreement brand or mark a product for the purpose of "misleading or deceiving purchasers or prospective purchasers with respect to the quantity, quality, size or grade" of the article sold or installed.

It is deemed, and declared to be, unfair to discriminate in price of plumbing and heating products between purchasers of the same class; nor will it be considered ethical to sell at wholesale and deliver at retail, so to speak. In other words, the wholesaler and manufacturer will not hereafter accept orders for large quantities, with the intention of delivering only small lots "at quantity prices with the purpose and with the effect of discriminating between different purchasers." Wholesalers and manufacturers also agree that they will not falsify their invoices, nor will they sell below cost for the purpose of injuring a competitor.

These are good rules. The commission, however, should have tried to prevail upon the plumbers and steamfitters to adopt a rule requiring an inspection of the journeyman's outfit before he goes out on a job. The trade should abolish the trick whereby a customer is charged time while the helper goes back for forgotten tools. Such an agreement would constitute a real reform.

JOHN AND FLORENCE.

Florence Trumbull, daughter of a governor, might have been married to John Coolidge, son of a President, in the White House, but she chose to be wed among her friends in a small Connecticut church. Probably she would have had the ceremony simple and unostentatious, but the world was so interested in the consummation of this particular romance that it crowded its way to the church and made of the wedding a national event. Florence Trumbull and John Coolidge were married in simplicity, but their wedding reception was brilliant, and the papers, this morning, carry the details of the event to the far corners of the world.

What explanation may be offered for the interest with which the country regards these two young people? It is not merely that each is the child of a prominent personage. Other children of prominent families have wed without arousing such widespread interest. The fact is that Florence Trumbull and John Coolidge are each so typically American that their romance symbolizes the love of every American boy and girl. It would have been strange, indeed, if all romance lovers had not tried to listen in.

John Coolidge will take his bride to a modest apartment in New Haven, where they will live on a budget, as any young American and his bride might live. The whole country wishes them happiness and a long and useful married life.

JUST BEFORE THE BATTLE.

The military situation in the World War eleven years ago today was that the allies had driven the enemy back to the Hindenburg line and other defense lines, all the way from Switzerland to the North Sea. This Hindenburg line presented usually three characteristics. Nearest the front was the line of first resistance, in which advantage had been taken of elevations and water courses, and these were protected by barbed wire. Next there was the position of the artillery, and back of this a defense line that could be easily occupied or evacuated.

Everywhere the enemy was on the defensive. His rolling stock was in bad shape, his ammunition defective, and his morale broken. Across the Rhine the Fatherland was unable to understand the reason for the recent allied victories. Byng and Horne had breached the Hindenburg line. Then Mangin and Degoutte struck the enemy and captured 2,500 prisoners. This was followed by the tank drive of Rawlinson and Debeney, north of St. Quentin, which netted 10,500 prisoners and 150 cannon. The New York (27th) and Old Hickory (30th) Divisions were in the fourth British army under Rawlinson in this drive.

This disaster cut the Hindenburg line and divided the German armies. They had only two lines of retreat to Germany. One line crossed the Rhine at Cologne and a superior line for retreat purposes crossed the Rhine at Coblenz. Ludendorff was in supreme command, and was preparing his retreat.

All along the western front the stage was being prepared for the zero hour on September 26, 1918, which opened the one decisive battle of the war. Over 200 allied divisions were going into battle position. Over 22,000 hungry cannon were waiting to devour the great ammunition dumps when Foch should give the command to open fire.

THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

For all the fun that is poked at the Congressional Record, it is an invaluable public document. Furnishing, as it does the only verbatim report of the proceedings of the legislative branch of the Government, the Record is read studiously by thousands every day. The actions of Congress exercise a profound influence over the lives of individuals and the affairs of corporations, and although the newspapers duly chronicle the major doings of Congress, it is only in the Record that minor action, or that which is not of general, but rather of personal interest, can be followed.

But the Record is bulky, unindexed and difficult to read. Those who have occasion to study it find that they must waste valuable time searching through a welter of relatively unimportant verbiage for the report of action upon subjects in which they are interested.

It would be easy to improve the Record. If a daily digest of the doings of Congress were prepared by a competent reporter, to be published on the front page, together with a comprehensive index, the usefulness of the Record would be enormously increased. Such a digest and index would enable those interested in specific details to turn readily to the pages on which the verbatim record is set down. It would be a time saver and would stimulate public interest in the doings of Congress, a highly desirable end of itself.

THE SHAWNEE CASE.

There appears to be pending another "diplomatic incident" somewhat similar to the case of the I'm Alone. The differences, however, are that the Shawnee, a vessel under Canadian registry, was off the port of New York and not in the Gulf of Mexico, as was the I'm Alone, and that there was no fatality in the Shawnee case. A Coast Guard vessel, No. 145, fired several shots at the Shawnee, and those shots, or two of them, found their mark.

According to reports from the scene the Coast Guard cutter fired at the other far out at sea, last Friday night, when the Shawnee was showing "all her lights," in the language of her skipper. He says that he was in ballast and bound from Bermuda to Halifax. He claims also that he was flying the ensign of Canada, and professes to be utterly unable to account for the attack, inasmuch as he was about 26 miles off New York.

Admiral Billard, of the Coast Guard, admits that shots were fired at the Shawnee from No. 145, but he adds that three of the five were blanks, and that it was only when the Shawnee refused to obey "stop signals" that real persuaders were used to convince the runaway that the guard boat meant business. Admiral Billard adds that the Shawnee is listed as a rumrunner. He has not explained whether or not she was carrying liquor, and even if so loaded, whether there was reason to suspect that she was destined for an American port. If the Shawnee was really in ballast it is hard to understand why her captain failed to obey the stop signal.

Boy Scout leaders are to be taught the Indian sign language. In view of the disappearance of the English language, it is high time that steps were taken to provide an understandable medium of communication.

LINCOLN AND DOUGLAS

From Address by
DR. JOHN WESLEY HILL
At Dedication of Lincoln Statue at Freeport, Ill.

One gladiator of the old order remained unmoved and undisturbed in the dawn of the new. Stephen A. Douglas, with his Roman mien and Athenian polish and grand manner, master of invective, fluent, bold, magnetic and popular, stood as a modern Goliath for the extension and preservation of the institution of slavery. He stood, the seasoned veteran that he was, without a comparison in political genius, rooted and grounded in brilliant achievements, having successfully filled the positions of State's attorney, member of the Illinois Legislature, registrar of land, judge of the State supreme court, member of Congress, and United States senator. A story of political advancement without comparison, with the possible exception of Henry Clay.

In the Senate he rose to unquestioned leadership; in his party his influence was commanding, he having barely missed its nomination to the Presidency in 1856, which he was ready to grasp in 1860. It was against this Douglas, the man of organizing genius, the favorite of his party in Illinois and throughout the Nation, at home on the platform and in the forum, the debater, the orator, the scholar, the impersonation of power and victory, that the humble prairie lawyer stood that day at Freeport. It was a contest between liberty and bondage, reason and rhetoric, progress and decadence. Douglas was a rhetorical fencing master, skilled in maneuver, with scarcely an equal on the stump, while in the Senate he was feared by the most brilliant for his instantaneous wit and enthralling eloquence. He was short, plump and audacious. Lincoln was long and gaunt, "like a skeleton in clothes;" cool, undismayed, serene. The one was educated and polished; the other primitive and untrained, who would not take the risk of being "merely learned." Douglas had the assurance of a man of authority; Lincoln the instinct of a disciple of the truth, controlled by reason and steadied by humor—"the balance pole of his genius, enabling him to cross the most giddy heights without stumbling."

Douglas was pyrotechnic; Lincoln as steady as the polar star. Douglas was replete with derision and satire; Lincoln modest, respectful and courteous. Douglas was sophisticated; Lincoln syllogistic. Douglas entertained; Lincoln instructed. Douglas was clothed with an atmosphere of insincerity which explains his inability to impart conviction to those who heard him; Lincoln was logical and penetrating, radiating the calm, inherent strength inseparable from power.

What enthralled the people who stood before Lincoln that day was the sight of a man who was as sincere as he was strong; fearless as he was honest, towering above them in that psychic radiance that permeates in some mysterious way into the inner sanctuary of consciousness. The enthusiasm aroused by Douglas was wrought out of dazzling epigrams, stinging satire, ferocious grimaces, vulgar abuse and superficial eloquence. He was a match for the politicians born within the compass of his own intellectual caliber, but he sought in vain to sidestep the thrusts of the swordsman of the Sangamon.

The weight of Douglas in the political balance was purely materialistic, his scales of justice tipping to the side of cotton, slavery, and expediency, while Lincoln held aloft a moral standard with which there could be no compromise and from which there could be no retreat. Lincoln exuded something spiritual and authoritative. His looks, his voice, his words, were as a magical distillation dropped into the seething cauldron of politics, reacting against the foam, clarifying the turbid surface, letting the people see the bottom.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

MACHINE AND MAN.

The factory engine wouldn't start,
And so they took the thing apart
To search for flaws.
They took it down from top to base;
They looked at flange and gear and case
To find the cause.
"Something is broken," they declared.
"And what it is must be repaired."

Nearby a drowsy workman stood,
And some one muttered, "He's no good!
Just let him go!"
They didn't take that man apart,
Or think to search his mind and heart,
The cause to know.
Nobody thought to ask him why
There was no luster in his eye.

But had they looked into the gloom
Of what he called a sitting-room,
Or searched his life,
They would have found a woman frail,
Tubercular, and drawn and pale,
Who was his wife.
And then they might have understood
Why that man seemed to be no good

When engines in the factory stop
We search the things from base to top;
But when man breaks,
'Tis very seldom that we pause
To search his life to find the cause
Of his mistakes.
Yet we might mend him could we find
The thing that's preying on his mind.

You Needn't Know Where the Earth Is Going in Order to Go Along With It.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

"I DON'T believe any of that stuff," says the young agnostic. He doesn't mean that he disbelieves, but merely that he is content to doubt because he doesn't known an easy way to discover the truth and is too indifferent or mentally lazy to think it out for himself.

As a child he believed, but his belief was merely a blind acceptance of the things he was told. As a youth eager for demonstrable knowledge he lost his faith because he was bullied and his questions repbuked by people who required him to believe and yet failed to make belief reasonable. In time habit or perversity closed his mind against all evidence and he reconciled himself to doubts.

Now reason affords his only hope of discovering as much of the truth as men can know.

Reason is logic, and logic is common sense. Common sense, observing a univerce functioning in obedience to intricate laws, assumes the existence of a power sufficient to create and control it.

Thus far there is nothing to doubt. As the fact of a building is proof of builders, so the fact of a universe is proof of a creator. Logic concedes the existence of a creative power in the beginning.

And since motion is proof of motive power and the universe continues in motion common sense assumes the continued existence of the power that created. Shut off the power and the motor stops. Logic asks no further proof that the creator still reigns.

Thus the doubter, by the simple exercise of common sense, converts himself to unquestioning belief in the power men call God.

He can understand little more. One of the wisest of philosophers said that a lifetime is not sufficient to unravel the mystery of a blade of grass.

But he can perceive and comprehend the harmony of God's laws and accept the assurance of common sense that all things grow, mature and die to be useful in another form. And reason will ask no further proof his own destiny.

He can observe, also, that obedience to law promotes development, while violation results in deformity, suffering and destruction. Thus he discovers the reasonable way of life and common sense assures him that he will fare well as one unit of a well-ordered universe if he places himself in harmony with it.

To understand that much is to understand enough. In that faith he can find peace and face the end with the assurance that death is no more terrible than birth and neither more terrible than any other stage of development.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

CHICAGO WORLD'S SERIES NEWS.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—With the world series at hand battles for tickets broke out all along the line this morning. There was heavy street fighting, with many hand-to-hand encounters. Early returns, with 26 districts unheard from, give:

Dead 2,376
Wounded 16,825

An unknown visitor with two choice tickets for seats directly behind third base was riddled by machine gun fire as he emerged from a public pay-station this noon. Fourteen bodies found in West Cicero were identified today as baseball experts slain for their press badges.

• • • •

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Heavy firing was heard in various sections of the city as dawn broke today. As the ticket supply is not nearly sufficient to meet the demand, the police stated they looked for much additional bloodshed before night. A well-known New York baseball fan, who last night exhibited a choice seat to the opening game, was "taken for a ride" early today. His body was found in a vacant lot a while later. The ticket had been taken by his slayers. Fifteen ticket speculators were "put on the spot" this afternoon.

Mayor "Big Bill" Thompson today said he deplored the shootings but could do nothing. "All I can advise is that people who are here with tickets for the series disguise themselves as visiting cattlemen and under no circumstances admit that they have any interest in the series or any hope of attending. To admit that you have a coveted coupon is plain suicide."

• • • •

Chicago, Oct. 8.—In a last-minute battle for world series tickets here this morning the streets were piled high with dead. Firing is still going on intermittently. Two more newspaper writers were shot for their press buttons this afternoon. More than 500 Philadelphia rooters were taken for rides last night and slain after expressing the opinion openly that the Athletics would win the series. The number of men slain by machine guns through having been mistaken for Connie Mack has now reached 12,367.

(Later)—Ten thousand men and women who awaited in line all night outside the ball park for general admission tickets were mowed down by gangsters at 11 o'clock this morning. The gangsters were acting for late risers who desired a chance at general admission tickets without staying up all night. Three hundred more men were mistaken for Connie Mack and shot to death this morning on the central streets. The number of men mistaken for Athletic pitchers and slain has now reached 13,987.

(Later)—The baseball park is now packed and the opening of the series is at hand. Heavy firing is going on in the bleachers. There is considerable cannonading going on behind the first-base line. More than 15,000 men have now been shot in the belief they were Connie Mack.

Grove is warming up for the Athletics.

• • • •

Kill reference to Grove. He has just been shot by a Chicago rooter.

• • • •

Rommel now warming up.

• • • •

Correction: Rommel slain by gunman after throwing three balls.

• • • •

(Later)—The entire Philadelphia baseball team was assassinated on the field as the players trotted to their positions for the opening game today. A complete inquiry is promised.

YOU KNOW THOSE STREETS.

"Strange Interlude" has been barred by Boston. Probably because of a fear that the city streets would get all clogged up with people who had left the theater to go to dinner and couldn't find their way back.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Visitor Takes Note of Bad Smoke Conditions in Washington—Beauty of City Marred and Health Conditions Impaired.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why all the controversy over emission of smoke from one building in Washington? That is but a "drop in the bucket" compared with the ever-increasing amount of smoke contaminating the atmosphere of our beautiful Capital during the winter months; a fact readily noticeable to the writer during his frequent visits to your city. It was not surprising, therefore, to read a report of the Department of Agriculture stating that even in the residential suburbs of Washington as high as two tons of solid matter is sometimes suspended over each square mile, or, in other words, that each normal adult would breathe over 100,000,000 dust and smoke particles each minute while in such an atmosphere.

Not being a resident of your beautiful city, I may be presuming to offer suggestions, but as it is our Capital I may have the right to suggest that you would be doing a worth-while service if you would bring these facts before the heads of the "smoke inspectors" so that they might take steps to reduce the amount of atmospheric vitiation in order, not only to preserve the beauty of the city, but also to insure the residents and particularly the children their full quota of anti-richitic radiation from the sun.

Man the Slave of His Machines—He Cuts a Poor Figure as Lord of Creation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Man was made lord of creation, but he cuts a poor figure nowadays. We find him submerged and entangled in networks of all sorts of contraptions, all of his own devising. Man is dominated by the Thing, a maze of wheels, levers, pulleys and dynamos. In everyday life we behold him disappearing into a sort of black hearse called an auto, where, clutching a wheel with maniac stare, he disappears amid fumes of gasoline. Or up in air he goes, transformed by goggles and hideous habiliments, for exploration of empty space, making demoniac noise in the clouds once serene and silent.

"What a piece of work is man! How noble in reason, how infinite in faculty, in form and moving how express and admirable, in action how like an angel, in apprehension how like a god!" says Shakespeare.

But how does he appear in a gas mask, or astride a motorcycle, or with a telephone at his ear? The god is lost in the machine. HINDA BURKE.

All About Methods of Catching or Eradicating Fleas.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A knowledge of how to eradicate fleas would be serviceable to most people at some time in connection with pets or domestic animals. These organisms are the cause of a great deal of distress and injury to human beings as well as animals, especially as they carry the germs of serious diseases in some cases.

The stick-tight flea attacks poultry, dogs and cats. An infested fowl may often be recognized by clusters of these fleas about the eyes, comb and wattles. This flea is reported to have injured poultry as far north as Kansas. A mixture of one part kerosene to two parts lard, applied to the seat of infestation, will assist in controlling it.

To destroy fleas on cats and dogs, these pets should be washed, especially on the head, with saponified coal-tar creosote preparation for five to ten minutes. In the case of the cat, the preparation should be washed out of the fur with soap and warm water. Rubbing powdered naphthalene or pyrethrum into the hair is also effective in removing fleas. During the treatment the animal should be placed upon papers and the fleas collected and dropped into water.

Hogs may be relieved of fleas by sprinkling them with crude petroleum or dipping in a vat containing a creosote dip.

To avoid infestation of houses, all animals should be kept from beneath them. Conditions under houses are favorable as breeding places for fleas. Floors may be sprinkled with naphthalene or pyrothrum.

Spraying with creosote oil produces good results in basement, chicken house, barn and feed lot. This substance offers the disadvantage, however, that it kills vegetation. N. H.

Which Is Binding, the Supreme Court Decision or the Liquor Treaties?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am sure there are thousands of readers daily of The Post, including the writer, who would like to have answers to Rear Admiral Kimball's assertion that "the liquor laws can not be enforced legally," from one or all of the persons named by Rear Admiral Kimball, to-wit: Senator Borah, Mr. Scott McBride, Assistant Secretary Lowman, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, Dr. Doran Deets Pickett and Mrs. Willebrandt.

In the rear admiral's letter is set down a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States, 1923, "that the entry of alcoholic beverages within the jurisdiction of the United States was 'a nullification of the Constitution and a violation of the Volstead law.'" Then in 1924 our "Executive negotiated, the Senate confirmed treaties, allowing, protecting and directing the importation of alcoholic beverages within the jurisdiction of the United States."

Do treaties nullify the Supreme Court decision of 1923? Which are the people to consider binding, the Supreme Court's decision or the treaties? W. E. RYAN.

Event Tonight To Be in Honor Of Roosevelt

Govenor of Porto Rico to Meet 50 Guests at Dinner.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, newly appointed Governor of Porto Rico, will be the guest of honor tonight at a dinner to be given at the Willard by Mr. Felix Cordova Davila, Resident Commissioner of Porto Rico. There will be 50 guests, among them officials, diplomats and other prominent Washingtonians.

When Gov. Roosevelt takes up his residence in Porto Rico, with Mrs. Roosevelt and all the little Roosevelts, their home will be at La Fortaleza, the oldest building on this hemisphere, still used for residence purposes. This palace of the Spanish governors, now used by the American governors of the island, was built in 1509, and was old when the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. It is, however, in a perfect state of preservation, and it is beautifully situated in a great garden overhanging the sea. The old house has been added to time and again and boasts several low wings, the roofs of which are used as terraces.

The garden was pretty well wrecked in the hurricane which so nearly spelled Porto Rico's economic ruin with the destruction of her coffee plantations and her great cane fields. But every effort is being made to restore it to its rare beauty. One of the most interesting features of La Fortalea is a group of curious stained glass windows, very ancient, and colored with a process which has been lost to the arts. By some freak of fate, although the hurricane beat upon these windows with its full force, they were not injured. An expert from Tiffany's examined the glass a few years ago and reported that it was unique and almost priceless.

Special guests will include several governmental officials of Porto Rico visiting in the United States, Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, and Representative Edgar R. Kiess, of Pennsylvania, both of whom are members of the joint commission on insular affairs, and Secretary of War James W. Good.

Mr. and Mrs. Hampson Gary returned yesterday from Europe on the DeGrasse and are staying at the Plaza in New York for a few days before returning to their home on Massachusetts avenue.

Capt. J. M. Ritchie, Naval Attache of the British Embassy, and Mrs. Ritchie, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Francis Amherst Cecil at Biltmore, N. C., will return to Washington today.

Mrs. M. E. Burke sailed on the S. S. Augustus for Gibraltar Saturday, and will be absent until December or January. She will visit the expositions at Seville and Barcelona, Spain, and also expects to spend some time in Interlaken, Berlin, Rome, Paris and Dublin.

Envoys Turn Again Toward Washington

Diplomatic Group Is on Way Back; Interesting Additions Seen.

As October draws near, the diplomatic group seems to be heading for Washington. Senora de Davila, wife of the Ambassador of Chile, is en route to this country from Chile. The Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom, with their daughter, Miss Ellis Bostrom, sailed yesterday from Sweden on the Kungsholm for New York. The Minister of Poland and Mme. Filipowicz are due in New York today on the Ile de France and will come to Washington within a day or two. And Mme. Wu, wife of the Minister of China, is on her way across the continent from Seattle, to reach here Thursday, after having spent the summer in China.

With Mme. Wu are four of her eight children. At the legation it is not yet known which of the group are coming, the only definite information being that the oldest daughter of the Minister and Mme. Wu, a girl of 18, is remaining in China, to be with her grandmother, Mme. Wu Ting Fang, widow of the distinguished diplomat who is remembered in Washington as such a picturesque figure. Dr. Wu, son of Wu Ting Fang and the diplomatic representative of

The original print—inspired by England's loveliest garden flowers—was so much admired that it was used for wallpapers as well as drapery fabrics. KRAFFT TO ADDRESS INSURANCE PARLEY

District Association Head to Welcome Delegates at Session Here.

TALIAFERRO WILL SPEAK

Preliminary executive sessions officially opened the fortieth annual convention of the National Association of Life Underwriters at the Mayflower yesterday.

The board of trustees of the national body held an all-day meeting, and the board of trustees of the American College of Life Underwriters held an executive session last night. Today's program calls for a meeting of the executive committee of the national association.

The convention proper will open tomorrow. Harold D. Krafft, president of the District association, and Commissioner Taliaferro extended greetings and a welcome to the delegates. The convention will be called to order by Paul F. Clark, of Boston, national president, and the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of Georgetown University, will pronounce the invocation.

Sessions Last Till Friday.

Approximately 1,500 leaders, from all parts of the United States, are expected to attend the convention, which will continue through Friday.

Among the outstanding speakers on the first day's program are Walton L. Crocker, president of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., who will talk on "The Market for the Second Hundred Billion," and Jerome Clark, superintendent of Agencies, Union Central Life Insurance Co., will discuss the topic "Creating the Second Hundred Billion."

The delegates will be received at the White House at 12:45 p. m., and a business session will be held in the afternoon.

Many Addresses Slated.

The slogan of the convention, which marks the passing of the first $100,000,000,000 worth of insurance in force, is "Getting the Second Hundred Billion."

Addresses on the program tomorrow afternoon include, "Conserving the First While We Create the Second Hundred Billions," by Thomas I. Parkinson, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States; "Conclusions Which I Have Reached After Having Placed Over $50,000,000 Life Insurance for One Company in Twenty-four Years," by Dr. C. E. Albright, Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., and "The Conservation of Human Life in the Era of the Second Hundred Billion," by Harold A. Ley, president of the Life Extension Institute.

A reception will be given in the Mayflower ballroom tomorrow evening in honor of President Clark.

Spelling Match Set for Tonight.

The Waverly Spelling Club, of Baltimore, will clash with the Capital City Spelling Cub at 8 o'clock tonight at the Pythian Temple, 1012 Ninth street northwest, in an effort to regain the championship it lost last April.

Shopping with Bab

DEAREST GENEVIEVE:
There are several style openings on Connecticut Avenue this week, so do not miss your daily shopping trip, and keep your eyes open for interesting happenings.
The Nancy Carter Shop has a special exhibit tomorrow, I believe, and several others have opening displays, without the formality of announcements.
How different we will all look this year, with long skirts and fantastic hats. The styles are attractive, though, don't you think? And what a pleasure to wear something really different!

New Fashions In Photographs
—are in keeping with the style activities of this season. Underwood & Underwood are making two exquisite new prints called the Embassy and the Mayfair. The latter is toned with hand work on imported paper and mounted beautifully with a tinted border. This is the newest and finest in photographic portraiture, and is only for those who demand the best. Any one ordering pictures in The Mayfair print may know they are giving a permanent gift which will always be prized.
The Embassy is in warm ivory tones in portrait style. It is mounted in a double folder of golden buff, finished somewhat like a French mat. Both these styles may be had in several sizes, from cabinet to portrait.
When your new fall clothes are assembled go in and have some pictures made and finished in one of these perfectly exquisite prints.

You Have Looked Very Handsome

—in your sun-tan complexion, but do you find that your skin requires more attention and much greater care when you give up to this amazing vogue?
It is evident that most women find it so. Russina, 1609 Connecticut Avenue, has so many in her clientele who are having special treatments now that summer is over to bring the texture of the skin back to normal beauty.
The fame of Russina creams and lotions are too well known to be commented upon. Once you have had a Russina face treatment and have used the preparations you will be devoted to them.

Everyone Wants Suits With Fur

—or suits without fur, in the beautiful imported tweeds and woolens which are made this season in such divine colorings and mixtures. Pasternak's, 1219 Conn. Ave., have a large collection in handsome models to select from. As usual, many women are having their suits and wraps made in Pasternak's. This establishment has been famous for its tailoring for a long period of years.
The most attractive of this autumn's hats are shown in Pasternak's this week, and, of course, when it comes to evening gowns and wraps and afternoon costumes and sport things there is no end to the exhibits.

The Cavalier Offers Variety

—in the size of apartments available, and in the various conveniences on every side. There is a wonderfully good cafe. There is a roof garden. There is adequate parking space. The Cavalier, 3500 14th street, is convenient to trolleys and buses. You may engage suites for one day, a week, a month or a year and the apartments are from one room and bath on up. The smaller apartments only are furnished.
Mr. Mifflin Blackstone, the manager, has so many ideas for the pleasure of his guests. For instance, he has added a Meyer Davis orchestra, which will play every evening.

Cruising in Southern Waters
—will be marvelous in January. Make your reservations now for passage on the palatial and luxurious royal yacht, the Prince Olav, which cruises from Miami to the West Indies. The first sailing is in January. The ship holds only 90 passengers. There are several sailing, of course, but if you want to be sure of passage, make your reservations right now. The C. C. Drake Travel Bureau in the Willard Hotel will tell you all about it, and will arrange your bookings.

This bureau is equipped to plan your travel, no matter what world tour you may have in mind. Ask for Miss Persons or Miss Moorhead.

Wedding Gifts From Martin's
—are the last word in every way. Importations from the other side are arriving daily. A new shipment came in yesterday, including marvelous decorations for the table, rare boxes and centerpieces. You will know in choosing from this collection that your gift will not be duplicated, at least.

When wedding gifts are packed at Martin's, 1317 Connecticut Avenue, they are dreams of loveliness, finished with a huge bow of varicolored tulle or satin ribbons in pastel colors. You have never seen anything more lovely.
Hostesses, in search of something new for their dining tables will be so happy when they see all the latest novelties from Paris, in epergnes and urns and center bowls, with matching individual pieces you have never thought of.
Martin's is a delight in every way, whether you merely enjoy the window in passing, or go in to view the displays, and make your own leisurely selections.

The Apartments You Have Dreamed of

—will be open for your inspection next Monday week. Caravel, 1603 Connecticut Avenue, is the latest contribution to the group of unique apartment buildings designed and owned by Mrs. John R. Williams. The first was The Anchorage, then came The Galleon and The Moorings. Now this latest "Caravel" similar in idea to the others but unique and distinctive in its own right offers charms to everyone who appreciates comfort and delightful atmosphere.
Some of the rooms are irregular in shape, allowing for the most appealing interiors imaginable. You may have two bedrooms and sitting room or one bedroom and sitting room, and will be interested to know that the prices are less than for the other buildings in this group.

Affectionately,
Bab

These hours have

..Vita-Minutes

EIGHT to eleven in the morning are different kinds of hours. Their minutes find people fresher, more alert, more responsive than at any other time of day. Thinking is quicker, interest keener, action readier, than after the routine of the day has taken its toll.

That's why the minutes of these morning hours are called Vita-Minutes—and why they have a very special significance for every buyer of advertising, either display or classified.

Notice your own reading of the morning paper: you read faster, get more from an article or a paragraph or a heading, remember more of it.

You get more out of the advertisements. You make more buying-decisions on what you learn from them. That's what the Vita-Minutes do for you—and for advertisers.

Even when you read the Morning Post hurriedly you start the day with a better idea of what the world is doing—and with some other ideas, most probably, which were put in your mind by advertisements. Advertisers can and do count on this greater alertness, increased responsiveness, of Post readers. They buy into the Vita-Minutes, when the day's buying questions are being answered, buying decisions made, in thousands of Washington homes.

And with The Post, advertisers buy additional coverage in one of the country's richest markets. The Washington territory is typical—where the Morning Post goes into the homes which do most of the buying.

The Washington Post.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agri., Weather Bureau.

Washington, Monday, Sept. 23—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia—Fair Tuesday and probably Wednesday; not much change in temperature; light to gentle east or northeast winds.

For Maryland—Fair Tuesday and probably Wednesday; not much change in temperature; moderate northeast winds on the coast.

For Virginia—Generally fair Tuesday; Wednesday increasing cloudiness, probably followed by rain in south portion; moderate northeast winds, increasing Wednesday.

The tropical disturbance that apparently remained almost stationary north of Porto Rico for several days is now moving northwestward about 300 miles per day, and is central about latitude 27 degrees 30 minutes north, longitude 73 degrees west. It is still of small diameter and moderate intensity.

The slight disturbance that was off the South Atlantic coast Sunday has practically disappeared, but showery weather still prevails in the South Atlantic and East Gulf States. The western disturbance has made little eastward progress, and it still has three centers, Moorhead, Minn., 29.60 inches; Pueblo, Colo., 29.64 inches, and Tonopah, Nev., 29.66 inches. It has caused showers from the North Pacific coast eastward to the Dakotas and western Minnesota. The rainfall was heavy in southeastern Minnesota and in portions of North Dakota. Pressure is also relatively low and falling over Newfoundland and the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Harrington, Que., 29.92 inches. Pressure is still high but falling from the Lake region and the Ohio Valley eastward. Boston, Mass., 30.32 inches, and it remains high from eastern Alaska eastward to the Hudson Bay region, Fort Simpson, B. N. T., 30.28 inches.

Except for showers in portions of the South Atlantic States, fair weather will prevail in the Washington forecast district Tuesday, and in Tennessee, and from the Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region eastward to the Atlantic coast Wednesday, but the tropical disturbance will likely cause rain Wednesday from Florida to Southern Virginia. The temperature will be slightly higher Tuesday in the North Atlantic States, West Virginia, western Pennsylvania and western New York.

A Couple of Men ..(Refused to give their names).

Some time ago some one suggested the advisability of having theatrical reviewers shot on opening nights. The ayes have it. Certainly, no one seriously bent—which is a terrible way to be bended—should come within the shadow of a playhouse on a night like this.

Yet, since the edict has not been put into force by the Federal Reserve Board, who reserve that right, a number of the more intrepid warriors wended their way last night to the Belasco. There they saw the new play, "June Moon," in the state of incubation.

Two men in the cast of characters never show up under the fulsome light of "June Moon." Perhaps they are the authors—Ring Lardner and George S. Kaufman. Like the dramatic reviewers, they had nothing to fear. No one would have shot them. On the contrary, there is much to be said pro as well as con for the aspirant to the croix de theater. "June Moon" has its moments.

When the loose ends are all ties, the old Gordian knots slipped on, the good folks who are in the habit of reaching down in their jeans and paying real cash at the box office—right from the Treasury—are not going to be cheated at all; if "June Moon" comes from behind the clouds. And it will, too; for here, certainly, is what Mr. Lardner might call the "New Cleas" of a play.

It has to do with the song writing craft. In the nature of satire, "June Moon" places the song-smiths in the same trenches they found the newspapermen in "Front Page." Musicians or lyricists they are, under the skin, blood-brothers, and mostly sapheads; with the exception of one—Maxie, just there for a purpose.

Though the audience is requested by the authors not to reveal to relatives or strangers the sudden twist in the love story, this much must be told: It has to do with a boy and a girl, from up Schenectady way or, if the printers can't spell that, from Painted Post. New York bound they meet in a parlor car. 'Tis, blessed thrill, love at first sight. However, when the bright lights of Broadway and the dim orbs of the night clubs and honky tonks dazzle the youth, he finds himself in the foils or, mayhap, the toils, of a woman that's known as Lu. No, that's the service poem—the hymn of the A. E. F.

Anyway, there is a temporary triangle, all circled out at the end—and Mr. Lardner and Mr. Kaufman—the Messrs—have a play on the way.

Since the mecca of song writers is also the same habitat of dramatists, short-story writers, and chasers after the elusive news item, as some nag aptly termed it, parents of the new play had no difficulty whatsoever in assembling their stage children and keeping them in the family; what's more, true to New York. There is a note of authenticity sounding in the theme song of this comedy with words and music.

In the splendid cast assembled to carry off the stage work, Harry Rosenthal, who is making his tsage debut, unless the records lie, winds up by finding himself the star—though there are no stars on the program for "June Moon." As some one expressed it, in a moment of profound admiration, "the man is so human." Forsooth, Mr. Rosenthal, not an actor, was not acting, and so turned in a perfect piece of histrionics.

Norman Foster, a likeable youth, has the male lead, and does a dandy job. Linda Watkins is just naive enough to play a little up-State girl with appeal enough to touch the heart-strings when, after wise-cracks that come over like a bombardment on the Western front, risibilities are completely worn out. Lee Patricks, in many a change of costume that will set the ladies talking, is the fashion show of the play, and the female villian.

"June Moon" sparkles in spots but once in awhile gets a bit hazy.

GAYETY

"Night Club Girls," this week's attraction at the Gayety Theater, is headed by Bobby Wilson, an eccentric and clever comedian. Mr. Wilson wrote the entire book, one of the funniest seen here for a long time. Ed Ryan made a hit as a tap dancer and showed real ability. Walter Wayne, Fred Walker and Ralph Smith assisted in the comedy, keeping the audience laughing the whole time.

Jesse McDonald's dancing threatened to stop the show in some very prettily staged numbers. One of the best spots of the evening was Lillian Fernald's "My Man." It was a characterization of rare merit. Jule Paulson, a pretty little blonde, danced well, assisted by a chorus of lively and attractive young girls. This is a fast-moving show.

POLI'S

Lack of diversity is not a criticism that can be laid at the doorsteps of the new theatrical season. Barely two weeks launched it has already offered musical comedy, satirical native and sophisticated foreign drama, and last night the gamut was complete with a play of manners and morals.

With the social season still on the horizon it might be imagined that Producer Gilbert Miller was ill advised in securing for Katherine Cornell's "The Age of Innocence," so early in Poli's booking; but a play so brilliantly written and acted as this dramatization of Edith Wharton's famous novel needs no particular type of theater-goer other than one possessing a true love of the theater.

Novels, as a rule, provide rather episodic drama but Margaret Ayer Barnes, who adapted Mrs. Wharton to the stage, has avoided the usual pitfalls and provided a play of characterization rather than of incident.

Washington has, in the past, seen so little of Miss Cornell, who seldom ventures on the road, that her presence alone justifies the attendance of those interested in the personalities of the stage. She is acknowledgedly one of the leaders of the younger school of actresses. She plays, of course, the role of Countess Olenska, whose ill-starred marriage to a Polish nobleman of cruel and degenerate tendencies elicits, first, the sympathy and then the love of Newland Archer, a young attorney fast gaining prominence in New York political affairs. His adventurous spirit in tilting against the corruption of the Tweed Ring attracts her as well, but she twice renounces a love that can only bring tragedy, the first time to surrender him to marriage with another and on the last occasion she makes the ultimate sacrifice by returning to her abhorred husband when no other course presents itself.

Mr. Miller has, as usual, selected a well-rounded cast—not always to be expected when a star is featured—and even the most minor parts are excellently played. Deserving especial mention are John Marston, as Newland Archer; Katherine Stewart, as a grande dame of New York society and the grandmother of the Countess Olenska, and Arnold Korf, as Julius Beaufort. In one scene at least the latter more than shared honors with the star, playing the most difficult role of a past middle-aged lover who must utter such poetic lines as only Mrs. Wharton can write and yet not arouse anything resembling amusement. That he succeeded was shown by the round of aplause that followed his exit.

The settings suggested the drabness of the decade as historians have pictured it and enhanced the charm of Miss Cornell's presence. This is a play not to be missed by those pho prefer a litlte literature in their theater.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

DESPITE the fact that lusty brochures claiming credit for the origination and first practical utilization of "sound perspective" in the production of sound, talking and singing pictures are beginning to find their way to the photoplay desks of the country from practically all of the representative picture makers, I am still of the opinion that William Fox is entitled to credit for the first experimentation with the idea and Raymond Cannon, one of his directors, for the first successful dialogue and music film made after this advanced method.

Something over a month ago, when Ray Cannon was in Washington for purposes of observing precisely what the audience reaction to the sound perspective in his "Why Leave Home?" would be, it was the exclusive privilege of this column to set forth the results of an extended interview with him on this particular subject. When he began making his articulate version of "Cradle Snatchers" on the theory that a microphone need not always be glued to the mouth of a speaker or singer to get the best possible effect, the acoustical engineers with one voice shouted, "You can't do that"—so he went ahead and did it.

The outcome of his effort to achieve a greater degree of convincing realism than the microphones had ever delivered before was so eminently successful that he hastened back to the Coast to put it into further effect.

All this has been published here before, and I suspect that that publication of the advantages of a successfully applied new idea had some remote connection with the sudden flair for sound perspective that is so vigorously manifesting itself in the East. I am led to this belief not through any sense of expanded ego, but by the fact that one of the stories that has come to me for printing, as a new development in picture-making, makes verbatim use of a portion of my interview with Mr. Cannon.

But however that may be, all the boys seem to be going in for sound perspective in a very large way.

In case you do not get the idea, by "sound perspective" is meant the increase in volume when the source of the sound is in close-up and a decrease in sound volume in direct ratio to the increase in distance of the source of the sound from the point of audition.

It is being used in "Salute," current at the Fox, if you wish to get a rough idea of what I mean.

Although I have gone completely overboard for "Gold Diggers of Broadway," at the Metropolitan, despite its numerous defects, I can not go along with those who think that Ann Peunington hasn't enough to do in the musicalized version of the Avery Hopwood comedy. It seems to me that she has done everything of which she is reasonably capable when she has spoken her half-dozen lines, done her tap dance and tossed her hips about the banquet table. That has always been the sum total of her repertoire and, unfortunately, it comprises a routine that does not lend itself to extended periods before the camera. The Warners timed her capabilities to the second.

If you care to learn how much more of an actress than you ever suspected Nancy Carroll really is, go to the Columbia and watch her work opposite Hal Skelly in "The Dance of Life," Paramount's all talking, singing and dancing adaptation of the play, "Burlesque." Most of the tugs at the heart strings, to get bromidic about it, are engineered by the role of Bonny, played by Miss Carroll, and the ease with which she manipulates one's sympathies bespeaks a latent emotional power that will carry her far. If not, she can always sing and dance and so knock you cold, anyhow. Wotta gal!

Ring Lardner, one of America's indefatigable humorists, who happens to be in the Capital at the moment, I believe, and George M. Cohan, famous playwright, composer, actor and producer, collaborated in the writing of "Fast Company," a baseball fable about a bush leaguer who broke into the big show.

Paramount's camera version of this "You know me, Al" comedy, will be shown for the first time in Washington at a Palestine relief fund benefit to be given tonight at midnight in the Earle Theater. Evelyn Brent has a role immensely to her liking as the busher's girl friend. Mike Donlin, one-time coach of the New York Giants, supervised the baseball scenes.

Ushers, musicians, stage hands and other employes of the theater have contributed their services—as is characteristic of the profession.

It would be interesting to know why Cliff Edwards (Ukulele Ike) has taken to working for the talking screen in blackface when he is so much more expressive, facially, in white.

Also, why Mr. Fisher hasn't tumbled that his inveterate assumption of the consequences of a hangover and allusions to the alley as a convenient place for slumber have outlived their usefulness as comedy devices, even for so good an m. c.

Likewise, why this shouldn't end right here?

50 DEGREES
is more than the mark on a thermometer

TO many people 50 degrees means a mark on a thermometer, but to those who know, it is a blazing signal. At that temperature stands the big dividing line between correct and incorrect refrigeration of food.

A degree or two above fifty and bacteria multiply with speed . . . foods become contaminated, unsafe to eat. A degree or two below fifty . . . bacterial growth is checked, foods remain safely fresh.

The General Electric Refrigerator always automatically maintains a temperature several degrees below fifty . . . without any regulating or attention. It makes all the ice cubes you want, never needs oiling, has an accessible freezing regulator.

The cabinet of the General Electric is all steel, strong, warp-proof and very easy to clean. All the mechanism is in an hermetically sealed steel casing, dust-proof and mounted on top of the cabinet. Come in today and investigate.

There are now more than 300,000 homes enjoying the convenience, economy and protection of General Electric Refrigerators—and not one owner has ever had to spend a single dollar for repairs or service.

We endorse the National Food Preservation Program. 50° is the safety point for perishable foods.

Industry Should Be Kept Free From Unnecessary Laws, Representative Asserts at Opening of World's Fair for 1929.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

New York, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Representative Wallace White, of Maine, one of the authors of the radio act, in opening the sixth annual Radio World's Fair in New York today declared the radio industry should be kept free from unnecessary legislative restraints as it has in the past. He pointed out that the existing law imposes only those limitations and gives the Government only those powers of control which public interest demands. Representative White said the fundamental principles embodied in the radio act of 1927 are not likely to be abandoned.

"That law asserted Federal authority over radio transmission within the United States," Representative White continued, "that power must be maintained. The act was based upon the theory that the right to transmit was not the absolute right of an individual, but was at the most a qualified or conditional right to be enjoined only if the public advantage would be served thereby. It subordinated the right of the individual to the right of the public to the best possible reception. This principle will be preserved."

With Eighth avenue restored to normalcy after being torn up to make way for subway building the last three years, a gala crowd flocked along the newly rediscovered highway and packed Madison Square Garden, almost falling over each other to get the first peep at the $1,000,000 display of radio apparatus, the cream of the effort of more than 300 manufacturers.

Many Novelties Shown.

Among the novelties which greeted the fans were automatic volume control devices, as a protective measure against fading; the "washboard" loud speaker, resembling the well-known household utensil in its flat corrugated appearance but almost uncanny in its faithful reproduction of voice and musical instruments; speakers which respond equally to high and low as well as intermediate notes; console cabinets more elaborate than any yet seen, new combinations of phonograph and radio, phonograph jacks on many radio receivers permitting electrical reproduction of records; and remote control; tuning devices, whereby means of 50-foot cable receivers in other rooms in the house may be connected up so that the whole family can enjoy the radio wherever they may be.

As had been expected, the biggest topic of discussion centered about the screen-grid tube, with, however, some manufacturers still shaking their heads, as they are doing in television—and cautioning against too great performance expectations in a new and what they claim to be not a thoroughly enough tried out device. The dissenters maintain that the present three element tubes are thoroughly satisfactory in performance, and, being convinced of this, they are continuing to manufacture them and are not being stampeded by the screen-grids.

Grids Have Four Elements.

The screen-grid tube, it might be explained, has four elements instead of three and therefore can not be used in sets now generally in use designed for the three element tubes. Special connections are necessitated for the screen-grid and all condensers and coils must be more completely shielded from each other than on the present sets.

The advantages claimed for the screen-grid are selectivity, tuning more sharply, cutting out most of the cross-talk and interference and separating stations with greater ease; sensitivity which results in bringing in more distant stations; volume in a quantity heretofore unknown, and purer tone quality.

Which seems to be the whole works in the way of claims. Nevertheless, the performance of the screen-grid is vouched for by no less a person—and a very conservative one in the industry—than Atwater Kent, who said he regarded the screen-grid as thoroughly practical when used in a properly designed set.

Television Called Far Off.

"Thousands of our new screen-grid receivers are already in use," Kent added, "and the results are beyond our best expectations. Reports coming to us stress the decided increase in range, exceptional selectivity and beautiful tone quality."

While it is admitted to be within a possibility that possibly commercial sets might be on the market within the next six months for television reception, the opinion was that television was as yet still in the television stages, "still in the mist," as one person put it.

"At this season of the year, when so many are thinking about new radio sets," said a leader in the radio industry when asked about television and its immediate possibilities, "the old question always arises: Is television just around the corner? If I buy today, will my radio set be obsolete next September? The answer is no. Television is still in the laboratory stage. There will be no demonstrations to disclose advances being made by research laboratories, but this does not mean that the next day televisors will be on the market for the public."

108,000 Heard Band Concerts Last Summer

Approximately 108,000 persons attended the concerts held by the service and community civic bands in the parks during the summer season, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of Public Buildings and Public Parks, announced yesterday.

The attendance at the concerts given by the Marine Band were the largest. Altogether 35,900 listened to its 16 performances. About 25,350 persons were present at the 17 concerts given by the Army Band, while 23,600 heard the Community Civic Band and 22,470 the Navy Band, Col. Grant said.

McNamee to Preside Over Talent Hour

Baclanova and Lytell Will Head List on WRC at 9:30—"Follies" Hits at 7:30—"Bing" Crosby on WMAL—Parent Talk.

An array of talent, with Graham McNamee as master of ceremonies, will be presented during the R-K-O hour at 9:30 o'clock from WRC. Olga Baclanova and Bert Lytell, of motion picture fame, head the cast, which includes Douglas Stansbury, tenor, and Maria Gambarelli (Gamby); Dave Apollon, Russian star; Ota Gygy, violinist, and Leo Reismann and his orchestra.

John Charles Thomas, American barytone, will be the individual star of the second Eveready Hour fall program at 8 o'clock tonight. His broadcast over this hour will inaugurate a series of air concerts to be conducted during the present season and which will feature leading artists in each field of music. On alternate weeks the Eveready Hour will continue its dramatic presentations which have won a wide following.

The first of the songs to be sung by Mr. Thomas will be "Eri Tu," the aria from Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera." He will also sing "I Love Life" and "Give Me Your Hands to Hold," "Ol' Man River," from Ziegfeld's "Show Boat," will be the barytone's concluding number.

Nat Skilkret will conduct the symphony orchestra in Beethoven's overture to "Egmont," the pizzicato movement of Tschaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony;" Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice" and compositions by Rimsky-Korsakoff, Berlioz, Glinka and MacDowell.

Blee, chief of the division of airports and aeronautic information of the aeronautics branch of the United States Department of Commerce, will talk on "Airports: Nests For Our Planes" during the broadcast of the "Roads of the Sky" program at 6 o'clock. Because of his supervision of the establishment and planning of airports throughout the United States, Col. Blee is well fitted to talk about the great network of airports which serve regular air transport operators and private plane owners.

Featured artists to be heard in the Michelin program at 7 o'clock include Louise Bave, soprano; Taylor Buckley and Irving Kaufman, barytones, and Howard Phillips, tenor. Louis Katzman will direct the program.

History in musical comedy will be recalled by the Prophylactic orchestra when it plays "Follies" hits covering a period of fifteen years in the program to be broadcast at 7:30 o'clock from WRC.

"Feelin' the Way I Do," "We're the Sunday Drivers," "Hello, Margot," "Gin and It," "M-A-R-Y," "Darkies' Dream" and "The Hop Off."

Two new soloists will make their debut over WRC during the regular noon-time organ recital under the direction of George F. Ross. What Today Means to You

SEPTEMBER 24

"LIBRA."

IF September 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:50 a. m., from 1 p. m to 2:30 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger period is from 10 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.

Fortune smiles, on this date, upon those who launch new enterprises or begin a new career. Risks of a speculative nature may be taken with less than the usual danger. Indications will be revealed of a definite turning point in your life.

Children born on this September 24 will have two vices, laziness and indifference. Their ambitions will need outside stimulation, and duties will have to be forced upon them. They will neither lack talent or ability.

You seldom display any petty display of temper; you do not let little things annoy you; you are not looking for slights or snubs—the world to you is full of kindness and interest.

There is almost no suspicion in your make-up. You are anxious to give every one the benefit of a doubt. To you there is good in everybody, and your trust in human nature usually draws it out. You may at times be "done," but there is no doubt that many a person has been helped and encouraged in the right direction by your charitable attitude. No one will ever destroy your universal faith in mankind. Many will disappoint and grieve you, but your faith in the rest of the world remains unchanged.

If a woman, you will be very spiritual and will have an extremely sweet and pure nature. You will possess a hidden strength and power which will not be understood by the very materialistic. Your influence for good will be felt by all those with whom you come in contact. Your graciousness, unselfishness and charm is so simple and natural that you will make an appeal to every one. You are distinctly effeminate, and a homemaker in the real sense of the word.

Successful people born on September 24:

J. Horace McFarland — Master printer.

John C. Stevens—Yachtsman.

William E. Burton—Actor.

Mark A. Hanna—United States Senator.

John Marshall—Jurist.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

She Married Beneath Her.

Is this man right in believing that this wife married "beneath" her?

Dear Miss McDonald:

My wife sets great store by your little articles, and we are both mighty glad to see them once more. Now it happens we have a little something to ask you. To be frank, my wife married beneath her when she took me, and I realize it fully. However, I have associated for so many years with the better sort of people that I have acquired the ways of those whose advantages — especially educational — have been greater than mine. Therefore, in a crowd I "get by." But in close quarters my lack of the cultural advantages would be sure to crop out. For instance, I hear people among her friends constantly referring to characters I never heard of, and I actually do not know whether they are fictional, historical or mythological, and I don't even know how to find out. This gets me and makes me feel out of things. For this reason I have been letting her go everywhere alone.

I do not tell her the reason, just pretend I am too tired or too busy—and she believes it. But this summer she was entertained by some friends and was thrown in with some people who put the idea in her head that since I was not "congenial" she should go her way and I mine, although remaining married. Now they may have the advantage of me when they mention Damon and Pythias, but when they talk about my wife going her way while I go mine, they are talking a language I understand and do not like.

The question I would like answered is why she told me about their suggestion. Does she want to make me jealous (which would indicate she cares)? Does she want to be rid of me? Does she want me to accompany her? Or does she want me to keep clear of her I am not blaming her whatsoever. I deliberately stopped taking her places. So whatever has occurred is my fault entirely. One thing I can not do is tell her that the learning of her friends was too much for me. In business and mathematics I'm there. But I have no education in other lines, although my manners are those of a gentleman. Of course, I love my wife, that goes without saying. Do you think she has met some one else? T. J.

In the first place your wife did not marry beneath her. Familiarity with mythology is no criterion of manhood—nor of intelligence. So stop making a fetish of mere glibness, and be assured that you have what most women want a man to possess—manhood and ability.

That being settled, we can now consider your wife. She told you because you were neglecting her and embarrassing her by your neglect. It is most humiliating for a wife to be constantly explaining her husband's lack of eagerness for her society.

You may not be able to converse in mythological terms, but if it is any consolation to you, only bores and the very, very young ever do. But if you are keen about it, step into any book store and get a few good books on the subject. You could cover the ground in a very few evenings and know more than most people remember two years after graduation day.

The important thing is to keep your wife, and keep her happy. And that means acting the husband on all occasions. That a man like you should be daunted by a few armchair orators, just out of college and flaunting their recently acquired knowledge, is beyond belief. Go where you are invited, talk of the things you know. You ought to be a welcome relief after the mythology hounds and other pests. Funny how little conceit a real man has.

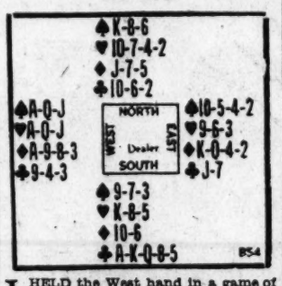
PARTNERS WHO HAVE SADDENED MY LIFE.



I HELD the West hand in a game of Auction Bridge. South (dealer) bid one Club. I doubled, North passed and my partner correctly answered the double by bidding one Spade (selecting a weak four-card major suit in preference to a stronger four-card minor). There was no other bid.

In Contract the first round of bidding would have been exactly the same, but it would not have stopped then. West, while too strong to pass, would hardly dare to bid more than two Spades over East's one Spade. After West's two Spades, East might bid three Spades, pass or bid three Diamonds—a difficult selection, with three Diamonds probably his best guess. Whether after East's three Diamonds West should pass or bid for game in Spades or Diamonds would be another puzzler. The East and West hands can make four Spades, but not five Diamonds.

In the play in the Auction game with Spades the trump, South led three rounds in Clubs. East ruffed the third, led a trump and finessed. North, appreciating that East might be short of entries and that it might be wise to induce him to waste one in trying another Spade finesse, held up the King of Spades, so my Jack won the trick.

To trick 2 my Trey of Diamonds was led and the King in closed hand won. Then the Spade was finessed a second time and the trick was won by North, who led a third round of Spades up to my Ace. With the trumps exhausted, my Eight of Diamonds was led, closed hand's Queen winning. Then the Heart finesse was tried. That won, but closed hand was now without an entry; consequently, after winning with my two high Diamonds and Ace of Hearts, the Queen of Hearts was lost and we failed to make game.

Why did my eyes fill with tears?

The Correct Play.

East should not have permitted North's clever hold-up of the King of Spades to shut out a second Heart finesse. Dummy's first Diamond lead should have been the Nine, won with East's King; then, after trumps were exhausted, the Ace of Diamonds should have led, East playing the Deuce, then the Eight, East winning with the Queen, and after the Heart finesse East's Four would take dummy's Trey. This procedure would have made game by giving East the needed entries to lead for two Heart finesses.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

DIET FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

IF consumptives would eat less heavily they would stand a better chance of recovery. A heavy diet of milk and eggs throws too much strain on the organs of digestion, as possibly also those of excretion. This is the opinion of Dr. J. B. Hawes, supplemented by opinions obtained from 40 or more of the leading consumption specialists in the country. The diet of a consumptive taking the cure he summarizes as follows:

Lunches between meals are rarely advisable. The average patient enjoys his food more and takes a larger amount of nourishment when he confines himself to three good meals a day.

Eggnogs in any form, at any time, Dr. Carrol Edison thinks, are an invention of the devil. Raw eggs, if easily digested and well borne, and if the patient is underweight, do not do any harm and may do good. They are not as digestible as cooked eggs, and on the whole are rarely indicated.

About one quart of milk daily, four or five glasses with meals, is the maximum amount that should be given. A glass of milk with each meal is usually sufficient.

There are no special foods that need to be emphasized in outlining a diet for the average consumptive taking the cure. Potatoes, macaroni, rice, fruits and vegetables are to be given quite as freely as milk and eggs. Fruit and vegetables contain vitamins and tend to correct constipation. Meats, eggs and colored vegetables tend to overcome anemia. The bowels should act at least once daily. More frequent action is desirable, though diarrhea is to be guarded against. Five or six glasses of water daily—some with meals and some between meals—is advisable in every case. A rest before, and especially after, each meal is advisable in every case.

It is the consensus now that the one time policy of stuffing consumptives was more harmful than otherwise. Under it they fattened, but the flesh was soft and most of the adipose was quickly lost.

Little Visits in Asia

II. THE BAKU OIL COUNTRY

LYING partly in Asia and partly in Europe is a body of water known as the Caspian Sea. It covers an area almost twice as large as Great Britain. Although not joined to any ocean, the Caspian is salty.

A Glimpse of the Baku Oil Fields.

On the western side of this sea, nature has stored millions of tons of oil. The oil gushes from the ground at some places, and elsewhere it is pumped out.

The Baku oil fields, as they are called, contain hundreds of tall, pointed towers. Each tower marks an oil well.

Certain of the wells have gushed oil to great heights. In one case the oil shot 200 feet into the air, giving the onlookers a sight very much like Old Faithful Geyser in eruption at Yellowstone Park.

The Yellowstone geysers send forth hot water, and it goes up because of the pressure of steam. What makes oil gush forth when holes are drilled? It is the pressure of gas, long stored and compressed in the earth.

Twenty-eight years ago there was a flood which swept over villages around the Baku oil fields. The flood was not of water but of oil. It resulted from several wells gushing forth so fast that the workmen could not take care of the output. The lower floors of the houses were covered with oil, and it was some time before the people could return to their normal life.

Several times oil wells at Baku have caught fire when struck by lightning. This gave great sights for people to look at—mighty torches at night—but it brought heavy loss.

Ditches around Baku contain water covered with oil. Women who need fuel for oil stoves go to the ditches with rags. Dipping her rag into the oily surface, a woman lets it soak, then wrings it out so that the oil drips into a bucket.

HIGHER CALL FUNDS CHECK SPECULATION

New Storm of Selling Hits Stock Market—Favorites Under Pressure.

BULLS BID UP IN VAIN

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—High call money rates again played havoc with speculators for the advance in today's stock market. Instead of the lower rate generally expected, call loans advanced from 8 to 10 per cent and the market ran into another storm of selling, which carried more than a score of issues to new low levels for the year, despite the strenuous efforts of "bull" pools to restore speculative confidence by bidding up United States Steel common, Anaconda and an assortment of high-priced specialties.

Encouraged by the remarks of Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City Bank, on the eve of his departure for Europe last week that credit conditions were sound and the business outlook promising, and by the favorable character of the week-end trade reviews, operators for the rise started to bid briskly for stocks at the opening. Before the end of the first hour, a long list of issues were selling 1 to 7 points higher.

The selling pressure was renewed against radio, and several of the other recent speculative favorites, and quoted values melted rather rapidly. Short selling played an important part in the day's operations, but there was also evidence of liquidation from stale-margined accounts inspired, in part, by the bearish attitude of some of the leading commission houses. Failure of the general list to follow the leadership of United States Steel common on the upside also proved disappointing to pool operators.

Increase in British Rate Feared.

Strength of sterling exchange, coupled with reports of the further withdrawal of gold for continental account, revived reports of an early increase in the Bank of England discount rate. Fears that this action might result in a withdrawal of some of the heavy foreign balances from New York probably influenced some of the selling in today's market. Foreign banks and corporations have been heavy lenders in the call loan market, as was evident in the substantial increase in the loans made "for the account of others" in recent Federal Reserve Bank statements, so that any appreciable withdrawal of these funds would be a source of concern here.

Motor shares were among the principal selling targets, due to recurrent reports that the keen competition in the industry had impaired profit margins this year. Chrysler, which sold as high as 135 in January, dropped 4 points to a new 1929 low at 61½, but recovered a point of its loss. Nash, Graham-Paige, Studebaker, Borg Warner, Hayes Body and Stewart-Warner also sold at new low levels for the year.

Radio, which advanced to within a fraction of its high record of 114¾ less than two weeks ago, sold down to 89¼ and then rebounded to 90¾, off 4¾ net. American & Foreign Power dropped 8 points and rallied 1. Columbia Gas & Electric, North American, American Power & Light and Public Service of New Jersey also recorded substantial declines, although the last named touched a new high in the early trading. General Gas & Electric issues bounded upward to new high levels on the announcement of a 5-for-1 stock split-up.

At Year's New High Levels.

Establishment of new high levels for the year by Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies, Best & Co., Columbian Carbon, Fox Film and Underwood-Elliott-Fisher was offset by the registering of new lows by Advance Rumley common and preferred, Armour of Delaware preferred, Celotex preferred, Cluett Peabody, Debenture Securities, Eastern Rolling Mills, B. F. Goodrich preferred, McLellon Stores, National Air Transport, Porto Rican Tobacco A, Standard Commercial Tobacco and White Sewing Machine preferred.

Railroad shares failed to make much response to the publication of additional favorable earnings statement, although Soo common was marked up more than 5 points to a new high at 60.

Spiegel May Stern responded to the announcement of the formation of a new subsidiary to handle household utilities by running up more than 3 points. Special buying also took place in Colorado Fuel, Eastman Kodak and Houston Oil.

Time money rates held firm at 9 per cent for all maturities. There were no changes in other monetary accommodations.

Sterling Advances.

In the foreign exchange market, sterling cables advanced to $4.84 13-16, as against a ruling rate of around $4.84 5-8 last week, and Japanese yen moved up an additional 5 points to 47.85 cents.

The commodity markets showed few important changes. Wheat futures closed fractionally irregular. Cotton lost about 50 cents to $1 a bale and corn about 2 cents a bushel on forecasts of more favorable weather.

WASHINGTON: TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1929. 17

SCOTT OUTPOINTS CAMPOLO; ROUTIS LOSES TITLE; INSTALLATION OF A.A.U. HERE GREETED BY THRONG

Group of 25 Clubs Name Committee

Enthusiastic Meeting Held as Ferris Outlines Program.

New Local Body Will Embrace Prominent Clubs, Colleges.

IN the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of Washington sportsmen ever seen, the District of Columbia Association last night at the Jewish Community Center was officially received as a member of the National Amateur Athletic Union.

With more than 70 men and women, delegates from 25 clubs and schools, representative of professional and commercial walks of life, taking active part in the meeting the preliminary organization of the association was effected. The meeting was presided over by Daniel J. Ferris, of New York City, the national secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U.

Thus culminated the efforts of local sports leaders and The Washington Post, who started seven months ago to give the Nation's Capital a distinct body for development and control of local amateur athletic affairs.

The preliminary organization included, as the most important action of the meeting, the election of a nominating committee of five members, upon whose shoulders will fall the duty of selecting a slate of officers who will be formally elected and installed on the night of October 15. Named on the nominating committee upon the first ballot were Shirley L. Povich, of the Rialto Club; John D. O'Reilly, track coach of Georgetown University; James McNamara, director of athletics of the Jewish Community Center; James Springman, of the "C" Club, and F. Canby, of the Young Mens Christian Association. Mr. Povich was designated as chairman of the committee.

The delegates then selected the board of governors of the association, from whose personnel the nominees for the various major offices will be chosen by the nominating committee, no member of which is eligible under A. A. U. laws for any office.

The board of governors, upon which every member club or school is represented, was named as follows: S. W. Hughes, Terminal Y. M. C. A.; Herbert C. Tucker, Peck Memorial Club; James A. Sullivan, Knights of Columbus; William E. Russell, Boys Club of Washington; John E. Zetts, Veterans of Foreign Wars; Maj. Gen. Anton Stephen, District National Guard; Dr. O. U. Singer, City Club; John B. McAuliffe, director of athletics of Catholic University; James E. Pixlee, director of athletics of George Washington University; Ernest J. Spitzer, Young Men's Christian Association; Edwin Rosenblum, Jewish Community Center; Robert Acorn, "C" Club; A. Earle Weeks, Washington Canoe Club; Ernest L. Millar, Potomac Boat Club; Shirley L. Povich, Rialto Club; Walter H. Young, director of athletics of American University; Richard S. Tennyson, director of boys' activities of the Municipal Playgrounds; James Dewey, Queensberry Club; Maj. T. E. Atkins, American Legion; D. Melville Carr, Washington Swimming Club; Miss Lillian Hoffman, Capital Athletic Club; Winfree Johnson, director of athletics of the Welfare and Recreational Association, Public Buildings and Public Grounds, Inc.; Joseph M. Bateman, Wardman Athletic Club; J. Kip Edwards, Downtown Coaches Association, and John D. O'Reilly, Georgetown University.

Huggins' Fate In Illness Is In Doubt

Transfusion Made in Effort to Check Flu and Erysipelas.

Yankee Pilot "Very Sick Man;" Temperature Rises.

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The condition of Miller J. Huggins, veteran manager of the New York Yankees, took so serious a turn today that a blood transfusion was necessary in an effort to check the spread of infection, growing out of an attack of influenza and erysipelas.

The outcome of the transfusion was in doubt, according to the only bulletin issued by Dr. Edward H. King, the Yankees' Club physician, late in the afternoon. He described Huggins as a "very sick man" and explained that in such an illness, arising from infection, there was no crisis.

Huggins was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital last Friday, upon the insistence of Dr. King, after being affected, first by a cold and then by a boil on the face. Complications quickly followed and his condition became so critical today that a hurried consultation of specialists was called by Dr. King, resulting in the decision to try a blood transfusion.

The news of the little Yankee pilot's relapse stirred baseball men generally but particularly the players and officials of the club which Huggins has led to six pennants and three world's championships in the period of twelve years in which he has directed its destinies. The Yankee offices kept in touch with the hospital hourly or otherwise were advised of Huggins' condition by his brother and his sister, Myrtle and Arthur Huggins, who spent most of the day at the bedside.

Through a stormy career as the leader of the Yankees, where he has even had to fight against criticism while winning pennants with a celebrated cast headed by Babe Ruth, Huggins never has enjoyed really robust health. He underwent minor operations in 1922 and again in 1925. Often he has insisted upon getting into uniform and going on the field to direct the team when his health was far from the best.

The taciturn pilot celebrated his forty-ninth birthday last March 27. Born in Cincinnati, he has been in baseball since 1898, in the majors since 1904 when he joined his home-town Reds and a major league manager since 1913. He took command of the St. Louis Cardinals that year and was picked by the Ruppert-Huston regime to reorganize the Yankees in 1918.

Collett Tops Field In Canadian Open

Ancaster, Ont., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Glenna Collett, U. S. woman's champion, led the field in the qualifying round of the Canadian women's golf championship today, carding a fine 77, two under par. She was out in 40, even par, and shaved two strokes off perfect figures, coming home scoring 37.

A stroke back of the U. S. star was Marjorie Kirkham, of the Marlborough Club, Montreal. Tied for third place with 80 were Helen Hicks, the long-driving player from Hewlett, N. Y., and Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto, who won the Canadian closed title last week. Of the 32 qualifiers, 15 were from Canadian clubs and 17 from the United States.

WAR WHITES LOSE POLO FINAL

2d Corps Area Wins High Goal Title, 9-8; Hoyle Hurt.

SECOND Corps Area of New York won the War Department Polo Association's high goal tourney for the second consecutive year yesterday when it defeated the War Whites in a spectacular match, 9 to 8. The Whites played with a two goal gift, rated them by the army handicappers.

Maj. Willis D. Hoyle, star number 3 man for the Whites, received a painful although not serious injury in the hectic final period when Second Corps tied and passed the local four. Maj. Hoyle was struck below the left eye by a swiftly driven ball and nearly fell from his mount before aid reached him. He was given first aid on the field and taken home, Maj. Cortland Parker relieving him.

The Whites took a commanding lead in the opening chukker when three goals were registered in addition to the two handicaps, while Second Corps scored twice. Both squads tallied in the second period, permitting the Whites to keep the 3 goal lead.

Sackman's 60-Yard Goal Features Game.

Due to some brilliant work by Lieut. George and Capt. Scott, the visitors matched the Whites' earned goals, but it was not until the fifth that the Whites' total was equaled. In this period, Sackman, the only civilian playing, tore off the feature drive of the day with a 60-yard clout that carried through the Whites' uprights for a marker. Shortly after Lieut. Kiefer equalized with a shot from a scramble.

In the final chukker, the 1,500 spectators were rewarded with some of the fastest polo of the season. Capt. Shafer gave hope to the local followers when he put the Whites in the lead with a well directed shot, but the joy was short lived, as Lieut. Kiefer again knotted the count. Shortly after Kiefer's success Maj. Hoyle was injured and when play was resumed Lieut. George, the star of the winning combination, dribbled to position and shot through the winning goal.

Cards Down Reds As Series Opens, 6-4

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Helped by Chick Hafey's twenty-sixth homer of the season which came in the eighth and scored Bottomley too, the Cardinals took the first game of the series of three from the Cincinnati reds here today 6 to 4.

A triple by Bottomley, scoring Wilson, brought the Cardinals' first tally in the fourth off Ben Frey, Nashville recruit, who hurled for the Reds. Fred Fankhouse was the Cardinal pitcher.

INJURY HITS BARABAS AT G. U.

Regular Full Back to Idle 2 Weeks With Twisted Knee.

FATE, whose dealing to Georgetown's footballers has been left-handed ever since training opened three weeks ago, brought the Hilltoppers more grief yesterday when Steve Barabas, veteran full back, again was incapacitated with an injured knee. It was revealed after a medical examination that the big Jersey City ball toter probably will be out for two weeks and possibly longer.

The loss of Barabas will considerably hamper Coach Lou Little and his aids in molding a first-string back field. Barabas, in two years as a regular, has shown sterling qualities on both offense and defense. Without him the Hilltop back field, which takes the field Saturday against Mount St. Mary's in the inaugural game, will be operating at a great disadvantage.

Injury Is Second To Barabas.

This is the second time Barabas has gone to the sidelines this season. He suffered a similar injury on the fifth day in the Ocean City camp and was idle until the squad returned here a week ago. During the short period he was back in action he flashed old-time form, and the coaches were just beginning to feel optimistic about the backfield outlook when yesterday's ill luck intervened.

It appears now that John Hudak, another veteran, is the only man certain to start in the back field against Mount St. Mary's. Hudak, who, incidentally, was injured at Ocean City but has fully recovered, will be seen at half back. The filling of the other half back, the full back and quarter back posts will not be determined before Thursday at the earliest. There are several candidates for each of these positions, but none has proved himself a standout.

Pariette Returns

Lew Pariette, the strapping sophomore end who earned much praise before injuring his ankle last week returned to action yesterday. During his absence Don Donaldson and Bob Brennan, other sophomore aspirants for the vacant flank position, have made rapid strides in the direction of the permanent assignment, so unless he is able to find his former pace, Pariette probably will not start Saturday.

Little sent his charges through a particularly strenuous practice yesterday and laid emphasis on interference. A snappy signal drill concluded the program, which lasted three hours.

Reds' Stock Advances 170 Points With Release of Jack Hendricks

CINCINNATI, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Stock of the Cincinnati National League baseball club, of $50 par value, which last week jumped from $80 to $125 a share after it was rumored Jack Hendricks might be replaced as the Reds' manager, reached a record high at $210 today. Hendricks tendered his resignation yesterday.

Brokers said two large blocks of stock exchanged hands at $210 today but refused to name the purchasers.

Sporting and financial circles report a contest has been under way here the last two weeks between to men to obtain control of the Reds. No names have leaked out but one rumor had it that a friend of Hendricks, at present on the Reds' board of directors, was after the stock and would make Hendricks president of the club if he succeeded in buying enough shares. The term of C. J. McDiarmid, present president, expires in November.

Nats Victors In See-Saw Game, 7-6

Judge's Double Ends Contest With Two Out in Ninth.

Chicago Errors Costly; 17th Victory for Marberry.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

IN bringing the White Sox here yesterday to play off a postponed game on the open date which both teams drew on the schedule, the Nationals gambled with part of their leading margin over the Tigers in their fifth-place fight. And they won, stretching the span between Johnson's team and Harris' club to three full games. The final count was 7 to 6 and the game was just as hard-fought as the score indicates.

Washington broke the ice in the fourth, became 3 down in the sixth, knotted the count in the seventh, became 2 up in the eighth, saw the visitors tie the score at 6-all in the ninth, and then came back in its half of the tenth frame to take the decision, thanks largely to a double by Joe Judge with two men on and two out.

Lloyd Brown looked like the greatest pitcher in the world for five frames and then faded out of the picture under a five-hit barrage in round six. Bob Burke, who relieved, turned in a good shift, but came a small cropper in the ninth and was lifted in favor of Fred Marberry, who was credited with the victory—his second in two days and his seventeenth of the season.

Judge, Myer, Goslin Crack Out 11 of Nat Hits.

Hal "Kitty" McKain and Grady Adkins did the tolling on the slab for the Sox and any chance they had of winning was booted away by their infield, which was charged with 4 errors, three of which figured in the native rally in the seventh.

The home gang outhit the White Sox, however, 14 to 10, with Judge, Goslin and Myer proving to be a regular murderer's row. Eleven hits were credited to this trio, with Judge getting three singles in addition to his double which broke up the game; Myer getting four one-basers, and Goslin cracking out a two-sacker and two one-shots.

The visitors did all of their scoring in two innings. After the Nationals had molded a tally in the fourth from Goslin's double and Myer's single, and Brown had held the Sox to but one hit in the first five frames, they suddenly solved the Southpaw in the sixth, all four of their runs being earned and on solid whacks. Singles by McKain and Metzler and a walk to Cissell filled the bases and Reynolds singled two home. The next two were disposed of an then Hoffman drove home another pair with a single. When Kerr also hit safely, Burke took up the hurling burden and did well until Johnson lifted him in the ninth, when he granted one run and put another in scoring position.

Three Errors Aid Nats To Tie in Seventh.

One was out when Kerr doubled and Berg singled him home. Adkins, who replaced Berg on the bases, stole second as Marberry fanned pinch-hitter Tate, and scored on Metzler's single. These two runs tied the string, for the Nats had enjoyed productive seventh and eighth rounds, which netted a total of five runs.

Three alien errors figured prominently in the home stand in the "lucky" frame, these being intermixed with singles by Judge, Goslin, Myer, and Cronin, the latter's propelling home the tying run. A two-base error by Cissell gave the Nats their start in the next session, singles by Judge, Goslin and Myer doing the rest.

As a matter of fact, the home team received a little help in manufacturing its winning marker, as Adkins hit Cronin, first up. Spencer forced the shortstop at second and took third on Hayes' single. When he was forced at the plate on Pinchhitter Barnes' tap to Kamm, it looked as if extra innings would be necessary, but Judge ruled otherwise by lofting his double over Hoffman's head which let Hayes dent the pan with the winning run.

'Bat' Battalion Earns Featherweight Title by Decision.

Outclasses Routis in Every Way as Home Towners Cheer.

By EDWARD NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 23 (A. P.).—Christopher ("Bat") Battalino, slim, black-visaged Italian boy, born to a fighting name, stepped into the crown room of the featherweights tonight and with all the ease, speed and insolence of youth swept the coronet of champion from the head of Andre Routis.

The leather-worn French veteran, holder of the title for only a year, was scarcely ever a contender in his grim, hopeless effort to save the crown. So wide was Battalino's margin of superiority that Referee Billy Conway, the sole arbiter under the boxing laws of Connecticut, gave every one of the fifteen rounds to the challenger, while about 17,000 of the faithful, come to cheer their home-town hero, rocked the Hurley Stadium with applause for the new champion.

The crowd paid approximately $60,000 for their entertainment.

Old Champion Chases Punching Phantom.

Scarcely a half dozen times during the long combat was Routis, plunging turtle-type of fighter who charges into action with one glove covering his chin and the other swinging wildly, able to catch up with the fleet, cagey youth of 21, who fought with the generalship of twice his years. Routis chased a leather-flinging phantom all the way only to find himself tied up tightly and even outfought at his own style of milling when finally engaged at close quarters.

There were no knockdowns, but the wild maneuvering about the ring caused Battalino to slip to the floor twice as punches caught him off balance. Once Routis went down the same way, but neither was in danger of a knockout at any time. Routis managed to draw a trickle of blood from Battalino's nose early in the skirmish, and the new champion brushed the skin from the right eye of the old in the very first round. Otherwise the damage was confined entirely to ribs and stubborn chins.

Rise to Fame Is Sensational.

Battalino, with less than three years as a professional behind him, probably set some kind of a record tonight for high-jumping from obscurity to boxing fame. Although he won the national amateur featherweight championship in Boston in 1927, he has never fought a major engagement outside his home State and only a few weeks ago won his first really big fight—a decision over Panama Al Brown, bantamweight title claimant, in the same ring he won the 126-pound title tonight. He has lost but one decision since turning professional. Tonight he scaled 124½ pounds to 125¾ for Routis.

Police Seek Missing Promoter at Nashville

New Orleans, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—William A. Coker, chairman of the Louisiana Boxing Commission, said he received a telegram today from "Battling" Gahee, a fighter, saying that he had seen Frankie Edwards, the missing fight promoter, in Nashville Saturday evening in company with a man and a woman.

The commissioner turned the telegram over to the police, who requested the Nashville authorities to pick up Edwards, who disappeared Friday night with the gate receipts from the Canzoneri-Wolfe lightweight bout.

Coach Lou Young has shifted Albert Broadbeck to the quarter back berth. He was a classy running back last season and appears to be the best signal caller on the Pennsylvania squad.

Briton Takes Terrific Body Pummeling; Stages Rally.

Outboxes Giant Foe in Final Rounds, Gaining Decision.

By ALAN J. GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—After being on the verge of a knockout in the very first round, Shufflin' Phil Scott, the pale, blue-eyed British heavyweight champion, staged a remarkable comeback tonight to box his way to victory over Victorio Mario Campolo, the galloping Gaucho of the Argentine, in the battle of the leaping towers.

Scott carried off a close decision after ten bruising rounds of battling between a brace of the tallest and bulkiest heavyweights in the business. The verdict was 2 to 1 in favor of the Briton, who gained the votes of the two judges, Harold Barnes and Charles F. Mathison, to offset the ballot which Arthur Donovan, the referee, cast for Campolo.

A crowd of 15,000 fans in Ebbets Field, the Brooklyn National League Ball Park, received the decision with a mixture of cheers and boos.

Argentinan Outboxed In Final Rounds.

Scott swayed the official verdict in his favor by a rally which he sustained throughout the last four rounds, outboxing and outsmarting the heavier, harder-hitting Italian from the Argentine pampas after withstanding severe body punishment throughout the first half of the bout. This rally by the crouching, shuffling Englishman enabled him to show a margin of five rounds to four for Campolo, with one even.

The big Argentine, weighing 223½ to Scott's 215¼ and packing much the more dangerous wallop in his right hand, came close to scoring a knockout in the first round but he found the Briton's defense difficult to penetrate after that and appeared tired at the close.

"It took me seven rounds to recover from that first right to the jaw," Scott said in his dressing room after the battle. To ringside observers it appeared, on the other hand, that Campolo's short, crushing rights to the region under the heart were chiefly responsible for the Englishman's distress in the first few moments of the fight.

Crowd Roars for Quick End of Battle.

This opening rush of the Argentine almost swept Scott off his feet. With both fists pumping furiously, Campolo had the Englishman's body buckling and his knees sagging. The crowd roared for a quick knockout, but Shuffling Phil hung on desperately, weak and groggy, until the bell saved him and sent him to his corner for the smelling salts and good advice from his chief handler, "Jimmy" Johnston.

For the next five rounds, Scott boxed warily, employing a left jab and a choppy right to the head as he bounced in and out of Campolo's reach. The angular Argentine, shaggy-haired, stalked his foe persistently. Occasionally he landed the crushing right to the body, forcing the fight most of the time, but he was clearly outboxed. Twice in the fifth and sixth, Campolo was warned for hitting low.

The defeat abruptly checked the rush of Campolo into the heavyweight picture, as the result of a recent victory over Tom Heeney, and at the same time boosted the stock of the British contender for heavyweight honors.

The paid attendance was 11,073, and the gross receipts $45,674.

MOLASSES JANE REPEATS IN GRAW FEATURE PURSE

Filly Displays Gameness in Victory

Regains Lead From Port Harlem Down Stretch Run.

Curtsey Beats Band of 2-Year-Olds in First Number.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 23.—The Xalapa Farm evidently has a pretty shifty sort of a filly in Molasses Jane, a 3-year-old by Ballot — Julian. On the opening day, Molasses Jane beat a band of platers. It was her maiden effort and her victory on that occasion was not taken seriously by the rank and file. In today's feature race, the Gadabout Purse, a dash of a mile and seventy yards, Molasses Jane was meeting much stiffer opposition. There were six starters in the event and the speculation was divided between Port Harlem, Lisa and Altitude. Molasses Jane was one of the outsiders. She was ridden by Leischman and had the inside position. When the break came she left the barrier with the leaders and hugging the rail outfotted the others around the first turn. Leishman had a snug hold of her and when Ambrose made his move going to the half mile pole with Port Harlem, the latter passed Molasses Jane for a few strides. The Xalapa filly had something in hand however, and when called on by her rider she responded and again assumed command. Rounding the far turn Port Harlem faltered and Lisa, the Harry Payne Whitney entry, challenged, getting within half a length of the leader.

Molasses Jane Holds On Gamely.

The pair swung into the home stretch lapped and straightened out for the final run. A desperate struggle ensued. Both Molasses Jane and Lisa were under drives and both were hanging on with splendid courage. The last sixteenth found Lisa gradually wearing Molasses Jane down, but the latter was holding on gamely and at the end just lasted long enough. It was smallest of margins that separated the pair at the finish. Port Harlem was third a length and a half away.

A band of fifteen maiden 2-year-old fillies went to the post in the first race and the Herbert Bayard Swope Stable furnished the winner in Curtsey, a good looking filly by St. James—Ethereal Blue. Rose got away with the leaders when the start came and in the run down the backstretch, was in close pursuit of the pacemaker—The Kid and Rueful. He was on the inside and as the field swung for home, Rose shot his mount up next to the rail and, taking the lead at the furlong pole, won with something to spare by a length and a half. Distinguish ran an impressive race. Ambrose was on the outside the entire trip and went much farther than the winner. But for this Distinguish might have been a troublesome filly at the finish. As it was she outgamed the Whitney entry, Rueful, to beat the latter out a head for the place. The Kid, after breaking fast, and showing a lot of early speed weakened and dropped back the last furlong.

War Eagle, Lightview Collide at Start.

Fair Ball made good in handsome manner when he scored in runaway fashion in the fifth race, for which were a fractious lot and gave Milton some anxious moments before he finally released the barrier. The field was lined up straight but War Eagle, when he lunged out, wheeled and collided with Lightview. Recreation began in her usual slow manner, breaking flatfooted and before they had gone a sixteenth was a distant trailer.

Fair Ball, who was second away, quickly assumed command, and once in front he remained there. Rose had him in hand for 6 furlongs. Entering the home stretch, Hypoluxo moved up with a bold challenge and got within half a length of the pasemaker at the furlong pole. At this stage it appeared as if he might win, but when it came to a drive he hung and Fair Ball, finishing full of courage, beat him out half a length. War Eagle was third, beaten off five lengths for the place.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PEGG'S PRIDE, $10.40, $5.10, $4.30; THE TARTAR, $6.40, $5.70; COMPLICATION, $7.80.

PEGG'S PRIDE, a rapid beginner, dashed to the front soon after the start and opened up a commanding lead on her opposition before they had gone a furlong, saved ground the entire trip and had something in reserve at the end. THE TARTAR, very fractious at the post, broke slow and went wide most of the trip. He closed steadily and finished stoutly. COMPLICATION hung on well under a drive to outlast MAC MAXIM. SAMBO G. was cut off soon after the break. This ruined his chances.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Piedmont. For 2-year-olds, colts and geldings. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:46. Winner, W. J. Salmon's blk. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SWINFIELD, $4.20, $3.20, $2.50; HACKY H., $9.00, $5.30; SKIRL, $2.70.

SWINFIELD moved up stoutly on the inside in the run down the back stretch and went to the front going to the half-mile pole. Schaefer had him in hand most of the trip and he had plenty in reserve at the end. HACKY H., a bad post actor, broke in front from the extreme outside, was a keen factor the entire trip and outlasted SKIRL in the final drive. Latter broke very slow and worked his way up on the outside. He ran a winning race. FORTUNATE YOUTH was shuffled back in early stages. FLYER ran greenly. He is a good looker and worth remembering.

FOURTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500. The Gadabout. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:05. Off at 4:07. Winner, Xalapa Farm's b. f. (3), by Ballot—Julia N. Trained by W. M. Wallace. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48 3-5, 1:14 2-5, 1:40 3-5, 1:45

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOLASSES JANE, $22.00, $9.20, $4.80; LISA, $4.40, $2.80; PORT HARLEM, $2.80.

MOLASSES JANE, quick to begin, hugged the rail rounding the first turn and took command before entering the back stretch. She never had an inch of ground and, after stalling off a determined challenge from PORT HARLEM, just lasted long enough to stand off LISA'S determined rush at end. Latter responded with a game effort when called on and was gradually wearing the winner down. She was in front in another stride past the winning mark. PORT HARLEM was tiring last furlong. ALTITUDE moved up stoutly on outside when straightened out on back stretch, but was eased up when she could not get to the front.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,500. The Hayview. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:36. Off at 4:43. Winner, Mrs. J. D. Hertz's ch. c. (4), by Fair Play—Chiffchat. Trained by B. S. Michell. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:40 4-5, 1:47 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR BALL, $4.80, $2.90, $2.40; HYPOLUXO, $11.20, $5.40; WAR EAGLE, $4.40.

FAIR BALL raced like a good colt. He outran his opposition to first turn and Rose had him in hand until the last furlong. He had to be shaken up at end to stall off determined challenge from HYPOLUXO. Latter broke slow, made a desperate effort at top of home stretch, but hung after getting to the leaders. HELEN DEAN, off forwardly, quit when the real test came. RECREATION again broke flatfooted and dropped far out of it the first sixteenth. WAR EAGLE bumped LIGHT VIEW when the barrier was sprung.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:15. Off at 5:17. Winner, R. O. Eagan's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRIAR CLIFF, $3.90, $3.30, $2.60; FAIR THORN, $10.80, $6.40; BLUE DARTER, $3.40.

FRIAR CLIFF raced under restraint in early stages, moved up with a rush when Robertson made his move rounding the far turn and held his field safe all through the stretch run. FAIR THORN began quickly and dashed into a commanding lead in early stages. He was driving hard at end to stall off BLUE DARTER and RUBY KELLER. Latter closed a big gap to finish going strong. BUCKY HARRIS, a keen factor for five furlongs, quit.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:45. Off at 5:47. Winner, H. G. Bedwell's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR GIRL, $23.80, $10.60, $9.20; CAPTAIN APPLEJACK, $6.30, $7.10; SEMPER FELIX, $7.10.

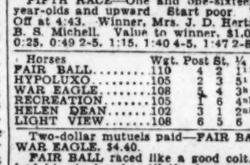
FAIR GIRL, in close pursuit of the pacemakers first half, gradually improved her position rounding the turn into the home stretch and, finishing full of courage, wore CAPTAIN APPLEJACK down to win going away last fifty yards. CAPTAIN APPLEJACK weakened after racing ROCKDALE into submission. SEMPER FELIX closed a big gap. NANCY BYRD broke slowly. TAZEWELL could never get up; he broke flatfooted. JESSYLIN BALLOT showed a lot of early speed. She was eased up when she stopped.



COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT L. COLLYER

GOOD morning Canucks. Yea bo, "Shicker de Goly," and ready to tell the whole cock-eyed world where to head in. As a matter of fact, the jobbie at Woodbine is none other than the consistent SEA KALE which was our getaway special at Thorncliffe and which also delivered with $9.95 hung about her monicker. The fifth spasm today is the bright particular spot. Do get yours while the getting is good. MASTER BOBBIE, PLAGUER and CIRCULET for what is left.

For the Seagram Cup it would sem the WILSON ENTRY of SUN FIRE and AFRICAN have a double barreled cinch on the long end of the purse. True, MARINE ran below expectations Saturday, but then this is another day, while AMSTERDAM also must be considered.

By the way, just was tipped off that CARTAGO was an overnight commission horse. This makes the thing a trifle more intricate, who knows?

Out at Lincoln Fields, where Dick O'Hare was the pickler from the old vat Saturday, and which finished second after being in front by five lengths, the good news is taken SUNSTROKE for the bank roll .today should be able to fall down and beat the mob slated to meet in the day's opener.

Strong language, boys, strong language, but the lads do not make many mistakes.

OLD KICKAPOO, which could do no better than third last time, is taken to bring home all the bacon today. Should break in front and be on the Bill Daily end, throughout.

ALITA ALLEN is in well in the closing spasm with 110 pounds. The King James mare is at her best over the Havre de Grace track and morning trials have been highly satisfactory, her latest move being an easy 6 furlongs in 1:18 3-5. However, she will have those two consistent performers, REJUVENATION and RESOURCEFUL to trim for all the honors. The mile and an eighth is just her dish and it is going to take a mighty keen hide to lead her home. REJUVENATION and RESOURCEFUL are route performers of no mean ability. They figure to sew up what is left of the spoils.

4 Tarheel Gridders Hurt in Auto Spill

Salisbury, N. C., Sept. 23 (A.P.).—Four members of the University of North Carolina football squad were injured this morning near here when a light roadster in which they were riding left the highway and turned over three times. J. W. Daniels, tackle, and Jack Dunavant, guard, both of Charlotte, are in a Salisbury hospital. Daniels had chest injuries while Dunavant had a fractured clavicle. W. G. Reid, end, also of Charlotte, and N. E. Eskew, guard, of Greenville, S. C., had scalp wounds but were able to go to Chapel Hill, after being given treatment here.

The students, who were returning to Chapel Hill after spending the week-end in Charlotte, said they were trying to dodge an automobile which was on the wrong side of the road.

Albemarle Co. Lists 21 School Grid Games

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 23.—Twenty-one interscholastic contests comprise the schedule of Albemarle County High School boys and girls' basket ball games for the session of 1929-30. The number of games played last year has been cut in half, due to the feeling that the basketeers were forced to spend too much time on the court and too little on lessons, so Supt. A. L. Bennett stated today.

Games will be played on seven successive Fridays, beginning October 4. On each of these dates a boys' team and a girls' team from three schools will play corresponding teams from three other schools in the county. One school will have a vacant program each Friday. All contests will be held after school hours. Following is the schedule:

October 4—Earlysville at Scottsville, Red Hill at Greenwood, Crozet at Stony Point, Meriwether Lewis open.

October 11—Scottsville at Crozet, Meriwether Lewis at Earlysville, Greenwood at Stony Point, Red Hill open.

October 18—Scottsville at Red Hill, Earlysville at Crozet, Meriwether Lewis at Greenwood, Stony Point open.

October 25—Stony Point at Scottsville, Red Hill at Meriwether Lewis, Crozet at Greenwood, Earlysville open.

November 1—Greenwood at Earlysville, Stony Point at Red Hill, Meriwether Lewis at Crozet, Scottsville open.

November 8—Greenwood at Scottsville, Red Hill at Earlysville, Stony Point at Meriwether Lewis, Crozet open.

November 15—Scottsville at Meriwether Lewis, Earlysville at Stony Point, Crozet at Red Hill, Greenwood open.

Central, Episcopal and George Mason are being sought as opponents, with the following games definitely settled:

October 4, Woodward Prep; 11, Charlotte Hall, away; 18, St. John's; 30, Tech.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 23.—The Old Dominion Bowling League will officially open its season Thursday night at the Health Center. Jack Howard, president of the league, is arranging for a gala opening night, when it is expected some city officials will roll the first ball down the alley to open the second annual campaign for the Old Dominions. Last year the league title was won by the Bow Five, captained by Robert G. Whitton, and the winning pin smashers were presented with medals at the first annual bowling banquet, held at the George Mason Hotel.

Bowling has been adopted by the Boat Club as one of its major sports, along with rowing, canoeing and basket ball. Monograms will, it is expected, be presented to the members of the winning team by the club at the close of the season.

The following eligibility list for the teams has been submitted, members of the teams being requested to get in touch with their respective captains before Thursday night.

Sweeps—Kermit Smith, Urban S. Lambert, Jr., Ebner Duncan, Benny Minor, George Grant, Parke Bell and Capt. Jack Howard.

NAVY TO PICK TEAM AFTER OPENER

Saturday Game With Dennison a Tryout for Players.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 23.—Navy gridders jogged along in comparatively easy fashion following the stiff scrimmaging they were given Sautrday afternoon, but work will be resumed in earnest tomorrow. One thing that resulted from Saturday's workouts is that the coaches now have something of a definite slant on the relative merits of the many contending players, although this does not mean that some may outdo others as the season drifts along.

Competition is keen all along the line, and the checking up system will be continued until after the season opener with Dennison College, of Ohio, on Saturday. Then the main varsity players will be chosen and the "left overs" will be designated as squad B, commonly known as the scrubs or shock troops. This group will be placed under the tutelage of Ensign Schwab, who will drill them on Notre Dame's style of play. Navy is hot after the Irish this year and that battle, to be played in Baltimore Stadium October 12, will be the first big objective of Head Coach Bill Ingram and his staff of mentors.

Middies Optimistic of Beating "Irish."

The Middies are banking big on beating the South Benders and a battle of many intense moments appears in the offing. Navy's squad lacks scintillating stars, but all are experienced and for this reason "Navy Bill" Ingram is a bit optimistic. However, picking the first team will prove a problem, as a substitute combination outplayed the prospective varsity, following the big team's game with the Plebes Saturday and brought several nearly forgotten players to the notice of tutors.

Friday morning the regiment of midshipmen will end its month's leave. That night the Middies will have a football rally all their own. The meeting will not be supervised by the coaches and a lot of pep is expected to come out of this cheering session.

Dennison College will bring a squad of 25 players here. The Ohioans have notified Lieut. Comdr. Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics, the team will arrive Friday morning and will hold an afternoon practice session on the playing field.

WEBCOES TO BANQUET.

Members of the Webco Nine will be banqueted tomorow night at 7 o'clock at 4508 Thirteenth street northwest. All players are invited to attend.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS DOMINATE DEALINGS

Shadow of 9 Per Cent Time Money Hangs Gloomily Over Market.

NEW LOWS ARE SCORED

New York, Sept. 23 (A.P.).—The shadow of 9 per cent time money hung gloomily over the bond market today and prices worked irregularly lower in a dull trading session. Interest was confined almost exclusively to three or four convertibles, one of which made a new high.

Commercial Investment Trust 5½s drew a large following in response to the prospective split-up in the shares for which the debentures can be exchanged and the close found them a point higher after a large turnover. Public Service of New Jersey 4½s touched the record price of 300, but later slipped back to 298¾, the final quotation, a net advance of 4¾. American Telephone 4½s and International Telephone 4½s had a narrow market, showing only small fractional net changes. Alleghany Corporation 5s, of 1949, gained a point. American I. G. Chemical 5½s again showed easiness, dipping to 112 and closing at 112¾ for a net loss of 1¼. American International 5½s were also weaker.

A number of new lows came out in the list of more seasoned obligations. Goodyear Tire & Rubber 5s, Hudson Coal 5s, International Cement 5s, Armour Real Estate 4½s and Ohio River Edison first 5s all touched new minimums on liquidation of minor proportions.

Both the first and second grade rails eased slightly in the absence of favorable sentiment. The feature of the carrier division was the strength of the Ulster & Delaware issues, which moved up sharply in response to word that the arbitrators appointed to evaluate the road, which operates a short line through the Catskill Mountains in New York State, had finished their work, preparatory to inclusion of the company in the New York Central system, and had set the figure at $4,100,000. The consolidated 5s of 1928, principal of which is in default, rose 6 points while the refunding 4s of 1952 shot up 17 points to 60.

Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Erie and Pennsylvania Railroad issues were mostly lower, although trading was light. St. Louis & Southwestern bonds ruled steady.

An easier tone developed in Argentine government obligations, but the foreign group as a whole was irregular and quiet. United States Government securities sold off in the smaller fractions.

OIL FIRM LOSES OUT IN ZONING PETITION

Minority Report, However, to Be Given Supervisors in Arlington.

NIGHT SCHOOL TO OPEN

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Zoning Commission in executive session at the courthouse last night, after deliberating less than two hours, failed to approve the application of the Sun Oil Co., of Philadelphia, for a permit to establish a distribution plant on the Lee highway north of Key Bridge in Rosslyn.

Chairman Fred Gosnell, in announcing the decision, stated that the location for the proposed plant was partly zoned as residential.

"We feel, however, that the plant should come to Arlington County and will assist in every way to find a suitable location for it," Gosnell said.

It was learned after the meeting that a minority report will be filed with the county board of supervisors by the two members favoring the rezoning petition. It is understood that it was necessary for the chairman to cast the deciding vote.

Col. Charles T. Jesse, chief of counsel for the oil company, when informed of the action of the zoning commission, stated that he would go before the county board of supervisors in an effort to have the permit granted.

Arlington County, today leading the 100 counties in the State in education, is completing plans to give to the students who have dropped out at the Washington-Lee High School an opportunity to complete their classes by taking advantage of the night school, which will be inaugurated Friday, October 24, according to an announcement given out last night by S. P. Vanderslice, principal of the high school.

There will be a meeting in the school auditorium Monday night, September 30, from 7 to 9 o'clock for the purpose of registration, and all former students interested in taking up their school work are urged to attend this meeting.

The plans, as now arranged, provide for two classes in English, two in mathematics, bookkeeping, shorthand, typewriting, mechanical drawing, chemistry, physics and shop work.

Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

Fletcher Kemp, county school superintendent, stated that the night school will be in charge of S. P. Vanderslice, principal of the school. The classes will continue for a period of eight months.

While the county school board has not yet determined the tuition fee, Superintendent Kemp announced it would be very reasonable.

The annual financial report for the year 1929, as given out yesterday by County Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green, shows an increase in valuations over the year 1928 of $1,002,931, with a local increase in taxes of $19,929.99. Commissioner Green explained that the increase is due to new improvements and that the rate of taxation has not been increased; in fact, in Washington district it was reduced 10 cents on the $100 assessed valuation.

The total valuations of the three districts, including real estate, personal property and public service corporations, is $28,713,119 and the total levies amount to $725,498.27. They are divided as follows:

Jefferson district — Valuations, $8,975,348; levies, $201,945.41.

Arlington district — Valuations, $14,222,245; levies, $320,000.54.

Washington district — Valuations, $5,125,621; levies, $115,326.50.

East Falls Church, Arlington district—Valuations, $23,320; levies, $361.46.

East Falls Church, Washington district—Valuations, $336,584; levies, $5,682.07.

The schools lead in the amount of taxes assessed. They will receive from the county a total of $302,686.02, to this is added $55,000 which come from the State, making a total for school purposes of $357,686.02. The report shows that the amount received from the county taxation is $10,586.03 more than for the year 1928.

Of the total amount collected from the three districts, $179,530.63 will go to the roads; $243,281.82 is devoted for county expenses and $302,686.02 to the county schools.

To the county road fund of $179,530.63 from the county taxes, there is to be added between $60,000 and $70,000 returned by the State in gasoline taxes, which will make the total for county road purposes approximately $245,000.

There were 16,887 capitation taxes assessed in 1929, showing an increase of 1,210 over last year.

The land books show 8,154 homes and buildings assessed in 1929, which is an increase over 1928 of 279, and an increase of 4,576 over 1920, showing that in less than ten years the improvements in Arlington County have more than doubled.

The rate of taxes on the $100 assessed valuations is as follows:

Jefferson district, $2.50; Arlington district, $2.50; Washington district, $2.70; East Falls Church, Arlington district, $1.65, and East Falls Church, Washington district, $1.85.

Amounts collected for fire protection from the three districts are: Arlington district, $14,243.91; Jefferson district, $8,975.38; Washington district, $5,418.32, and from the two sections of Falls Church, within the county, $389.82, making a total of $29,027.53.

The outstanding bonds are as follows: Road bonds in Washington district, $80,000; school bonds, in the three districts, $674,000, and water bonds, in the three districts, $750,000. The water bonds carry no tax rate. There is a tax rate of fifteen cents in each of the three districts for school bonds. The difference of twenty cents shown in the tax rate for Washington district is to take care of the road bond issue.

The Arlington County Dairy will give its annual picnic at Great Falls to its employes tomorrow afternoon.

With the concrete shoulders completed from the Peoples State Bank to a point opposite the colored school at Halls Hill, work is now being pushed on completing the laying of the black top. POLICE CHASE ENDS AS CAR TURNS OVER Fleeing Driver in Hospital After Auto Somersaults Four Times.

FACES SEVERAL CHARGES

A thrilling chase of several miles early yesterday morning by a Maryland State policeman ended when the automobile of the quarry overturned four times near Dorsey, Md., and Edward J. Adams, 637 Orleans place northeast, was injured.

Adams was taken to the St. Agnes Hospital in Baltimore, where he was treated for concussion of the brain and cuts on the hand. He will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Howard U. Gosnell at Savage, Md., today if his condition warrants.

According to State Policeman C. W. Cubbage, of the Laurel Substation, he sighted the car yesterday speeding on the Baltimore boulevard near Waterloo, about 5 miles from Laurel. He gave chase at a speed of about 65 miles an hour and followed the car to Elkridge, where the car turned into a dirt road and headed for Jessup. As the car approached Dorsey, it careened from the road and turned over four times, he said. He helped the injured man to the hospital and then began a check on the ownership of the car. It had been reported stolen by Washington police, investigation revealed.

Adams is charged with exceeding a speed of 60 miles an hour, driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, and reckless driving. He also is being held for Washington authorities on a charge of grand larceny, police say.

STONE POISON TRIAL WITNESSES TESTIFY

State Asks Death Penalty for Woman Accused of Son's Slaying.

DEFENSE IS OUTLINED

Special to The Washington Post.

Belair, Md., Sept. 23.—After four hours had been spent in selecting a jury of twelve men, the State produced four of its two-score witnesses late today in an effort to prove that Mrs. Hattie V. Stone murdered her son, George, 15, for the money she could collect from his estate.

More than 50 talesmen were challenged by Harold E. Cobourn, defense attorney, and D. W. Worthington Hopkins, State's attorney, before the jury was chosen. Eleven of the twelve are middle-aged and fathers, and eight are farmers. A Government clerk, an insurance salesman, a retired merchant, and an automobile salesman complete the panel.

The prosecution asked the jury to return a first-degree verdict without recommendation, while the defense urged a verdict of not guilty. Hopkins and Cobourn, in their opening statements, declared they would offer evidence to support their contention.

Accused Woman Smiles.

Mrs. Stone, dressed in black, sat with her counsel and watched the proceedings with a slight smile. At no time did she display any emotion, even when State's Attorney Hopkins asserted:

"This woman loved the pleasures of life more than she loved her son, and, in order to get money, she had to poison him."

The jury was selected with surprising dispatch. Each prospective juror was questioned briefly by Hopkins, Cobourn and at times by Judge Walter W. Preston, who presided. The last juror selected, Joseph A. Babka, 28, a Government clerk, is by far the youngest member and the only juror without children.

Mrs. Stone Faces Jury.

As the jury was sworn in Mrs. Stone stood up and solemnly faced the men who will judge whether she has "feloniously and with malice aforethought murdered George Stone by poison," as the warrant charges.

With the jury sworn in, Judge Preston warned Sheriff Dewey Bowman not to let the jurors separate and then he called upon Hopkins to make his opening statement.

"I will produce witnesses," the State's attorney said, "to show that Mrs. Stone married Edward A. Stone and that the couple had four children, two of whom died in infancy. Edgar Stone, her oldest son, died in June, 1927, and her husband died suddenly January 30 of last year. Mrs. Stone received $2,500 from the sale of property after her husband died and about $1,500 in benefits from his death. The State will prove that she went through all of that money and had none left when George Stone died last June. She was down and out and we will prove it. She was destitute at the time of his death.

Trust Fund Described.

"George had $1,200 in trust, money left by his father, and he had four insurance policies. She tried to find means to get this money in trust while George was alive, but she could not. She told witnesses she did not think it was fair to her to be unable to get that money. So she poisoned the boy to get his money."

"We are going to offer evidence," Coburn said in his statement, "to disprove the State's case. The State hopes to convict this woman merely because her son died of strychnine poisoning and she was in destitute circumstances. We will offer ample evidence to show that Mrs. Stone was a kind, indulgent mother."

The first witness called by Hopkins was William N. Cole, cashier of the First National Bank, Havre de Grace. Cole testified that the trust fund in George's name amounted to $1,196.20 at the time of his death. Paul Patterson, an insurance company official, and Victor Bevans, an insurance collector, testified as to policies in George's name.

Jury Sent Out.

Reese Bowman described arresting Mrs. Stone and then produced two letters written in jail by Mrs. Stone to John Paul Jones, said to be a soldier at the Aberdeen Proving Ground. The letters led to a dispute as to whether they should be admitted as evidence. Judge Preston sent the jury to the jury room while the discussion was held. Following the discussion the judge adjourned court until tomorrow morning. By then, he said, he will decide on the letters.

GRAND JURY CALLED IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

True Bills Are Returned in Liquor Law and House Breaking Cases.

MRS. FENWICK HONORED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

A special grand jury was called yesterday by Judge Howard W. Smith of the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, to consider a nmber of pending cases. The jury consists of F. E. Sullivan, foreman; Lorine Jenkins, Wilber Walker, D. W. Buckler, Roy M. Money, James Burns and Claud Van Sickler.

True bills of indictment were returned against William Vorseik and Robert Ray for housebreaking and attempt to commit larceny, and Herbert Shephard and D. C. Davis for second offense against the prohibition law.

D. C. Davis and Herbert Shephard, both of Accotink, Va., were arrested Saturday night by Officer A. W. Mills upon complaint of the Fort Humphries authorities. It had been noticed that some soldiers of the camp were returning in a seemingly intoxicated condition. Saturday night the commanding officer gave orders to guards that all cars entering the camp were to be searched for liquor. In one car driven by two privates was found a bottle of alleged liquor. The soldiers said they had purchased it at the home of Davis. Capt. Thomas and Lieut. Hodges then made one of the privates go with them to the home of Davis, where, it is charged, they purchased two pints of liquor from Davis and later two pints from Herbert Shephard. After leaving the David home they got in touch with Officer Mills and swore out warrants for Davis and Shephard, who were later arrested. They were taken before the justice of peace, who held them for the action of the grand jury on a charge of sale and possession of liquor.

James Nelson, 2323 Virginia avenue northwest, Washington, was arrested by Officer Mills Sunday for speeding on the Alexandria-Richmond highway. While being taken to Justice of Peace Shephard at Accotink, Nelson drove into the car of J. P. Jones, of Gladys, Va., wrecking both cars and injuring Mary Thomas, 2220 D street northwest, Washington. Nelson was fined $25 and costs by Justice Shephard for speeding, reckless driving and having no registration card. His car was impounded until the damages to the Jones car are paid.

Joseph Lloyd, of Duke street, Alexandria, arrested for driving while drunk on Telegraph road near Potters Hill School Sunday, pleaded guilty in Circuit Court yesterday and was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to one month in jail. Other sentences imposed by the court were Frank Gorham, violation of the prohibition law, who pleaded guilty, fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail; William R. Draper, violation of prohibition law, pleaded guilty, fined $50 and costs and given 30 days in jail.

Alton Brown was fined $48 and costs on the charge of conducting a disorderly house.

William Vorseik and Robert Ray, indicted for house breaking and an attempt to commit larceny, were sentenced to 18 months each in the State penitentiary.

Funeral services for Mrs. P. W. Hudleson, wife of the county treasurer, who died Saturday night, will be held this afternoon in Fairfax. The office of the county treasurer will be closed until Wednesday morning.

Mrs. E. T. Fenwick, of East Falls Church, was elected president of the State Chapter of the American War Mothers at a meeting held in Norfolk. For two years Mrs. Fenwick served as the first president of the Piedmont Chapter, in Falls Church, which has been the only chapter in Virginia. A few months ago a second chapter was founded in Alexandria and then one was formed in Norfolk. This entitled the State to a State organization. It is planned to form other chapters in other sections of the State.

Mrs. Fenwick as State president and Mrs. Turner as president of the Falls Church Chapter will leave Monday for Louisville, Ky., as delegate to the national convention.

Joseph Beard, of Fairfax County, has been awarded the Westmoreland Davis scholarship for 1929-30 at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. For the last three years Beard has represented the Floris High School in the annual judging contest at Blacksburg, Va. In 1926 he was the highest man in the State contest and was presented a gold medal. In 1927 he was awarded the Virginia Planter Key, the highest award the State organization can confer on one of its members. In 1928, at Kansas City, Mo., Beard was a delegate to the first annual meeting of the Future Farmers of America, and was selected as one of the ten boys in the agricultural high schools throughout the United States to receive the American Farmer Key, a recognition of their success in farming and contribution to the advancement of the work of local and State organizations.

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Harold R. McWright, 29, of Cambridge, Md., and Katheren I. Mowbray, 22, of Baltimore, Md.

TRACK SHIFT PLAN UP IN HYATTSVILLE

Legal Committee Named to Ascertain Town's Rights in Matter.

REPORT IS AWAITED

Following consideration of the proposal of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway to move its "Y" track 125 feet south of its present location so as to permit the passage of full length freight trains instead of only switching, the Hyattsville Chamber of Commerce last night approved the recommendation of Nichols Orem, chairman of the public utilities committee, to name a legal committee for the ascertaining of the town's rights in the matter.

The mayor and the city council were advised not to take any action on the proposal until the legal committee had made its report.

At the same time the citizens of the first ward held a mass meeting protesting against the "Y" track change on the ground that it would interfere with traffic on the Baltimore boulevard.

The Chamber of Commerce members also heard that the Washington Suburban Gas Co. has filed a reduced schedule of rates as a result of the activity of the public utilities committee. The saving will be $3 for the average consumer and $9,000 for Hyattsville as a whole, it was said.

The chamber went on record as opposing the change in the calendar so as to have thirteen instead of twelve months. The action was taken at the request of the National Chamber of Commerce.

Irving Owens, former mayor of Hyattsville, announced that the extension of Rhode Island avenue from Mount Rainier to Hyattsville will be completed by November 15, according to State roads commissioners. He proposed that a banquet be given to honor the governor and State highway commissioners at the completion of the project.

A. H. Seidenstinner made a motion that the affair take the form of a public celebration. No action was taken.

A proposal of the Annapolis Chamber of Commerce to form a State chamber of commerce to boost Maryland was presented to the chamber by C. D. Anderson, secretary of the Hyattsville group. The chamber indorsed the move and appointed a committee to confer with the Annapolis body.

REBEKAHS OBSERVE BIRTHDAY TONIGHT

Lodge at Alexandria Plans Program to Celebrate 78th Anniversary.

SCHOOL ROLLS INCREASE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The seventy-eighth anniversary of the establishment of the Rebekahs, women's auxiliary of the Odd Fellows, will be celebrated tonight by a program given at Liberty Rebekah Lodge No. 16, at the Odd Fellows Temple on Columbus street.

The first lodge of the Rebekahs in Virginia was established at Harrisonburg in 1892, and the membership in the State, which is rapidly increasing, has now grown to 5,580. One of the principal works in which the Rebekahs are active is the maintenance of the Odd Fellows Home at Lynchburg, and it has just been announced that since 1908 the amount contributed to that cause has been $53,500.

At the meeting tonight formal announcement will be made of the sudden death of Louis P. Krenning, of Wytheville, president of the board of trustees of the State home, and Mrs. Mattie L. Callahan, of Lynchburg, past president of the State Rebekah Assembly.

During the last week the attendance at the public schools of the city has shown a decided increase, many former pupils who were away from home for the summer months having returned and resumed their studies. Many others are expected to enroll this week. The figures compiled by R. C. Bowton, superintendent of schools, shows the total registration to date to be 3,175.

The registration by schools is as follows: High School, 549; Jefferson School, 613; Lee School, 600; Washington School, 441; Maury School, 229; Parker-Gray School, 695, and Seminary School, 48, the last two schools being for colored pupils.

The trial of Robert Skelton, colored, charged with the murder of Vera Carter, also colored, which occurred more than three years ago, has been set for tomorrow in the Corporation Court, Judge William P. Woolls presiding.

The shooting which resulted in the death of the Carter woman was staged February 26, 1926, and she died June 1 of that year. A coroner's inquest held two days later held Skelton guilty of the shooting, but he had escaped and was not captured until recently.

The September meeting of the Forty and Eight, the honor society of the American Legion, will be held at 6:30 o'clock this evening at Hurshy's, King and Royal streets. The announcement of E. H. Hinken, chef de gare, includes on the program a number of songs by Lawrence Roland, a skit by Miss Virginia Nugent and Miss Marjorie Sinclair, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. William H. Meeks, and other numbers.

One of the features of the meeting will be an address by Col. A. R. Emory, commanding officer at Fort Hunt.

The Alexandria Rotary Club will hold its regular business meeting and luncheon in the George Mason Hotel at 12:30 o'clock today, when the club will consider different phases of its child welfare work, which is being carried on at the Children's Day Nursery on Prince street.

A delegation of members of the local branch of the Holy Name Society attended the tenth annual convention of the State organization, held in Norfolk Sunday. More than 50 delegates from different sections of the State were in attendance.

Chicken thieves were active over this week-end, two cases being reported to the police yesterday.

The first was Al Ruben, who conducts a store at King and Payne streets, and who reported the theft of a half dozen chickens from the yard in the rear of his place of business. A gate on the Payne street side was forced to gain entry.

Louis F. Bargamin, 112 South Patrick street, also reported that four chickens had been stolen from his yard, the intruder gaining entrance by scaling the back fence.

L. P. Morris, of 125 North Payne street, was found on the street in a dazed condition yesterday by Sergt. Lawrence Padgett and Patrolman Grimm and taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where he was treated by Dr. O. A. Ryder. His condition is said not to be serious.

Services Conducted For Drowned Mexican

Funeral services for Andres Quinones, 22 years old, of 933 K street northwest, who was drowned in the South River, near Annapolis, on September 15, were held yesterday at the mortuary chapel of John M. Taylor in Annapolis before the body was sent to the man's native home in Mexico City.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Vincent Watson, of St. Mary's Parish, and were attended by many fellow employes of the Mexican connected with the American Road Building Association in Washington. Quinones met his death while playing ball in the water with three Mexican companions. A verdict of accidental death, said to have been caused by drowning, following a heart attack, was given by a coroner's jury.

Hagerstown Fair Bans Sunday Chance Games

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 23.—Games of chance at the Hagerstown Fair will not be permitted to operate Sunday, the board of directors of the association announced today, following a petition of the Grace United Brethren Sunday School, filed with the mayor and city council. The Sunday school in its protest asked that "the godless desecration of the Lord's Day" at the fair be prevented.

The fair board, in its announcement, said that on previous years it has been prevented from keeping games of chance closed on the Sabbath before the fair because of the immense crowds present, but would make a special effort this year. The Sunday school petition pointed to the Frederick Fair, where such games have been closed on Sundays for years, yet have flourished at the local fair.

World Leadership Training Is Urged

Colleges and Universities Should Parley on Topic, Dr. Marvin Says.

A world congress of colleges and universities to consider methods of training for world leadership was advocated by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the George Washington University, in an address last night at the opening exercises at Randolph-Macon Woman's College at Lynchburg, Va.

"It is well for nations to talk about doing away with armies, but this is a negative approach to the social problem and, at best, but a palliative in the ordering of world affairs," Dr. Marvin said. "If our minds are centered upon creative plans for the betterment of our own lives and the lives of our neighbors, armaments, wars and protective measures will be forgotten."

"The leaven that works by different processes to lead the people of the world to a realization of the common interest of all is largely a matter of education," he asserted, adding that "colleges and universities can not set themselves apart from the leaven that is at work in the world today."

DRY PARTY PRAISES ANTI-SMITH TICKET

Virginia Prohibition Group Lauds Campaign Goal of Coalition.

TAMMANY IS CRITICIZED

Richmond, Sept. 23.—Anti-Smith coalition candidates in the forthcoming Virginia election received the indorsement of the Virginia State executive committee of the National Prohibition party in resolutions unanimously adopted today at its meeting here. James A. Edgerton, of Alexandria, the party's vice presidential candidate last year, presided.

The resolutions declared in part that "we hereby indorse the candidacy of the anti-Smith coalition candidates and respectfully urge our own and the voters of all parties in sympathy with the movement to rid society of the curse of the liquor traffic to support said coalition ticket."

The resolution declared that the Democratic candidates "all three voted for and advocated the election of Alfred E. Smith, who as governor of his State, had all enforcement laws repealed, and during the course of his campaign for President, blatantly proclaimed the right of State officials to ignore the eighteenth amendment and advocated the repeal of the Volstead act." It charged also that he had "the united support of the liquor interests, not only of this, but of many foreign countries in his political campaigns."

It stated in conclusion that the coalition candidates, "nominated on what we believe to be the most progressive and constructive platform ever submitted to voters of Virginia, refused to support the wet Tammany-controlled candidates nominated at Houston."

Three years ago a movement was started to clear off the indebtedness and Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, who will preside over the conference this week, preached here the Sunday before Thanksgiving. Since that time the indebtedness has been paid. The Rev. Harry V. Wheeler, presiding elder of Moorefield District, preached the sermon.

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Sept. 23.—The new district almshouse to serve the needs of five adjacent counties and which has been in course of erection near Chatham has been completed and accepted by a committee representing the boards of supervisors of the several counties. The building cost $50,000 and will be occupied October 1.

The district almshouse plan was first suggested by Frank Bane, head of the State Department of Public Welfare, and is designed to reduce the cost of maintaining the indigent poor, since the overhead expenses are distributed evenly between the five counties.

Yesterday the organization offered a reward of $1,000 for the slayer of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins and several $250 rewards for accessories to that homicide.

Mrs. Wiggins, a member of the union, was slain ten days ago by a mob which
